NURSING HOME NEWS from page four

Ruth any new ideas, for her services at the home are needed!

Mrs. Minnie Mitchell can't see very well or walk around but her words are always kind and complementary.

Harvey Ellison's folks came to see him. There isn't room for all their names. Walter Roberts and his sister, Jane of Portsmouth, Ohio visited him on Sunday. They brought Harvey's sister, "Miss" Nellie, home. She had been over the river spending a week with the Roberts and she really looked nice; had been to the "foot doctor" up there and had gotten a new permanent. She was fixed up from head to foot. She said she really had a nice vacation. On their way back from Portsmouth, they had a picnic lunch at Blue Licks. One of Mr. Harvey's daughters who had not visited him before, came Sunday and his folks from Cincinnati were there to see him too.

The only book that really tells you where to go on your vacation is your check book.

A man without a plan for the day is lost before he starts.

A doctor in a North Carolina clinic asked the weather-beaten mountaineer how he was feeling. "Wal," drawled the man, "I'm still kickin, but derned if I'm raisin' any dust."

Mrs. Ida Harvey's daughter, Ruth Bramblett and husband Ed of Cincinnati, came to see her Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harney of Paris visited her recently.

Lizzie Ratliff doesn't just cook good things for the home folks. Her daughter and family of Winchester visited her over the weekend. Her daughter, Frances Bretz, who is a student of Midway Junior College, is spending a week with her before she goes back to summer school. We just almost forgot to say that she and Rex went shopping in Cynthiana too.

Before you decide to retire stay home for a week and watch television shows.

Ed Crain and family of Cincinnati and Carlos also of Cincinnati, are visiting their mother, Margaret Bromagen.

Aunt Cora Gaunce is wearing a beautiful new blue bed jacket, a present from the W.S.C.S. of the Saltwell, Methodist Church.

Harvey Ellison does a little running around too! Sunday before last he went to see his daughter, Flora May Smart of Paris, for she had a nice birthday dinner for her oldest brother, Henry Ellison. The entire family was present; too many to count.

At this writing Mrs. A.T. Gardner and Mrs. Lettie Myers are the only two residents of the home who are in the hospital.

Mrs. Mary Swinford is a new resident of the home.

Friendship cheers like a sunbeam; charms like a good story; inspires like a brave leader; binds like a golden chain; guides like a heavenly Vision.

4-H'ers Explore Careers At Junior 4-H Week Meet

"What do you want to be when you grown up?" Boys and girls start hearing this question and wondering about their future careers very early in life.

Some 800 young people--already beginning to grow up--have looked for possible answers to this familiar question during Junior 4-H Week at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, June 1-4. These 4-H'ers from all parts of the state will be seeking, high school and ninth graders this fall.

These 4-H members and leaders who attended from Nicholas County are Trienzi Vice, leader; Paula Vice, Chyr Lee Gadgell, Lesa Grimes, and Rachel Booth.

During daytime conference sessions they explored the opportunities offered in a variety of careers, as well as the requirements in these fields. Assemblies at night stressed opportunities in 4-H and in various areas of personal development. Your Future Can Be is the theme of the conference, which opened Monday afternoon, June 1.

Featured speaker was a former Miss America, Miss Marilyn Van Derbur, who talked to the group on Wednesday night. Now United Airlines Youth Speaker, Miss Van Derbur is well-known as a speaker to youth groups on the topic "Goals and Dreams" and as a television personality.

Other speakers on the night programs included: Dr. Charles E. Barnhart, dean of the UK College of Agriculture and director of the Cooperative Extension Service and Agricultural Experiment Station, who welcomed the group Monday night; Dr. H.H. Van Horn, assistant director of Extension for 4-H, previewed the conference program Monday night; and Dr. C. Bronson Lane, UK Extension dairy specialist, discussed "Opportunities in 4-H for Mental and Spiritual Development" at the night session.

In addition, a panel made up of Miss Joana Harding, Robertson County, Kentucky 4-H president; Kenneth Perkins, Taylor County, state 4-H vice president; and Dr. Van Horn, as moderator, discussed other 4-H opportunities at the Tuesday night session. Rev. Sam Vorley Meer of Morris Fork was in charge of vespers each night.

Tuesday morning, the young people began their look at career possibilities. Divided into small groups, the delegation heard about many different kinds of careers--the type of work done in each field and the preparation needed for it.

At the end of the Wednesday afternoon sessions, each 4-H'ers will have learned about four major work areas and explored the many job opportunities in each field. At UK, they will visit the Colleges of Engineering, Home Economics, and Agriculture and hear speakers describe the various careers in each of these areas.

The groups also toured the Central Kentucky Area Vocational School, learning about the different kinds of jobs for which young people are trained at Kentucky's Vocational Schools and visiting classes to hear what is being taught.

MOOREFIELD SCHOOL 1914. Teacher was Miss Lena Hazelrigg. Picture was brought in by Raymond Vice, Route 2, Mt. Sterling, KY 40353.

Even the conference "fun" sessions had a career exploration theme. During recreation time, rest periods at night, the young people heard about career possibilities in the recreation field. The 4-H'ers returned home Thursday morning, June 4.

907 Graduate At Morehead

MOREHEAD, June 1--Morehead State University's largest graduating class gave president Adron Doran a standing ovation Monday morning in tribute to his leadership.

The surprise reaction of the 907 graduates came in response to the tradition "charge" which encouraged the Class of 1970 to help build a better world.

Earlier, the day's principal speaker told the graduates to "Purchase life's vital decisions on "the best evidence available" and noton personal prejudices and assumptions.

In a plea for reason rather than emotion, Dr. Franklin M. Mangrum said decisions founded on carefully-analyzed facts would help them conquer issues and problems waiting in the outside world.

"The unexamined life of fact is not worth believing," Dr. Mangrum said in a paraphrase of Socrates.

More than 5,000 parents, students and faculty members packed Laughlin Fieldhouse for the traditional ceremony. The record class surpassed last year's 854 graduates, then an all-time high for MSU.

Four persons received honorary master's degrees, the first in Morehead State's 48-year history. Recipients included James Dewease of Mayfield, superintendent of Graves County Schools; Mary E. McClafferty of Paintsville, a teacher at Paintsville High; Mrs. Virginia Chapman of Covington, chairman of the Covington Board of Education; and Bert Wellman of Catlettsburg, a member of the Boyd County Board of Education.

CELEBRATES 51ST ANNIVERSARY--Mr. and Mrs. Luther Medly celebrated their 51st Wedding Anniversary with an open house Sunday, May 31. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. William Medley Sr., and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Medly Jr. and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank King, Mr. and Mrs. Danny Tischer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Medly and son, and Kenneth Hunt Jr., all of Carlisle; Mrs. Judy Medly and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gray and children, Ewing; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Penrod and children, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore and children, Steve Penrod, Lexington.

More Spent Locally For Public Services

(Special to the Mercury)

NEW YORK--What does it cost local governmental agencies, per year, to provide Nicholas County residents with the variety of services they receive?

How much is spent locally, other than for education, compared with the expenditures in other communities?

A recent nationwide survey shows that the outlay for police and fire protection, for highways, health, sewerage, welfare and the many other services rendered at the local level comes to a pretty penny.

In Nicholas County, the amount spent for these general services, excluding schools, figures out to $97.34 per resident. Five years before, when a similar survey was made, it was $66.06 per resident.

It compares with an average of $156.22 per capita spent by local governments elsewhere in the United States. Among local communities in the State of Kentucky, the average was $72.48.

The data is based upon a recent survey by the Department of Commerce. The results of the survey are contained in a voluminous report, the first of its kind since 1962, entitled Compendium of Government Finances.

It gives a breakdown of expenditures by local governments in all parts of the country.

The amount of money spent for each type of service varies considerably from community to community.

In most local budgets, a big item is the cost of highway facilities, including roads, city streets, bridges and the like. In Nicholas County it amounted to $23.36 per cpaita in the year. The average, in other localities across the country, was $23.05.

In the smaller counties, 10,000 or less in population, the average was $40.11 per capita. The cost was lower in the larger counties, dropping to $21.35 in those over 250,000.

Police and fire protection in the local area involved an expenditure of $3.60 per person. The administration of government cost another $7.62.

The rest of the $97.34 per capita lir operating costs was allocated to the various other services provided for local residents.

Last sight of, in the general concentration on mounting school expenditures, has been the rising cost of the other public services. Nationally, in the five-year period, they have climbed 28 percent. The increase locally was 47 percent.
