Mrs. Wilson conducts refinishing workshop

Mrs. Reese Smoot

Mrs. Jack Tincher

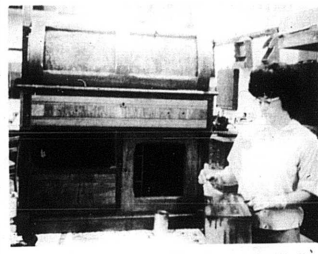

Miss Mary Lois Campbell

Mrs. Reese Smoot is refinishing an oak table during a workshop conducted by Mrs. Charles Wilson, County Extension Home Economics instructor. These classes started June 26 and will end July 7 for Nicholas county women who signed up for the two-week sessions.

Mrs. Jack Tincher is putting the finishing touches on a chair that she is refinishing in the Nicholas county Extension Home Economics workshop, program held at the Nicholas County High School Industrial Arts lab, June 26 through July 7. Also participating in the program are Mrs. Grimes Caywood, Mrs. Yeach DeLaney, Mrs. Carl Hughes, Mrs. Hurst Rankin and Mrs. S.M. DeMyer.

This unusual piece Miss Mary Lois Campbell is working on is an antique used for keeping medicine which was in her father's (Dr. E.A. Campbell) home. Miss Campbell is a participant in the County Extension Home Economics Workshop held July 26 through July 7 at the Nicholas County High School.

Mrs. Harvey Wilson

Can you name these boys? Is it an all male class, what's the occasion for the picture?

These young people, who served as junior leaders at the Kentucky Youth Seminar, June 19-21 at the University, all had been outstanding participants at previous Kentucky Youth Seminars and were invited back to work with this year's delegates. The Seminar, which is sponsored jointly by the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service and the Kentucky Council of Cooperatives, involves an intensive study of the American private enterprise system. They are left to right, from: Janet Hill, Marion county; Jennie Payne, Warren county; Karen Greenwell and Jorga Williams, both of Davison county; George Mac Coliver, Fleming county; Mary Frances Row-
