Traffic Deaths Remain Lower Than Last Year

Frankfort, Ky. (Special)—Kentucky's 1971 hunting seasons are all complete, with only the waterfowl and dove seasons yet to be set. All other seasons and bag limits have been determined for this year but, it is pointed out, the season for migratory birds, must await action by the Department of Interior.
Basically the seasons are the same as for last year as far as length is concerned with only the opening dates varying, but with practically the same number of hunting days per species and the same bag and possession limits.
The gun deer season this year will be open in all 120 counties. Opening dates is Nov. 13 and it will extend five days through Nov. 17, in 117 counties only bucks with legal game, while in three counties, Hart, Barren and Edmonson, deer of either sex will be legal. The bow and arrow season is open throughout the month of October and December and either sex deer is fair game. Hunters may bag but one deer, either by gun or bow and arrow, for the entire year.
Squirrel hunting kicks off the season, opening on Aug. 21 and continuing through Oct. 31. The second phase opens on Nov. 18 and continues through Dec. 31, the same season, with the exception of the opening day, as for last year. The bag limit again will be six and the possession limit 12.
The rabbit and quail seasons will open on the traditional third Thursday in November, this year Nov. 18, and will continue uninterrupted through January 31. The bag and possession limits will be six and 12 for rabbits and 10 and 20 for quail.
The grouse season will open on Nov. 18 and continue through Feb. 28 with a bag limit of four and a possession limit of eight.
