John C. Watts

John C. Watts was a giant among men. No one knew this better than his staff, those who shared his career for more than two decades, or those who had the privilege to share it for only a few brief years.

When the bells rang for a vote on the Floor of the House of Representatives; he was there. When a constituent called; he was there. When his people brought him their problems; he did everything he could to lift their burden. He worked tirelessly to fulfill the hopes, aspirations and ambitions of his people.

The Chaplain of the House of Representatives, the Reverend Edward G. Latch, said at the funeral: "John Watts was born in Kentucky. He grew to manhood in Kentucky. He was educated in Kentucky. He was married in Kentucky. He steadfastly represented Kentucky in the United States Congress for more than two decades. And, he came home to Kentucky to die. May he rest in peace in his beloved Kentucky. His spirit and all he stood for, live on."

All who knew John Watts were awed by the paradox of the man. His greatness, yet humility. His strength, yet gentleness. His courage, yet compassion for the suffering of his fellow man. His loyalty, yet bravery to speak out against any wrong.

The hundreds of letters which flooded the offfice after his death bear eloquent testimonial how John Watts' life touched all who had known him--from his former law professor at the Univeralty of Kentucky, to the President of the United States.

No man ever has more faithfully, loyally and steadfastly represented his constituency and the land which sent him to Congress than John Watts. Of him it truly can be said: "He represented his people and his District." If one believes the democratic process can work; its success is symbolized in the life of John C. Watts.

Do You Charge?

If You Charge, We Charge!

This is the policy of most of this country's leading newspapers. It is also the policy of this newspaper because we feel it is fair and necessary.

If you charge for admissions to your event, newspaper people believe the newspaper should be paid for the event's advertising.

Any event which is of sufficient interest to need publicity, and at which a charge is made, in the opinion of newspaper people, is an event which can, and should, pay its own way.

Suppers, sales, instruction classes, entertainments or public fund-raising events for benefits or not for benefits -- must be carried as advertisements.

We welcome all announcements and other advertising of public events. Our standard rate applies.

Nicholas Co. fights to 56-55 victory over Tollesboro Friday

by Rob Lane

About this time every year, each red-blooded Kentuckian develepses some sort of mania, which often can grow in epidemic proportions. Oddly enough this disease coincides with the basketball season. Prominent symptons include screaming, cursing, ungentlemanly gestures, laughter and cheering.

Nicholas County is not immune to this disease and the degree to which Nicholas County is infected was shown last Friday night at the Bluejacket-Tollesboro game, when Nicholas County had to fight hard for the slim lead and one point victory of 56-55.

The Tollesboro Wildcats gave the Jackets a run for the money. The entire game was neck and neck with Nicholas County leading, at the most, with only eleven points.

Owen Barnes was Nicholas County's high point man in the game. He racked up eight field goals and one free throw for a total of 17 points. Reese Smoot made four field goals and two free throws for 10 points. Gerald Hatton scored nine points and Rex Boyd and Doug Fryman scored eight each.

The Jackets had primarily two trouble spots: free throws and personal fouls. The team made 10 out of 25 free throws for a somewhat disappointing 40 percent. Tollesboro hit 25 out of 34 free throws for 74 per cent.

Personal fouls put four strategic players out of action during the game: Gerald Hatton, Owen Barnes, Doug Jones and Rex Boyd.

The Jackets rebounds were impressive. They made 13 offensive and 30 defensive rebounds with Barnes and Smoot as leading rebounders.

Tomorrow night the team will travel to Millersburg Military Institute for their first away game.

Gypsies have supplied the background music for much of Hungarian history since the 15th century. Gypsy melodies helped recruit the army, and for centuries violinists led troops into battle, National Geographic says.
