

Revenue sharing, or debt sharing?

Among the "achievements" of the late, non-lamented 93rd Congress was passage of the so-called "Revenue Sharing" bill. Immediately thereafter the Washington money managers quickly dispatched computerized news releases to every part of the nation, reporting how much "revenue" would be passed on by the Federal Government to the various state and county cities, counties and townships. In California, for example, the amounts promised ran all the way from $10,116 for Villa Park City in Orange County to $35,442,819.60 for the city of Los Angeles. It all looks good on paper.

There is only one very slight, altogether minor problem: The Federal Government has no revenue to share. According to a New York investment house (Anderson & Co.), the federal budget for fiscal 1973 will have a super-colossal $3 billion deficit; or, to spell it out — $3,000,000,000. In other words, Congress has already appropriated...
