

Nursing Home News

All your joys and griefs lie with the Lords, each falling near, when to Him you tell your weal, think the Carlsles near. McCutley's First Barbers, Leason LVIII. Elizabeth Corning and her sisters, Mr. Sterling and Morfield, motored to Portsmouth to visit a patient at St. Joseph Hospital in Iowa, residents of the home, she was visited one day by her brother Bruce Campbell and wife of Flemington, on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Melburn Farley and daughter of Bourbon County came. Mrs. Farley is Billie's sister. She and Melvin are teachers in Bourbon County. Mrs. Farley said she had seen her sister, but he's older than I even. There are no many prayers to be said anymore that there isn't always time to kneel.

Ernest French who celebrated his birthday recently is still rejoicing, showed us some of his presents, including a white shirt, good enough to preach in and then there was a necktie which he brought. Mrs. Gertrude Woodall said several of her children had been to see her, but hardly knew they were there, for it was just "hello" and "good bye". I agree with her, Saturday all three of my girls and six of the seven grandchildren, from three directions were home. We all talked at once, didn't get two words to say. I have a habit of calling long distance or writing a letter to tell them what I want them to know.

Don't know whether Linden Stewart or Mrs. Peiffer are getting an early or late start on decorating for Christmas. He has his fruit in a Christmas plate and she has a plate with her window. Truly there is nothing of greater importance than to learn to pray. "Heavly" pray.—Norman Vinson Peal.

Hardly got to see Barbara, but was busy, but by way of the grapevine, heard that this is Fayrene and Nicholas County romance in the fall.

Was nice to arrive at Mrs. Ellen Kenny's room early and chat with her. She said she was afraid that her daughter-in-law, Blanch, would have something happen to her, for she was just too wonderful to be true.

Sometimes things around the home get a little dull for children, but Leona White's two grand children, Regina Mullins and Jeff Parke were down but said they were so busy they hadn't had time to know whether they like town or
