Kay's Kitchen -- By Kay Fisher

SCRAPPLE

1 pound lean pork
1 quart water
1 1/2 cups corn meal
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon finely chopped celery leaves (optional)
1/2 cup chopped parsley
1/2 teaspoon sage
1 egg, beaten
cracker crumbs or corn meal
bacon drippings

Simmer meat in water until tender. Remove meat, cool and grind. Measure remaining liquid and add enough water to make one quart. Bring broth to a boil and add corn meal slowly, stirring constantly until thick. Add seasonings and meat.

Pour mixture into loaf pan rinsed in water and chill until set. Slice, dip in beaten egg, then in cracker crumbs or corn meal. Brown in bacon drippings.

In purchasing the meat, you want fresh pork cut into cubes with little or no fat. I'm sure your butcher will be glad to do this for you. It is usually taken from an inexpensive cut of pork, so cook slowly for tenderness even though you are going to grind it.

If you are tired of potatoes the same old way, try this.

BAKED MASHED POTATOES

3 tablespoons of melted butter or margarine
2 cups mashed potatoes
2 eggs
1 cup condensed milk
salt to taste

Beat melted butter into mashed potatoes until creamy and smooth. Beat eggs until they are light and lemon colored. Add to potato mixture. Then add milk and beat well. Salt to taste. Butter a 1 quart casserole; pour in potato mixture and bake at 325 degrees for 50 minutes or until puffed and light brown. Serve at once.

Since this takes awhile to cook, it does give you a chance to get the rest of your meal ready, so this dish can be served immediately.

When preparing regular mashed potatoes, cook more than you need so you will have enough left to fix this dish. Preparation time will be only minutes.

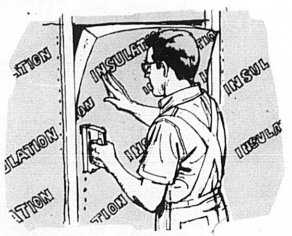
America's Comfort Team—Electric Heating and Proper Insulation



Electric heating is the cleanest, most efficient way to keep your home warm and comfortable in the winter. And you can make it even more efficient and even save money by making sure your home is properly insulated.

Proper insulation of ceilings, walls and floors prevents heat loss. Storm doors and windows prevent escaping heat while weather stripping of windows and doors help keep the cold drafts away. It's important that all doors and windows fit tightly.

Proper insulation is a good investment that returns benefits in clean, 100% efficient electric heat. Ask your Rural Electric System to help you make certain your home is insulated properly for comfort as well as economy.

SUPENDED ACTION

Cooked sausage within fat limits

Atlanta, Ga.--The U.S. Consumer and Marketing Service has announced that during 1971 laboratory analyses showed 97.9 per cent of cooked sausage samples were in compliance with the fat content of the 12,105 samples analyzed specifically for fat during 1971 was 27.9 per cent. During 1970 the average was 28.0 per cent for 13,130 samples.

These tests were made as part of the federal meat inspection program's continual check on plant production procedures and inspection controls over the composition of cooked sausages, such as frankfurters and bologna. A 30 per cent fat limit in these products became effective in October, 1969.

C&MS also announced figures for the fourth quarter of 1971. These analyses showed that 97.7 per cent of the cooked sausage samples were in compliance with the 30 per cent limit during the October-December period. The average fat content of the 2,346 samples tested specifically for fat during the period was 28.2 per cent. This compares with 27.9 per cent during the July-September, 1971 quarter.

coal of five per cent or 30 cents a ton, whichever is greater.

Coal producers seemed to build a good case for themselves at a public hearing in the Senate Chamber that lasted until 6 p.m.

They were successful in challenging a study made by two University of Kentucky professors on coal and its ability to stand a tax. They forgot to take freight rates into consideration when estimating how much tax coal could stand without affecting the industry adversely on the market.

Witnesses for the coal industry repeatedly said 30 cents a ton would put many of the small underground mines in Kentucky out of business. Several said their net profits hadn't approached 30 cents a ton except in the boom year of 1970.

Legislators have asked the Revenue Department to come up with some figures on two tax rate proposals, 20 cents a ton, and 25 cents a ton. They also want to know how much additional acreage fee would have to be levied for strip mining, adding these two figures above, to produce the same amount of money as projected in the present proposal.

Senator C. Gibson Downing, D-Lexington, said he is hopeful that the severance tax can be reduced from five per cent to three or three and a half per cent.

There also has been sentiment expressed that a half per cent of the tax can be given to the counties by permitting the counties to levy and collect just as they do now on oil.

There is also some sentiment in legislative halls that some of the proposed burden can be lifted from coal and placed on cigarettes. Every additional penny per pack on cigarettes will yield the state $5 million a year and this tax is passed directly to the consumer and does not injure the tobacco farmer.

Yet, the Kentucky Farm Bureau raises a cry every time any such tax is mentioned.

One of the biggest points the coal spokesmen made is how the 30 cents tax would destroy the economy of the coal producing regions.
