

State Police Say Cattle Rustling Growing In Ky.

By Leonard Kimball

FRANKFORT, Ky.—All you Johnny Mack Brown fans take heart, the "Old West" ain't dead yet.

It's just become motorized. And believe it or not, the next time you happen to spot a truckload of cattle zipping down a quiet country road on a dark night, you could be witnessing a ritzy scene to a scene which is rapidly becoming a major problem for modern lawmen in Kentucky—cattle rustling.

According to Capt. A. J. Roberts, Kentucky State Police Bureau of Investigation commander, cattle losses because of rustlers in recent months are running into the thousands of dollars.

At least seven separate herds have been raised since the first of the year, Roberts said, with two of the largest thefts being reported in Boyle and Clinton counties.

One of the latest victims, Roberts said, was State Senator James A. Hines, whose country who lost 14 head of cattle, including two herd bulls.

The thefts, described by Roberts as having all the earmarks of a highly-professional operation, appear to be well thought out in advance.

"It isn't a simple case of someone just happening across an unattended herd and deciding to steal a few head," he said. "The herds are selected in advance, and the thieves know beforehand where the cattle can be sold."

FLIN HAPPENINGS FOR HEAD START.—Wednesday, June 15, Billy Ray Hunter surprised all the Head Starters by bringing his ponies and sulky to the school. Each child enjoyed a ride in the sulky and on the pony. That afternoon Mrs. Martha Sue Taylor and Mrs. Bonnie Metcalf presented a skit on the advantages of spending money wisely for the right kind of food. Thursday morning, June 16, Frankie Hughes, Miles and Mark brought the fire truck for the Head Start children to observe. They were permitted to wear the fire hats, spray water, blow the siren and talk over the loud speaker.

TAX EXEMPT!

News Item from Washington: "The coalition to lobby against a military spending bill" includes many groups which previously have lobbied for lower military spending, such as the Center for Community Action, Friends Committee on National Legislation, Americans for Democratic Action and Save the Whales, volunteers from the Urban Coalition Action Council, National Council of Churches, International Brotherhood of Teamsters and National Welfare Rights Organization."

Since when can "volunteers" from the tax-exempt National Council of Churches engage in lobbying?

slightly below May a year ago—the result of processing. Some $850,000 in insurance premium tax installments were deposited last May rather than June.

Also $1 million additional income tax refunds were processed this May, making refunds to date about $5 million greater in 1969 returns than in 1968 returns.

Sales and use tax receipts for the eleven months total $243,302, 782 for an increase of 8.2 per cent.

Mrs. Fuels normal taxes totaled $93,477,643 for an increase of 6.1 per cent. The motor vehicle license tax continued at a high level. Receipts for the fiscal year are 2.8 per cent over last year's record-breaking pace.

Luckett said there is evidence of a slowing in the economy but he said that $1.3 billion for the general fund and $166 million for the road fund will be realized if June collections hold up well.
