By Virginia Smith Donovan

I bring you good news of a great joy, which will come to all the people; for you in born this day in the City of David a Saviour who is Christ the Lord.—Luke 2:10-11.

Mrs. Ruben Cleaver says the believe in Santa and we shouldn't lie to him, for he will be sure to catch up with us.

John Smithson said he was glad to be wheeled out to the day room to see Pat Fisher's dog.

Little Tom said Santa was a humbog!

Children don't make all of Christmas, but the holiday would be rather dull without them especially if one had been used to a game of them. A lady whose grandchildren lived too far away to come and help their grandmother decorate the tree, asked her neighbor to help. Her neighbor's granddaughter, Sarah Snapp, also don't even attend church.

McGee. The Conleys brought their dog, "Landy," who was accompanied by "Scuff," the Maxon children's dog. The dogs were brought to stay on the porch. Just coming in after school all wire hounds. The lady's Christmas table was arranged with Christmas table mats, pretty Christmas plates, cups, napkins, place cards and all. The center of the table contained a tiny manger scene which softly played "Silent Night." The refreshments were cups poured from a little pitcher which had to be filled more than once, and cookies. After refreshments all of them went to the attic and brought down the artificial tree and ornaments. This really was fun. The tree needed an angel for the top. Mike, Lashie and Dan had some home made ones which had been made in "Mama's" class. "Mama" is Mrs. H. J. Dergarten class a few years before. This was a real love gift, for the tree thought and special effort. A party like this is very rewarding and certainly doesn't cost much. It's good therapy, and cheaper than nerve medicine. Try this sometime. You won't have to beg for gear.

There was a time when the Christmas card was a novelty, and a colorful one at that, dating back to the days of stagecoaches and penny wages. More than a century ago the idea of Christmas cards began with the English custom of "Christmas pieces." During the holiday season, school boys were given on specially prepared sheets so they could show their parents what progress they were making in penmanship. Secretly, they begged Mom and Dad's approval would mean additional Christmas pocket money. In the year 1843 an Englishman, Henry Cole, sat at his desk one December evening, addressing what were probably the first cards ever printed. Mrs. Cole like many others of his time, made it a practice to write letters to his friends and relatives during the holidays. Anticipating the hectic and hectic of the season, he commissioned a friend and member of the Royal Academy of Art to design a Christmas card as a substitute for his letters.

Remember it is more blessed to give than to receive. God, often visits us, but most of the time we are not at home.—John 1:9.

He gives nothing but worthless gifts who gives nothing but worthless duty.—James Russell Lowell

Friday, Dec. 25, 1970. Mrs. Melvin Hunt, pastor of the CME Westley Chapel Church, conducted the weekly worship service. Bro. Hunt read part of Luke and gave a short talk, and sang two songs. Bro. Hunt has passed 90 years and is still interested in doing good and many younger people don't even attend church.

Willie Sargent says he sees no need in complaining. He doesn't help any. He said he had done some farming, worked for a race horse man in Bourbon County, and worked for the City in Paris. He said he was glad he wasn't there at any of these places.

J. J. Barbee had company from Mass and Fleming Counties. They were his boys and their families. Don't destroy all your old Christmas cards. The flashy ones cut out are nice to decorate packages with.

Harvey Ellison says he's almost sure Santa is bringing him something.

A little boy approached Santa Claus in a department store with a long list of requests. He wanted a bicycle, a wagon, a chemical set, a cowboy suit, a set of trains, a football, and roller skates.

"That's a pretty long list," said Santa sternly. "I'll have to check in my book and see if you have been good."

"No, no," the youngster said quickly. "Never mind checking. I'll take the roller skates."

Do you remember when we had Christmas's just for two days, Christmas Eve and Christmas Day? Sometimes we went to school on Christmas Eve. We looked forward to getting oranges from the teacher, and one or two which Santa put in our stockings. Christmas Eve and Christmas Day? Sometimes we went to school on Christmas Eve. Mr. Robert Boyd was visited by her brother, Keller Hall and wife of Mr. Sterling.

There was quite a bit of news which there wasn't room for. That will be published later.

Merry Christmas wishes to all the people in Carlisle. Let's hope Santa will be good to all of you.
