Two Appear Before Council

Two Carlisle business people appeared before City Council's regular meeting Monday night in concern of the new trash pickup rates of their businesses in Carlisle.

R.L. Talbert, of Ratliff Brothers Company, said their trash pickup rates had been increased 500 per cent in the past month and the city had not collected their trash for 18 years. Council agreed to set up a weekly schedule for the company's trash pickup.

Mayor William Power presented a proposal by Jefferson Barnett of Williamsburg, to establish pickup routes in Carlisle, Paris, Millersburg and Sharpsburg. Barnett had told Mayor Power that he would obtain land for a sanitary landfill in this area if those cities would agree to contract trash pickups to him.

Charles Davis of Dorsey Avenue, appeared before Council and said that residents on one side of his street had agreed to bear the expense of installing new curbing and asked the city to help in having the State Highway Department repave the street. Council decided to have the street blacktopped if the state refused the responsibility.

Bobby Crockett asked the city to install proper drainage controls from Market Street to Dorsey Street so he could blacktop his parking lot.

After review of building permits, Councilman Eugene Kelly reported that residents he informed that they had to have permits to make any structural changes. He reminded Council that the city had legal rights to halt any construction without proper permits.

Miss Sara Swango Elected To State 4H Agents Group

"There's too little optimism and positive thinking in this country today," Dr. Oddvar Berg, an Alabama minister, told those attending the Kentucky 4-H Agents Conference at Mammoth Cave National Park recently.

Berg, who was final speaker at the event, went on to tell the 140 Extension workers at the conference that they had a unique opportunity to emphasize the good things about U. S. life to the Kentucky youth with whom they work.

New Association officers also elected during the meeting were: president—William Moss, Paducah; first vice president—Mrs. Jo Neida Cole, Richmond; second vice president—Gordon Bacon, Somerset; and secretary-treasurer—Miss Sara Swango, Carlisle.

Attending the conference were most of the state's full-time Extension youth workers as well as some of the other Extension agents who work with 4-H in addition to their responsibilities in other program areas of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Cooperative Extension Service.

The program theme, "Working Together for a Dynamic Educational Impact," referred to teaming up together in agriculture, home economics, and development agents in local educational programs. Assistant Directors of Extension Condon Feltner (4-H), S. H. Phillips (agriculture), and Mike Duff (development), and Miss Wilma Vandiver, representing the Assistant Director of Extension for Home Economics, talked to the group about team efforts for effective Extension programs.

Other speakers were T.P. Head, Assistant to the Dean of UK College of Agriculture, whose topic was "Administration and the Team Spirit," and Dr. John Robertson, Associate Director of Instruction, UK College of Agriculture, who discussed "Teamwork and Professionalism."

Also part of the program were discussion sessions on the team approach and reports on new approaches being used in Kentucky 4-H work.

Meeting during the conference was the Kentucky Association of Extension 4-H Youth Agents. The Association has the third largest membership of any similar organization in the nation, according to an announcement made during the meeting. The Association's 70 members include most of Kentucky's youth agents and some of the other Extension workers in the state.

The Association board also announced plans to present awards to four Kentucky newspapers—two daily and two weekly newspapers—for their service to 4-H programs. Recipients will be selected on the basis of 1971-72 activities with the awards to be presented next summer.

Now in its fourth year, the Association promotes the recognition of Cooperative Extension Service youth work as a profession; encourages professional improvement of the members; provision for the exchange of ideas, methods and techniques among those working with Extension 4-H and other youth programs in the state; and promotes the educational programs of the University of Kentucky.

4H Clean-Up Is May 22

"It's Our Environment Too!" and 4-Hers are going to prove this fact on May 22 when all school 4-H clubs will be participating in a county-wide Clean-Up Day, sponsored by the Carlisle Community Woman's Club.

Between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m., 4-H members and leaders will be picking up roadside litter and delivering it to the Nicholas County Courthouse Station. Parking spaces will be reserved for purposes of transferring the litter to the county dump truck to be deposited at the county land-fill. 4-H members must collect litter in plastic trash bags which will be donated by the Woman's Club.

The Carlisle Community Woman's Club will be awarding prizes to the 4-H club and to the two individual club members collecting the most bags of litter. 4-H leaders and members of the Woman's Club will be accompanying these young people, who will be wearing green "It's Our Environment Too!" pollution buttons.

Litter cost Kentuckians over $14 million in 1960 and this is an ever-increasing cost. Follow the example of these 4-Hers—every day; this will be the first step in finding a cure for litterbug!
