German pesticides controls could present problems for tobacco growers

Strict tolerance on pesticides residues which the German government will begin enforcing on tobacco, fruits and vegetables on January 1, 1973, could mean a new problem for growers of American tobacco, including those in the U.S.A.
R. C. Dicko, Travis, vice president for exports, Hurley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association, is expected to be "stricter" and, as policy, could spread throughout Europe.
Hurley tobacco growers, therefore, should avoid any use of unauthorized chemicals and must realize that changes in some cultural practices will be necessary.

Clean air group to meet Saturday
The Kentucky Coalition for Clean Air, a citizens' group representing various agencies with environmental concern, will sponsor a "Citizens' Workshop" on state and county regulations designed to meet both federal, state and county air quality standards.
This workshop is designed to provide Kentucky citizens with an opportunity to learn whether the regulations being proposed are adequate enough to meet both federal, state and local ambient air quality standards.
The workshop will be held Saturday, Nov. 20, from 9:00 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. in the second floor auditorium of the Louisville Convention Center, 525 East Walnut Street, at the corner of Walnut and Army Plaza in downtown Louisville, Ky.
All persons interested in Kentucky's Air Quality are urged to attend.

Travis, a cigarette manufacturing expert and a burley grower himself in Shelby County, Ky., went to Germany to determine the extent of the regulations and he reported to directors of the Burley Co-Op that concern with pesticides is a major topic of discussion among the tobacco trade in Europe.
T.D.E. Lindane and other chemicals will be extremely low.
(Burley growers already must certify that they are not using DDT, TDE or other unauthorized chemicals on their crops or the burley will be ineligible for price supports.)
Travis also stressed that "in addition to these pesticide limitations, the German manufacturing companies also are causing a wary eye at acetic-bonding chemicals such as 1911 30. They will test tobacco purchased and any found to contain any excessive amounts of residues of such chemicals as 1911 will be rejected."
The Burley Co-Op official cited information from German cigarette manufacturers which emphasized that "although the force of the maximum quantities (tolerances) will come into effect on January 1, 1973, the industry is compelled to consider the regulations of this decree today because tobacco to be brought this year will be partly stored until after January 1, 1973."
"The limitations," Travis said, "were not developed by the German tobacco industry or designed for tobacco alone but were devised by the German Ministry of Health and also will apply to fruits and vegetables."
The German manufacturers say, however, that they have been making somewhat heavier purchases of tobacco from producers in Central and South America, where such pesticides are not used, Travis said.
He quoted from a letter from one German manufacturer, which said: "In case tobacco is not correspond to the regulations of maximum quantities (tolerances), the buyer will run the risk that the tobacco will be rejected."
For the accomplishment of regulations, it will be necessary to require a certificate for each regulation, Travis said, stressing that these plant products, "correspond with regulations."
"We refer to ourselves," the letter continued, "as a refuse a consignment and place the tobacco in the seller's disposal until once the chemical analysis results in an over-shipment."
West Germany is the largest purchaser of U. S. burley tobacco, with approximately 1 million pounds, or more, a year. Italy, Sweden, Switzerland, Denmark, The Netherlands and Belgium also

Stone, Vaughn attend S.S. Va. Coop meet
Joe Allen Stone of Carlisle represented Southern States Cooperative members in the Carlisle area at the association's 48th annual stockholders meeting held in Richmond, Va., Nov. 11-12.
Also attending the session was Franklin Bill Vaughn Jr., manager of the S.S. Carlisle Cooperative, local Southern States representative. They heard General Manager W. T. Steele Jr., report to the 1500 delegates, guests and employees who attended the session that the cooperative's total volume for the fiscal year ended last June 30, hit $151,361,000, an increase of 7.25 over the previous year.
Steele told the group that net savings for the cooperative reached $4,079,000 - just under last year's figure - after deducting taxes. Savings were also owed to pay dividends to stock and a 1% patronage refund. In addition, $1,000,000 was added to reserves.

GRID AWARDS PRESENTED
Coach Paul Hampton presented the 1971 football awards at the annual banquet at the Rotary Club on Thursday, Nov. 18. DEMOCRATS ARE STILL SMILING!

Bill Curlin Jr., Democratic Congressional nominee, converses with a friend in the Mercury office. Mr. Curlin had just noted that he was a tobacco farmer - Mercury picture.

Curlin campaigns here

Bill Curlin Jr., Democratic Congressional nominee, brought his campaign to Nicholas County Monday, campaigning in downtown Carlisle. Curlin, the unanimous choice of the Sixth District convention to choose a nominee for the vacant seat of the late John C. Watta, was elected to the State Legislature in 1968 and now serves as Chairman of the powerful House Committee on Revenue and Appropriations. In 1970 he was voted outstanding member of that year's election by the Capitol Press Corps.
The Franklin County Democrat pledged to wage a spirited campaign in the short time left until the Dec. 4 special election and to "take my campaign to the people in every county of this district." Noting his legislative experience and family with the district as a resident all of his adult life.

Nutter transfers to Reserve, runs for Congressional seat

Colonel Ray Nutter returned to his native Sixth District this morning "ready to work and win" the Sixth District Congressional race for the unexpired term.
Lt. Colonel Nutter yesterday transferred from the active Army to the Army Reserve where he will retain his rank of Lt. Colonel. This transfer to the Reserve permits Nutter to run for public office and yet retain his military benefits at the retirement age of 60.
"I have transferred from the active Army so that I may serve my country, my state, and my district as a Congressman," Nutter has served as the Army Liaison Officer with Congress ever since to solve the problems of America's workingmen.
One of Nutter's final military duties was to accompany the body of his friend, the late Congressman John Watta, from Washington to his resting place in Jessamine County.
