Coach Don R. Burton Leads Martin College to 10-1 Record

A former Eastern Kentucky High School coach, Don. R. Burton, is leading Martin College to a perfect 10-0 record as the team broke for the Christmas holidays. Burton came to Martin College in Pulaski, Tenn., in June and hastily assembled a group of basketball players that now rank 10th in the latest National Junior College Poll.

Coach Burton is a former McKell High School player, head coach at Nicholas County, Jenkins and Breathitt County in Jackson.

The job at Martin College was a real challenge as Coach Burton inherited only one player from a squad that boasted a 19-5 record the year before. However with a diligent effort with his assistant coach Jerry Hibdon, they brought together 15 fine players that have reeled off ten straight victories without a defeat. Many boys and parents visited the Martin campus last summer and linked the Pulaski scenery, impressed with Martin's academic record, and decided to enroll.

The basketball fans of Tennessee and surrounding areas are highly impressed with the coaching ability of Coach Burton. He has an exciting team that is averaging 97.7 points per game in the ten played thus far. Three times Martin has gone over the century mark. Also Coach Burton is getting letters and calls from many senior college coaches in quest of his three dandy sophomores. All others are freshmen.

Agree or Not,

I Say What I Think

FRANKFORT—When the lawmakers hit town Jan. 6 to begin the 60-day legislative session, they are going to be faced with many problems, and few legislators will immediately recognize the dilemma facing Kentucky in the education field.

The problem is at least two faceted and cannot be solved by appropriating more state aid. These deal with the overall education program at the secondary level and not just with public education although the two are inextricably intertwined. They are:

1. Inelasticity of the present roll-back tax bill at the local level for financing.

2. The bind that parochial schools find themselves in at the present time.

Taking the second one first, Catholics are findind it increasingly hard to pay their share of financing two separate school systems--their own, and the requirement that they pay property taxes for public schools.

Catholic schools in the last few years have been forced to eliminate primary and other lower grades in many places, and the pitch continues to grow. This puts these children in the public schools where it causes crowded conditions and demand for more buildings.

More Catholic school districts are expected to cut back their programs next year and therefore put more of their children in the public school system.

Last spring Gov. Louie B. Nunn had to dip into his emergency fund to the tune of $1.7 million for the Minimum Foundation Program to ball it out of a hole caused by unexpected
