

'Tell it like it is', Kroger says

Kroger Food Stores are "telling it like it is" when it comes to ground beef.

James A. LeRoy, vice president of the Louisville Division of Kroger Food Stores, has announced that the company has been notified by the U.S. Department of Agriculture that ground beef sold in its stores in this area.

"The information and quality program, most comprehensive in the country, was introduced to shoppers in Louisville on Monday, Aug. 21. Signs went up that day in each of the local divisions' 74 Kroger supermarkets in Kentucky and western Indiana telling customers exactly what the various labels on ground beef packages represent, both as to ingredients and as to fat content.

"We know that today's consumers want to know more about the

Club hosts Spanish visitor

Miss Carmen Garay of Bilbao, Spain visited in Carlisle Sunday and Monday, Aug. 13 and 14. She was invited to Carlisle by the Carlisle Board, ground only in the beef round and with a diet-pleasant 14 percent fat average.

"Some fat is desirable in ground beef products because it is the primary contributor to flavor and juiciness."

"This new program is only made possible through the utilization of Kroger's modern meat plant in Jeffersonville," Mr. LeRoy said, noting that the plant provides the more sophisticated equipment, methods and technology necessary to control and measure fat content.

"We have delayed announcement of this new program until the technology became available which will allow quick, accurate pin-pointing of fat measurements and better control of ingredients," he explained.

The new system being used by Kroger and some leading meat packers provides "as fine a control as is possible today." The new electronic analyzing machine which is about the size of a desk, gives an instantaneous reading of the fat content of a 13-pound sample. Samples are first taken of the beef ingredients before grinding. In order to measure the amount of fat in the ingredients and further examples for audit are taken during and after grinding. The ingredients (even lean beef contains some internal fat marbling which may not be evident to the eye) and to insure proper formulation.

Readings of the fat content of the ground beef mixture also are taken during and after grinding. Some packages of ground beef (the round "chub" pack) are completely prepared and packed at the USA-inspected meat plant. Because of the strictly-controlled sanitation and refrigeration, the fact that these packages are sealed from the air until the shopper opens them at home, an extra-high level of quality is maintained. These "flavor seals" packages come in one, three and five-pound sizes.

Mrs. Betty Lynn Conrad, assistant principal at Nicholas County Elementary, shows Miss Carmen Garay of Spain the non-graded school. Miss Garay said Spain is far behind in non-graded education.
