

Nursing Home News

Let others crowd the giddy court of mirth and revelry. The simple joys that Nature yields are dearer far to us—Robert Tanshill
Herman Coopers was all smiles Sunday School for the first time since December, said Ray Flora came for him and brought him back.
Roy Sease was smiling, too, said his son, Joe, who had been in a Lexington hospital, was now home and doing right well.
Mrs. Eunice Hatton, who is a new resident, was enjoying the company of her granddaughter, Emma Baker and her three children, Phillip, Todd and Tonya, all of Paris.
Vester Mann is another new patient. He has been in the hospital for a while. He's quite popular for he has lots of company. His son, Billy, came from Millerburg. Then Albert Sexton, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Livingston and Little Krays.

Moorefield Homemakers
The Moorefield Homemakers met March 4 at the home of Mrs. Carrie Hammons, Mrs. J. August Jacobs as co-hostesses.
Mrs. Hammons gave the devotional. Roll call was answered with 14 members being present.
Mrs. Howard Irvin gave an interesting topic, "Collections."
Mrs. Joe Smart read "Importance of Love," Mrs. Elgin Clark discussed "Foliation of Mountains," and "Stretching the Food Dollar."
Mrs. W. J. Clark gave a report on the knitting class she is attending.
Three of our members, Mrs. Glenn Harding, Mrs. Hanson Eltinger and Mrs. H.S. Vice plan to attend the state Homemakers meeting.

It was announced that the annual county-wide Homemakers meeting will be April 30, 6:30 p.m., at the Baptist Church with a pot luck supper.
After the meeting adjourned, delicious refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held on April 8 with Mrs. Mirand Wilson serving as co-hostess.

new patient. She is rooming with Miss Cordia Bell, and they are really having a good time. Mrs. Maude and she were chatting with Mrs. Maude's niece, Frances Sue Chandler.
"Was about to forget to say the 'Sight and Chew Club' had a new member, 'Honey' Earlywine. They could with any content in the field. Tony Dodson says it seems like to say: 'waded one lady to be careful not to kill his old friend and neighbor, Tom Jackson.' Said the pastor, 'I can't pay you, doc, I slowed down like you did me and lost my job.' Mrs. and Mrs. George Bell of Lexington visited Mrs. Bell's aunt, Mrs. Maude Hamilton and cousin, Miss Cordia Bell on Sunday.
John Barton is a new patient. He's from the Pleasant Valley section.
J.F. Barbee had been entertaining all day Sunday, Roy came from Washington, along with him came his nephew, Jake Darnell. He is also from Washington. On Sunday morning Avery came and a friend, "Bud" Hammonds, they were from Cowan.
Mrs. Grace Cleaver isn't talking much now but said if she had done anything had she didn't know it.

If you are poor, work. If you are rich, continue working. If you are burdened with seemingly unfair responsibilities, work. If you are happy, keep right on working. Idle-ness gives room for doubts and fears. No matter what ails you, work. It is the greatest remedy available for both mental and physical afflictions."—This reminds me of the philosophy of my father, the late R.H. Smith.

one of them is You! Minds are like parachutes—they only function when open.
Madeline Anderson of Mt. Sterling, came to see her grandfather, Vester Mann on Sunday.
The weekly worship service was given Sunday afternoon by Rev. James Norwood of the United Methodist Church. Mrs. Andrew Gray was the leader. Several hymns were sung.
Rev. Norwood read a few verses of scripture and instructed us to call on Jesus for help to renew our strength. There were prayers by Mr. Heizer, Rev. Norwood, and Mrs. Virginia Donovan.
Virginia Wells hasn't started wearing the pants suit, but she's wearing a beautiful new white uniform, the latest style. It really does something for Virginia, too. Well, it's man's greatest function. He is nothing, he can do nothing, he can achieve nothing, fulfill nothing, without working.

AGREE OR NOT

A minimum number of employees for the session, the cost sounds high to taxpayers.
A quick check of the new House districts indicates that the urban areas have a good opportunity to control the new districts. Jefferson County has 21 full seats and shares another with a portion of Harlan County next door.
The others that are almost sure to have urban leanings bring the total to 45 out of 100 in the House. Here are the other districts that can be considered urban: Fayette, 3; Northern Kentucky, 5; Boyd County, 2; Warren County, 2; Christian County, 2; although in rural; Henderson County, 1; 2 in Giles County, 2; McCreary County, 2; Frankfort 1; and Harlan County, 2.
Two more cities, Hopkinsville and Henderson, passed the 20,000 population mark in the 1970 census and are now eligible for second class status.
The legislature usually takes no action in reclassifying cities. Lexington made preparation in the 1970 Legislature to achieve first class status.
The probability is high that there will be five or six more from larger towns that will join the larger cities in the state. A strictly urban vote should lean toward the urban areas for only two more votes are needed in the Senate for a majority.
Concensus here seems to be that the reapportionment will not stand as so high—11.97 per cent in the Senate and above 12 per cent in the House. The five per cent vote plan was scrapped early, and the reapportionment was figured on political lines and a probia against splitting counties.
If the court does throw out the redistricting plan, it is likely the legislature will be ordered to do the job since the 1972 session of the court will do it.
A fair assessment of the special session, if they accomplished anything material, is that the session prepared the people for a reapportionment in 1972 that adheres to the court's demand of one man, one vote.
Conservationists and others fighting pollution in Kentucky gained a strong ally last week when Kentucky's $500-million highway construction industries began their campaign to clean up the air and water around their plants and working places.
The new green bumper sticker you'll see on many cars carries this message: "We Care About Kentucky."
Although the plan wasn't revealed to the public until last week, word has gotten around in the industry and other states have been making inquiries about it, and will be watching with interest the effect it has in Kentucky.
