Nursing Home News

by Virginia Smith Donovan

Someone has said that flowers are the poetry of earth and stars are the poetry of heaven.

Landen Stewart said that he was very busy lately, for his, Bible course required much reading.

Doris Rogers said her mother, Mrs. Alyne Sharp, was in a Maysville hospital waiting for major surgery.

Elmer Frederick said he remembered the first car he ever saw, looked much like a buggy. It was owned by a doctor in Fleming county, I remember the first one I ever saw; was owned by Archie Deer of the county.

The weekly worship service was conducted Sunday afternoon by Rev. Neil Thompson, pastor of the First Christian Church, 15 were present. There was no one to play the piano, but all of us together tried to make a joyful noise unto the Lord!

I thought Mrs. Anna Clark told me that Sam and Bobby Reynolds gave her the black dogs in her window, but it was the good nurse assistant, Esther Swartz. She's just like that, nice to everyone.

Lizzie Ratliff said her granddaughter, Angela Beagle, was down from Lexington and visited for about a week.

Esther Swartz said she had a little time off and she and Mr. Swartz hoped to be able to make the trip to Ft. Knox to visit their son, David.

When I visited Forrest Fields and Joe Blount, Forrest said he was dreaming about Fords. No wonder, for Joe Blount worked for Ford several years in Detroit, and Forrest said he was a Ford dealer in Olive Hill for awhile. These boys "beat the bugs a fightin", Joe worked for Crysler in Detroit for 29 years.

Mrs. Ethel McCarty sleeps quite a lot during the day. She's catching up on her beauty rest!

Mrs. Eliza Ockerman was wearing a pretty blue and white checked duster, must have been a gift.

Mrs. Nova Tumey is back from the hospital.

Mrs. Ethel Colmire has gone to live with her sisters, Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Watkins of Robertson county.

C. D. Thompson of Lexington visited Oscar Johnson. First time they had seen each other for 50 years, Mr. Thompson said he was a native of Robertson county.

One of Mrs. Mollie Buckler's grandsons, Mt. Olivet comes at least twice each week. She and Mrs. Pearl Crouch come to the weekend; son, Mike is back at work after surgery; and her father, Dan Burden, is in a fair condition. Her mother has the full care of her husband now. Margaret smiles through it all.

If the dollar is floating, why is it so hard to launch a loan?

Several members of the Central Council of the Carlisle Christian Church made a visit to the home Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Mary Rogers said her sister, Mrs. Robert Plank of Bethel visited her recently. Her niece of Dayton, Ohio visited her Sunday.

Stopped in to see Mrs. Ellen Kenney and left her a flower or two, She said that she had just planted a teacup of mustard seed. She should really have the faith. If one grain of seed would help what would a tea cup full do for a fellow?

I then went across the hall and spoke to Mrs. Mary Huffstetter who is again at the home. Told her about Mrs. Kenney's work and she said, "she should have plenty of poultices".

Mrs. Ethel McCarty is the owner of a huge purple orchid. It was sent from her two daughters in Texas, Her grandson, Bobby Kelley had just flown in and brought them.

Mrs. Effie Richie said she never had any children of her own, but raised a nephew, Matthew Taylor. She said she once taught a spring school at Mt. Carmel; remembered going home with the Delaney children, Nora and Jim, and stayed all night one night. Her niece, Mrs. Geneva Taylor and her daughter, Mrs. John Reid visited her Sunday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Neal said she usually went to the home one day each week and visited Mrs. Maude Stone. She has been doing this each week since Mrs. Stone's daughter, Pauline Jones returned to California.

In me you may have peace. In the world you have tribulation, but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."--John 16:33

COMMISSIONER Wendell P. Butler Commissioner of Agriculture

BUTLER LOOKS AT Agriculture

LIVESTOCK DEALERS MUST KEEP RECORDS

The State Department of Agriculture is now implementing several new laws enacted by the 1972 General Assembly.

Unless specified otherwise, June 16 was the effective date of the new laws passed at the 1972 session. While each of the new agricultural measures is important, two laws relating to work of the Division of Livestock Sanitation are particularly significant.

Under one measure, all persons dealing in livestock must keep adequate records of their transactions. Record books are being provided to dealers and these books must be made available upon demand to livestock inspectors from the Department of Agriculture.

The records are to show the name and address of persons from whom the dealer has purchased livestock. This information is vital in instances where the Division of Livestock Sanitation needs to trace the origin of a diseased animal.

A second measure gives certain livestock inspectors of the Division peace officer power for the enforcement of their duties. This means that inspectors who are enforcing regulations relating to interstate movement of livestock can detain or arrest persons found in violation of the livestock health laws. Our efforts to control livestock being transported without proper health papers will be strengthened by this new authority.

If a livestock owner has questions about either of these laws, he should contact the Division of Livestock Sanitation office in Frankfort. It is particularly important that livestock dealers realize that they are now required to keep records of their transactions.

Senator Marlow Cook addresses FFA group

Senator Marlow Cook told the Future Farmers of America Friday, June 9, in Louisville that, "While we produce more food, more efficiently than any nation on this planet, there remains an incredible problem or gap between agricultural production and use".

Senator Cook referred to the increasing awareness of the existence of malnutrition and hunger in America. He gave an account of how the Nixon Administration was the first to both recognize the seriousness of this situation and to take positive action combatting the problem of malnutrition.

The Senator stated that within the past three years the School Lunch Program has increased its participation level by four million children to an estimated 25.2 million children in 1972. In Kentucky alone, approximately 123,000 more needy children are receiving free or reduced price lunches since 1969.

"In addition, Kentucky has developed the second largest School Breakfast Program in the nation. Only 14,730 children were receiving school breakfasts daily in 1968 but an estimated 102,486 children have participated in the program in 1972," he said.

He noted federal assistance to Kentucky for day care feeding, and summer feeding programs have increased from $12,273 to $602,000 within a three-year span.

Cook concluded, ". . .These programs are important because they will hopefully establish the proper eating habits for millions of additional Americans."

Western summer school to be held

Workshops in School Plant Management, June 26 through July 14, and Accounting for Pupil Personnel, July 12 through the 28th will be held at Western Kentucky University this summer, Both are sponsored by the Department of School Administration at Western.

Dr. V.J. Christenson, head of Western's Department of School Administration is coordinating instructor for the School Plant Management workshop. Among the guest instructors from the state department of education for this workshop will be T.O. Thompson, director of the Division of Buildings and Grounds; C.E. Rall, assistant director of the Division of Finance; James W. Daniel, director of the Division of Statistical Services; and Malcolm McCullock, who will talk about federal legislation and federal programs and their impact on schoolhouse construction.

Major Rhodes Jackson from the Bowling Green Fire Department will talk with the class about fire regulations, statutes, etc., as they pertain to public schools for the safety of children, says Dr. Christenson. Joe Wilk, Bowling Green architect, will lecture on the architect's role in schoolhouse construction in working with the school staff, and the board of education. The class will tour the new Bowling Green High School and Cumberland Trace Elementary School.

Directing the Accounting for Pupil Personnel workshop will be Ernest Broady, who has been director of Pupil Personnel in Barren county for the past 19 years. Broady is former president of the International Association of Pupil Personnel workers and the Kentucky Association of Pupil Personnel workers.

Imitation dairy products still under health control

The State Department of Health's Grade A Milk Program will no longer issue permits to nor collect fees from manufacturers of totally imitation dairy products.

Senate Bill 338, passed this spring, repealed sections of KRS 217 that required:

--A permit to manufacture totally non-dairy imitation milk products, such as liquid and powder non-dairy creamers,

--A fee for the permit,

--Regular submission of samples of the non-dairy products for testing, and

--Laboratory fees for such testing.

Stopping such operations doesn't mean that controls over safety, sanitation and labeling of such products will end, says Dudley Conner, director of the Division of Environmental Services' Grade A Milk Program.

Rather, he says, labels on such products still must meet the requirements of the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act. A State Board of Health regulation further coincides with the federal Fair Packaging and Labeling Act in that all food and cosmetic product containers are required to include the name of the product, its manufacturer, packer or distributor, ingredients and net weight of contents on a principal display panel.

During the four years the repealed sections of KRS 217 were in effect no problems with laboratory analyses of non-dairy products occurred, Conner said, although there were "two or three problems with sanitation".

Sanitarians will continue to check manufacturing plants to make sure they meet state standards.
