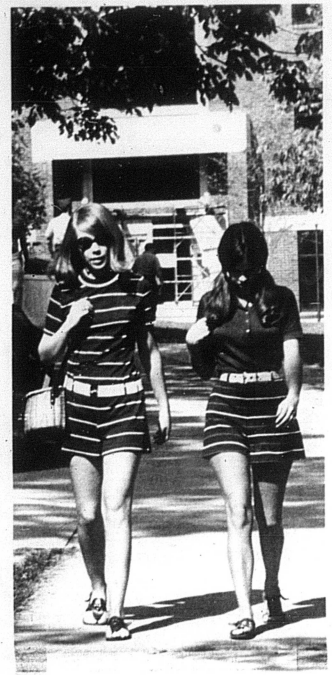
Water Temperature Versus Aquatic Life



A research study to determine the effects of water temperature on aquatic life in the Ohio River is being undertaken by 10 electric utility companies operating in Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia.

The study is being made to establish "base line data that will be helpful in determining what constructive measures can be taken which will make possible plans of the utility companies to meet an increasing public demand for electric energy without affecting adversely aquatic ecology and possibly even improving aquatic ecology." Two Kentucky companies, Louisville Gas & Electric Company and Kentucky Utilities Company, and the eight member firms of The Ohio Electric Utility Institute have retained Water Pollution Research and Applications, Inc., of Washington, D.C., to conduct the study. Louisville Gas & Electric Company has generating plants on the Ohio River and Kentucky Utilities Company is in the early stages of construction of its coal-fired generating station on the Ohio at Ghent in Carroll County.

It noted that although where has been much research and study in recent years regarding water temperatures and their effects, many questions remain unanswered. The research project started in June and is expected to be completed by the end of the year at a cost of $70,000 to $80,000.

(1) Assemble available information on temperature patterns in the Ohio River;

(2) Determine the species and numbers of fish present in the various temperature zones;

(3) Study conditions on the Ohio River above and below four major power plants which discharge "once-through" cooling water to the river. The power stations are: Sammis Station, Ohio Edison Company, at Stratton, OH; Beckjord Station, The Cincinnati Gas & Electric Company, near New Richmond, OH; the Kyger Creek Station of The Ohio Valley Electric Corp., near Gallipolis, OH; and Cane Run Station, of the Louisville Gas & Electric Co., near Louisville.

The study will relate water temperatures to the aquatic food chain from plankton (the floating or weakly swimming marine animal and plant life) to fish of various species.

The research project is being conducted by Dr. Gerald Lauer who is Assistant Director of the Institute of Environmental Medicine at the New York University Medical Center. He is being assisted by a research group consisting of an ecologist, a biologist and an instrument technician under the direction of David B. Boles as Research Director.

The member firms of The Ohio Electric Utility Institute are:

The Cincinnati Gas & Electric Company, The Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company, Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company, The Dayton Power and Light Company, Ohio Edison Company, Ohio Power Company, The Toledo

That Lizzie Ratliff really gets around. Her daughter, Frances Bretz, was home from Midway Junior College. She, Lizzie, and another daughter, Wanda, went to Xenia, OH over the weekend to visit Frank Ratliff and family.

Mertie Jones has been intertaining since she got her trailer situated. Her daughter and family, Mrs. Jean Spencer and husband, and three children from Mena, AR visited her. A friend, Edgar Smith from Georgetown visited and Mrs. Barbara Banta and children from Berea camn.

Harvey Ellison's daughter, Flora Mae, came from Paris and brought her mother-in-law from Lexington. Then a cousin came from Robertson County.

We really would like to have the names and addresses of all the friends and relatives from out-of-town who visit our home residents. If you would put your name and address on a piece of paper and leave in the room, you will get your name published in our news.

Young Men May Enlist In Army After Receiving Induction Notice

Indianapolis, IN, Sept. 21--Even after receiving his induction notice a young man still has the opportunity to enlist in the United States Army and, if qualified, select a guaranteed school assignment in the career field he wishes to serve.

A new Army program allows a man who has been "drafted" by Selective Service to enlist in the regular Army, by enlisting for three years rather than waiting for induction, he can be guaranteed training in several career fields available, such as: aircraft maintenance, Army security, automotive maintenance, Warrant Officer Flight Training, and wire maintenance, to name a few. All school assignments are in writing and guaranteed to the applicant before he is enlisted.

For more information on this program, contact Sergeant Paul Brewer at the local Army recruiting station located at 1008 Madison Ave., Covington, or phone 291-6743 for an appointment. He can explain the many enlistment opportunities and training options which are currently available to qualified young men.

Bicycle Group Sets Standards

American bicycle manufacturers have adopted a set of industry-wide safety and performance standards to assure consumers of a bicycle designed to meet today's transportation and recreation needs.

Members of the Bicycle Manufacturers Association have pledged to manufacture every model of their complete line of regular bikes to meet the new standards as a condition of continued membership in the association.

The U.S. Testing Company will certify that each model tested meets or exceeds the standards, no later than July 1, 1971.
