1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return — Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q) Is money given a maid for carfare subject to Social Security tax?

A) Yes, the social security tax applies to the total cash paid a household employee, even though some is paid for transportation.

Tax payments for July, August and September are due November 1. Any person who has paid $50 or more cash wages in a calendar quarter to an employee for household services must file a return using Form 942, Employer's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees.

Q) My wife is expecting a baby in November. What medical expenses can I deduct when I file my return next year?

A) All of the following would be deductible as medical expenses if the total exceeds three percent of income: payments made this year to physicians, surgeons, etc. for medical services, and payments made for hospital services, medicines and drugs, meals and lodging in the hospital and travel to and from the hospital and the obstetrician's office. However, only the expenses you paid and for which you were not reimbursed are deductible. Some items not deductible are maternity clothes and the costs of diaper service.

Also, don't forget the exemption for your new dependent.

Q) Is it true that the standard deduction has been increased?

A) Yes. When you file your return next year, the percentage standard deduction will be 13% of adjusted gross income up to a $1,500 maximum—up from 10 percent and a $1,000 maximum for 1970. Of course, if the low income allowance is larger, it would be allowed instead.

Q) My mother is the beneficiary of my father's life insurance policy. Would these benefits be taxable to her?

A) Generally, life insurance benefits that are paid in a lump sum because of death are not taxable. If benefits are paid in installments, however, interest in excess of $1,000 each year is taxable to the widow.

Details on insurance benefits may be found in Publication 525, Taxable Income and Non-Taxable Income. Send a postcard to your IRS District office for a free copy.

Q) Where can I get a W-4 Form to increase my withholding and keep from owing money when I file my return next year?

A) The payroll department where you work should have withholding exemption certificates (Form W-4). But you can also get one by contacting your local IRS office.

An employee who wants to change his withholding can fill out this form and have more tax withheld by claiming fewer exemptions. If more withholding is necessary, he can then ask to have additional amounts of money withheld.

Three Years Left To Use G. I. Bill

Many eligible veterans now have less than three years remaining to use their educational benefits under the current G.I. Bill, J.C. Ratliff, Director, Louisville Regional Office, Veterans Administration, said that most veterans with service between Jan. 31, 1955 and June 1, 1966 are eligible for schooling but their cut-off date is May 31, 1974.

He emphasized that the veteran's educational program must be completed by the cut-off date. Some veterans in this category believe they have until 1974 to begin school but the law states otherwise.

Veterans discharged later than June 1, 1966 will have a proportionally longer time to complete schooling. The general rule for establishing a cut-off date is eight years from the date of discharge, Ratliff explained. Since educational benefits did not become available under the new law until June 1, 1966, however, the eight year period begins on that date for those discharged before then.

To be eligible for educational training, veterans must have a discharge or release from active service under conditions other than dishonorable. Veterans must have served continuously for 181 days or more, any part of it after Jan. 31, 1955. Active duty for training purposes may not be counted and special eligibility conditions apply to veterans released from service because of a service-connected disability.

For further information contact the nearest VA office or your local veterans service organization representatives.
