Drug Addicts

Members of Matrix House attended the Drug Abuse Session in order that "we may be able to reach someone who, by learning what we as individuals have gone through will not make the same mistakes that we, as individuals, have made."

The speaker added: "We were asked if his parents knew when he started taking drugs and if so what they did. He said he successfully hid the fact from them for awhile. However, when they discovered it, they tried to send him to counselors, priests and doctors. However, he was not interested in help from anyone and ran away from home. He then met other taking drugs and graduated to heroin from these associations."

The older addict was asked how he had supported his habit. He said by thievery, baglating, armed robbery—anything he had to do to get the money he needed.

"What made you decide to ask for help, were you forced by being caught for these crimes?" "No," he said, "I was never caught by the police, I just woke up one day and decided I'd wasted 40 years of my life, and that if I didn't do something about it now, it would be too late."
