Three Cheers For The Fourth, Freedom Did Not Come Easy

America is the only leader the free world has. Our freedom did not come easy. Thousands of our founding fathers fought and died for it. Countless thousands more died for the Union in the Civil War. Other hundreds of thousands of our finest men died in defense of freedom in World War I and World War II. People who sit back snugly and say nothing was accomplished by these wars, or that we could have had freedom without fighting for it, are out of touch with reality and are verch of a sense of history.

Eleven years ago, on July 4, 1961, Hawaii became the 50th star in our flag. The first star was added to the original 13 on December 17, 1787, when Delaware became the 1st State admitted to the Union.

The flag itself was designed, not by Betty Ross as legend would have it, but by Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Lynch and Benjamin Harrison, who were appointed by the Continental Congress to come up with some ideas.

On June 14, 1777, Congress decided the flag should have 13 stripes, with 13 stars in the field of blue. The stars are five-pointed to represent the stars of Scythemia. The white, said the Continental Congress, stands for purity and innocence; the red stands for hardness and valor; the blue represents justice, vigilance and perseverance. The colors were first used by the colonies in 1737.

The flag and the pledge of allegiance eloquently express the fact that we are one nation under the God, that we are a Republic guaranteeing liberty and justice to everyone.

We must preserve our patriotism and our independence in a hostile world. If the free world itself is to keep its freedom, if we do keep our freedom, it will gradually spread behind the Iron Curtains of the non-free world.

As millions of war enthusiasts trek to rivers and lakes to escape summer's heat, so do thieves whose business it is to go where the action is: the Insurance Information Institute notes.

An open parking lot is the closest thing we have in the States that is not a car wash. And auto owners who dread returning to an oven-like car often leave windows open, unwittingly inviting thieves to help themselves.

Most barbers and booters work as little with them as possible by the water, so owners who leave their car open also is likely to become a pedestrian.

Families are advised to take as few valuables on the trip as possible. Keep personal property in the trunk of the car out of sight. The professional thief is deterred only momentarily by a locked glove compartment, so cash, watches and jewelry should either be left at home or kept with you.

Don't let your recreation be spoiled by the pilferer who thrives on the carelessness of honest people. Hot or not, lock your car at all times and the carborner will be forced to ply his trade elsewhere. The motorist who leaves his car open also is likely to become a pedestrian.

According to Peyton Hoge III, the Society's president, "the so-called common or Class C fireworks are responsible for a number of eye and other injuries, with the sparkler accounting for more property damage from fires than any other type." The fact that these items can be obtained legally in Kentucky makes the problem a serious one.

Among those fireworks identified as Class C are small firecrackers, sparklers, fountains, roman candles, small rockets and similar articles.

The Society makes a special appeal to parents to see that children are not permitted to use fireworks, and are kept away from anyone who is using them. It is difficult for children to understand the dangers in anything they view as fun, so it is up to adults to take the complete responsibility.

Celebrate the Fourth of July, all means, says the Society, but celebrate it safely--without fireworks.

That Grand Old Flag
It's been taking a lot of abuse, lately. We're sorry that some people who are dissatisfied with some of the things happening in this country see fit to take out their displeasure on the Stars and Stripes. Sure, we've got lots of problems . . . But the flag stands for an ideal that we all believe in. Let's keep that ideal before us . . . let's fly the flag proudly!
