Many of Nicholas County one-room schools were located near a church. Whenever there was a funeral at the church, we got out of school to attend. The teacher marched us right up to the church and we could sit through the service. If we acted real nice, we could attend the next funeral. Recital services were always something to look forward to. We had P.T.A. maybe once a month. Many times our mothers would come to the school and bring their sewing, knitting or any kind of needlework and spend the afternoon. If there were a graveyard near the church or school, we were sometimes allowed to go in it and look around, but we were never allowed to step.
