

Dr. Adron Doran To Receive Honor

MOREHEAD, Ky.—A lifetime of dedicated service to Kentucky will be nationally recognized next month when Dr. Adron Doran receives the Horatio Alger Award.

The 17-year president of Morehead State University joins a select group of about 200 Americans chosen as recipients since the award began 25 years ago. Past winners include such luminaries as Dwight D. Eisenhower, Billy another past recipient, will present Dr. Doran his award May 12 at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel in New York City, along with the nine other winners for 1971 who include news commentator Lowell Thomas and architect Edward Durrell Stone.

Horatio Alger Awards are sponsored by the American School and College Association, a non-profit corporation committed to education and American traditions of equality of opportunity, industry and achievement.

The awards were created to honor business and professional leaders who, in the spirit of Horatio Alger, have overcome humble circumstances to attain unquestioned success. Dr. Doran has risen from a two-room farmhouse in Western Kentucky to national prominence as a skilled and successful college administrator, but unlike most of the other Alger winners, his wealth is not computed in dollars.

"I have never believed that a man's life should consist of acquiring possessions but rather in taking advantage of the opportunities for personal growth and service to others," he said recently.

"The successful lives of the young people who have come under my influence are the greatest reward and the wealth of my holdings."

Obsessed by his dream of making Morehead State University a model of equal educational opportunity where individual worth and human dignity were the highest priorities, Dr. Doran's compassionate administration has led MSU more than 30 percents in dealing with ethnic minority groups. He received the Lincoln Award from the American Association for "Integration without fanfare."

His other campus achievements are legendary in Carlisle. From a tiny teachers college little known outside the state, he has molded MSU into a dynamic university reaching out to serve Eastern Kentucky, Appalachia and the nation.

Statistically, enrollment has increased almost 900 per cent in more than 2,000, upwards of $60 million has been expended in imaginative yet practical construction and the operating budget has mushroomed twentyfold to $16 million yearly.

Before assuming the MSU presidency in 1954, the energetic, friendly educator served Kentucky in the public schools as a coach, teacher and principal, in the state legislature, including a term as Speaker of the House and in the State Department of Education.

Active in civic and professional affairs on all levels, he has served with distinction on numerous national, regional and state committees and boards.

The Ky.-Press Assoc. named him "Kentucky of the Year" in 1959 and Gov. Edward T. Breathitt selected him for the "Distinguished Kentuckian Award" in 1966. Dr. Doran has served as a minister in the Church of Christ since 1928.

Public plaques are of secondary importance to this proud, fiercely competitive man whose greatest joys are the financial, moral, social and spiritual help given privately to students in need.

"I remember vividly how friends, including my teachers, helped me to help myself and what a positive influence they had on my life," he recalled.

For literally thousands of present and past MSU students, a true friend will be rewarded next month in New York City.
