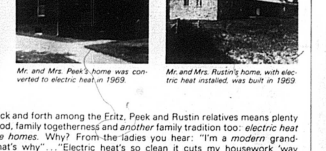
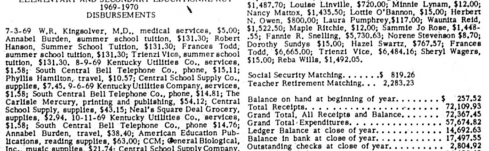
Mrs. Fritz's home was converted to electric heat in 1968.



Mr. and Mrs. Peek's home was converted to electric heat in 1969.



Mr. and Mrs. Rustin's home, with electric heat installed, was built in 1969.

Visiting back and forth among the Fritz, Peek and Rustin relatives means plenty of good food, family togetherness and another family tradition too: electric heat in all three homes. Why? From the ladies you hear, "I'm a modern grandmother, that's why"..."Electric heat's so clean it cuts my housework 'way down"... "With all that draft-free comfort, I don't worry about the children playing on the floor."

The menfolk like the economy of electric heat: "It's great not spending a penny on maintenance"..."That flameless cleanliness saves us plenty of work and dollars on redecorating." And everyone says they wouldn't have any other heat at any price!

There's a wide choice of electric heating systems. But if your present heating is forced-air, your new electric furnace installation is already half completed.

Get the facts. Call our nearest office for an accurate estimate on all costs of converting to and enjoying electric heat. Then you make the decision.
