MISS SCHEFFLER

Although Fordy made no prediction of what may be to be shaved, he indicated his thinking at the present is less than one per cent of the estimated general fund of $57 million. He indicated that $2 or $3 million might be a fair estimate at this time. This spread evenly over a full year, or as soon as the income falls below the estimated level, the cut could be handled by all departments with little disruption. The state's five per cent sales tax will produce about $164 million for the year, not enough to FRANKFORT--In the space of two sentences a Budget Director said he was not an optimist to pessimist--if not pessimist, a cautious analyst. He said that the optimistic outlook he had earlier stated in the summer when he had receipts reaching expected levels for the budget year ending June 30, but voted a note of caution against the general fund projections for the fiscal year 1971.

Revenue Commissioner James E. Luckett said Finance Commissioner Albert Christen had just released his estimate for the last fiscal year when Fordy was making his statement on the estimate. At the end of his report on fiscal 1969-70, Luckett said that the preliminary findings indicate $57 million general fund estimate for next year need to be shaved slightly and possibly the road fund.
