Peasures properly limed and fertilized can add as much to the productivity of a farm as income as follows: 12,000 acres can be cultivated. This leaves over 110,000 acres of land available for growing crops. Fall applied lime, phosphate and potash not only will increase fall and winter production, but will also take care of production needs next spring and summer. Overwinter leaching of lime, phosphate and potash is not a problem in this area. Fall soil testing and fertilization is increasing. This is a good sign. The ground is in better condition to run the equipment over, fertilizer dealers are not so rushed as they are in the spring and it gets the job out of the way of other important farm chores in the spring.

Danger of pesticides around children cited

A survey of Kentucky hospitals shows dangerous pesticides are becoming a serious cause of home accidents, especially for children. The largest group of pesticide poisonings involved children ages one to five, Moore said. This age group accounted for 72 of 131 cases cited in the survey. Moore blamed much of the problem on improper storage and labeling of pesticides and improper use. He said the Health Department plans to hire a full-time toxicologist to study pesticide, drug and other exposure problems. Moore added that 28 states, including Kentucky, already have some restrictions on pesticide use but that the trend is toward tighter controls.

The Wage-Price Freeze

Q—Will the rulings of the Cost of Living Council that were issued during the freeze still be in effect after Nov. 13?

A—The rulings of the Cost of Living Council on wages and prices will remain in effect until they are changed or altered by the Pay Board or Price Commission.

Q—I want to sell my motorcycle. I have no idea what its price is during the month prior to Aug. 15. What should I do?

A—Inquire locally as to what comparable motorcycles sold for during the period of July 15-Aug. 15. Note down and retain these facts for your own records before selling.

Q—I know that, if certain criteria are met, an increase in rent can be charged for property which undergoes substantial capital improvement, but what is meant by "capital improvement"?

A—Capital improvements increase the value of the property, prolong its life, or make it adaptable to a different use. Some examples are new electric wiring, a new roof, new floors, new plumbing, lighting improvements, air conditioning, new sidewalks, fire escapes, elevators, etc. On the other hand, ordinary maintenance and repairs, such as patching and repainting floors, repainting the inside and outside of a building, repairing roofs and gutters, mending

Questions and Answers

Q—Are advance ticket sales for sporting events occurring during the freeze covered by the President's order?

A—Yes.

Q—Can insurance rates be increased during the freeze?

A—No. The freeze applies to insurance rates. However, if a rate increase was announced before August 15 and a substantial number of transactions occurred at the increased rate, the increase becomes the established rate. No additional rate increases are permitted during the freeze.

Q—My employer fired me on a probationary basis. The establishment of the freeze is to increase wage rates at the end of the probationary period. My probationary period ends in two weeks. Can I still receive a wage increase?

A—Yes. The probationary period is similar to an apprenticeship or learners' program and the wage increase may be granted if the probationary period for the job does not exceed three months.

A—Yes. A landlord is in violation of the freeze if he attempts to evict a tenant for refusal to pay rent in excess of the ceiling rent applicable to his rental apartment of house.

A tenant threatened with eviction over an increase in rent during the freeze should immediately consult the Internal Revenue Service. The IRS has 300 offices throughout the country to investigate complaints and provide information about the freeze.

COMMISSIONER MILLER on Kentucky

Better than 55 percent of Kentucky's farm income comes from the sale of livestock and livestock products, making livestock an important part of our agricultural economy.

Dedication of the new one million dollar general Kentucky Animal Disease Laboratory at Lexington marks an important step in our livestock health program to serve this growing industry. The facilities at this lab will be operated in conjunction with the lab which has been in operation at Hopkinsville since 1968.

Getting this lab into operation is an achievement for hundreds of Kentuckians who have worked for a number of years to make these facilities a reality. Since it started operating, the Hopkinsville lab has provided services worth millions of dollars to our livestock industry.

Moreover, because the lab has been able to diagnose diseases which pose a threat to human health, there has been a major contribution to the welfare of non-farmers or non-livestock owners. Services of both lab units are free to the people of Kentucky, including pet owners.

And, in speaking of our livestock health program, I am pleased to report that the program which we have today, there are only 85 herds of cattle known to be infected with brucellosis, compared to 36 herds three years ago. Then, of course, Kentucky was designated as a "hog cholerera free" state nearly one year ago, a milestone for the swine industry.

All told, I feel that by working with the people and cooperating with other agencies, the Department of Agriculture has made a tremendous contribution not only to the agricultural segment of our state, but to the Commonwealth in general.

board as one example and many others. In my example, I make which I point out one factor, but to relate to many, it seems that we have people who enter some position of this nature and they stay there for years. This is not democratic in my belief, because when one person is appointed again and again and no other choice is given this leaves a great deal to be desired by the democratic process.

One point I wish to make is this, we should set up a different system. For example, a leader should not be able to succeed himself, and terms of office should be shorter.

This would encourage new points of view, and bring in people from different walks of life. We must encourage new ideas or we will remain in the past. We can learn from the past but we must look to the future.

Sincerely,
Allen Clay Stone
