Wagoner Announces Crop Reporters Ready Soon

Harvey Wagoner, chairman of the Nicholas ASC Committee, announces today that reporters will soon be in the field to measure the 1970 crop of Burley Tobacco. Reporters are few and Mr. Wagoner urges that farmers co-operate as they have in the past so the job of measuring can be completed timely.

The reporters will be trained on Thursday and Friday, June 11 and June 12 at the Nicholas County ASCS office and will start the following week.

It is the responsibility of the farmer that all tobacco be accurately measured. If planting of tobacco is not completed when the reporter stops at the farm, advise him to come back at a later date. It is very important that the farmer measure the tobacco on the reporter's first visit to the farm. If planting is completed, since additional visits will cost the farmer, reporter's time is valuable too, it is paid only for the farms he measures.

Title I Summer School

On Monday, June 8, school buses will pick up all children enrolled in Title I Summer School and deliver them to Carlisle Elementary. A special enriched program has been planned. The school day is from 8:30 a.m. till 12:30 p.m.

Anyone desiring more information concerning this program may call the Title I Office, Nicholas County Board of Education, phone 289-2254 or 2265.

Poppy Day Nets $105.80

The net proceeds from the American Legion Poppy Sale held on Saturday, May 23, was $105.80 according to Mrs. Youde Shaw, chairman.

Gov. Pledges 'Unyielding Firmness' In Protecting Student's Rights

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Gov. Leale B. Nunn pledges continued confidence in the vast majority of Kentucky's young people and assured them their pursuit of "intellectual excellence" in the state's colleges and universities will be protected with "unyielding firmness."

Addressing the annual commencement exercises at Frankfort High School here, the governor stated that young people who are "concerned for the preservation of our basic institutions have rights, too." "They have the right to study, to attend class, to take examinations and to be honored at commencement without fear of arson, intimidation or disruption."

The governor's 18-year-old son, Stephen, a graduating senior, was among the audience in the packed high school gymnasium.

The address by the chief executive was broadcast on several television stations and on a special statewide radio network.

Within the past two years, the governor pointed out, Kentucky has addressed itself to the problem of campus unrest and has "set an example for the nation by effectively meeting the threat of violence while developing innovative outlets for student dissent."

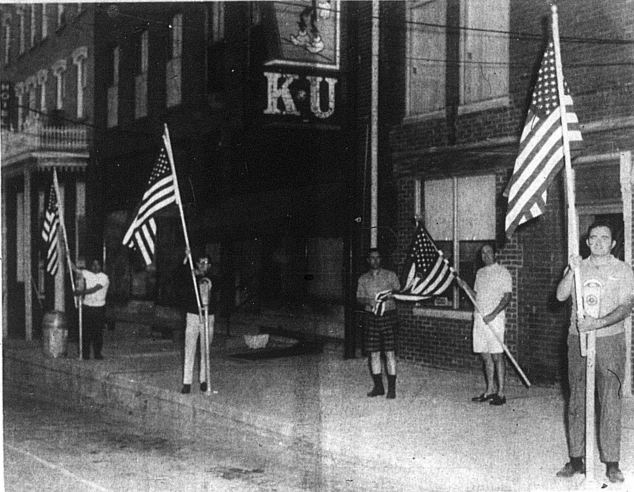

He cited specifically establishment of the Governor's Student Advisory Commission 18 months ago, major positions of responsibility that young leaders hold in the present state administration and the state's new Legislative Intern Program.

Kentucky was the first state in the nation, he said, to "welcome student leaders" in membership on the boards of all public colleges and universities.

In expanding on that theme, the governor announced that he will appoint "qualified students" to serve on both the State Air Pollution Control Commission and the State Water Pollution Control Commission. Presumably, they will fill one or more of the seats added to each commission by the 1970 legislature.

These appointments, the governor said, should "again dispel the claim that our system of government is closed."

Speaking as much to his radio and television audience as to those

Getting Ready For Memorial Day

OLD GLORY WAVES IN THE EARLY MORNING—Jaycees from left, Gerald Watkins, Gayle Kelley, Bobby Anderson, Joe Jennings and Doug Garrett, unfurl our Nation's flag along the north side of West Main Street about 6:30 a.m. Earlier this year the local organization commenced by placing a contract to display the flag on all necessary occasions for all who joined (for a fee of course). The Jaycees take the flags down each evening.—Frey Photo in the auditorium, he told the young people that the people of Kentucky have paid unselfishly for the costly privilege of applauding you tonight. Over the years, they have shared more and more of their substance with you."

Today, he said, 68 cents of every General Fund tax dollar is allocated to education in Kentucky. "By investing millions of dollars," he reminded them, "a place has been prepared for you in a progressive system of state colleges and universities that has significantly improved Kentucky's educational image."

"It is time we remember for what and for whom these sacrifices were made."

This system of colleges and universities, he insisted "belongs not to just the professional education community and certainly not to a radical student minority."

"It belongs to all of us."

Damage to property during the recent disturbance on the University of Kentucky campus at Lexington has run well over a quarter of a million dollars, the governor said.

"If all available means are not exhausted to recover these damages from those who were responsible, it will be a slap in the face to every Kentucky taxpayer, large and encourage university officials to institute civil suit, if necessary to recover full damages."

Obviously moved, the governor cautioned his young audience that they must make daily decisions that will "shape their destinies."

In a time of "great social turmoil" and in an atmosphere "hostile to clear thinking,"

"I believe you are capable of meeting this challenge," he said, "I have confidence in your ability to choose wisely."

Crawford Apt. Manager For Housing Project

The Carlisle-Nicholas County Housing Commission announced recently that Alex Crawford has been named manager of the Sycamore Hill Apartments. Crawford will oversee and maintain the FHA funded project for the Housing Commission. He will be in charge of accepting applications from prospective tenants, taking care of all financial matters and of the general maintenance of the apartment complex.

In order to qualify for the position Crawford spent two weeks in Atlanta, Ga., where he attended a workshop for project managers. In accepting the managerial position Crawford will retire from his present position at the Post Office where he has served as maintenance engineer for the past 29 years.

The Housing Commission also announces that apartments will be available for renting on or before July 1. Applications for prospective tenants are now being taken by Crawford at the number one apartment building at the corner of Sycamore Hill and Second Street between 3 and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and Saturday, between 9 a.m. and noon.

Crawford suggests that prospective tenants bring along their Social Security number and their W-2 forms from their 1969 earnings. All who are interested in living in the apartment complex are asked to contact Crawford as soon as possible.

If you are not sure as to your eligibility status to live in the apartments, since the Federal Housing Administration has certain rules that must be followed, or if you have any other information that you would like to have see Crawford at the project or call him after 5 p.m. at 289-2330.

Co-op Membership Meet August 10

The local Southern States Cooperative annual membership meeting for the Carlisle area will be held Aug. 10.

This decision was made by local farmer-members at a recent annual meeting conference held by S.S. Carlisle Cooperative.

Among the features of this year's session will be the reports on Southern States Cooperative and the local Agency operations for the fiscal year which ends on June 30.

In addition there will be elections and other business matters. Members will elect two new board members and two new farm home advisory committee members.

There will also be the election of a delegate and alternate to attend a district election meeting in Lexington this fall.

Nora Stevenson Recipient of Honors

Nora Elizabeth Stevenson of Carlisle was the recipient of the religion department honors at Transylvania University Wednesday, May 27, during annual Recognition Day ceremonies to honor senior students with high academic status in their major.

The honorees were later guests at a luncheon in their behalf.

Miss Stevenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Stevenson, 145 North Broadway, is a religion major at the historic Lexington university, and is a graduate of Nicholas County High School. Her activities while at the university include serving as Chairman of the Taylortown Tuna, Band and membership in Phi Beta, Gamma and music honorary. She recently received a fellowship to Columbia University in anthropology.
