MYERS

By Mrs. Rena Crawford

Mrs. Milton Flora, Pam, Helen and Jim, Mrs. Ruth Dunn, Trica and Martha were in Lexington Saturday shopping.

Pam Flora spent Saturday night with her aunt, Mabel Shrout.

Rosa Hughes and Kevin, and Mabel Shrout were in Paris Saturday.

Those who visited Mr. and Mrs. Otha Dean Crawford last Sunday were Mrs. Ina Feeback, Mrs. Rena Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Buchanon and son of Ewing, and Mrs. Rosemary Kinder and two daughters.

--Mrs. Rosie Hughes and son visited Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Gray one day last week.

Milton Flora and Pam and Kevin Hughes visited Mr. and Mrs. Frank Flora on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bromagen and daughter visited Mr. and Mrs. Thomas George on Sunday.

Me Near the Cross".

Mrs. Frances McIntosh of Lexington came to see her mother, Mrs. Loulabell Earlywine. She brought her a necklace watch and a transistor radio. She comes every Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Charles McIntosh and daughter, Wanda, usually come with her too. Mrs. Earlywine surely has a sweet tooth, for her children really bring the candy to her!

Matthew Campbell comes to the home twice each week and trims the boys' "whiskers" and visits his sister, Mrs. Billie Weathers and brother-in-law, Turner Donahue.

Mrs. Ethel Booth was visited Sunday by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Sam Smith and niece, Margaret Kenny of Cynthiana.

Let us be of good cheer, however, remembering that the misfortunes hardest to bear are those which never come.--Lowell

Kay's Kitchen

— By Kay Fisher —

Really can't believe this is the first week of March--I lost several weeks recently and don't know if I'll ever catch up. This column usually has a back up or two so I don't worry. However this time too many weeks slipped by and the staff picked a good recipe to re-run the week of Washington's birthday and then week, some just good and bit unusual recipes were re-run.

As I've said before the germlin on my shoulder came to the rescue in the form of the following letter and recipes.

Thank you for sharing your good fortune and talent with our readers and Kay's Kitchen.

Kay's Kitchen, Carlisle Mercury:

Would like to share my two recipes with you and your readers. Both were entered in the recent Bake-Off here in Madison County, Ohio, judged among "best recipes" from the readers of the Madison Press, entered in a Cook Book published by the Madison Press. My hobby is baking and I enjoy new ideas, such as from your kitchen, printed in the Mercury each week.

Yours truly,
Mrs. Betty Humphries
Route 2, London, Ohio

Also enclosed is a good low calorie casserole for the dieters of "your kitchen".

For Lent; Low Calorie
TUNA FISH CASSEROLE

4 ounce can tuna
1/2 can bean sprouts
1 slice of bread, crumbled
1 chicken bouillin cube
1 cup water
2 ounce can mushrooms

Cook bean sprouts in chicken bouillon and water; mix together tuna, sprouts and mushrooms. Put in small casserole. Top with bread crumbs. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees.

PUMPKIN BREAD

3 1/4 cups flour
2 teaspoons soda
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
3 cups granulated sugar
1 clip oil
4 eggs
2/3 cups water
2 cups canned pumpkin

Sift dry ingredients together into a large bowl, make a well in the center of ingredients, combine all remaining ingredients, add all at once. Mix with beaters until smooth. Pour into 3 greased and floured 8x3x3/4" loaf pans. Bake for 1 hour at 350 degrees. Cool slightly and turn onto rack. When loaves are completely cooled, wrap in foil and store in refrigerator. Can also be frozen for later use. Chopped pecans may be added, if desired.

1 teaspoon cinnamon
dash of nutmeg
Add and mix well:
4 eggs
1 cup oil
2 cups canned pumpkin

Bake 35 minutes at 350 degrees, in a pan 13x9x2, greased well. Plain white frosting may be used.

PUMPKIN CAKE

Sift together:
2 cups flour
2 cups sugar (white)
2 teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt

Eighth grade takes trip

The Eighth Grade of the Nicholas County Elementary School made another educational trip Feb. 16 and 17 when they attended a criminal trial at the courthouse Wednesday and Thursday.

Sections 1 and 3 with their sponsors Mrs. Fleet Allison and Mrs. Clarine Gudgell attended a session Wednesday afternoon and Sections 2 and 4 attended a session Thursday morning with their sponsors Mrs. Elizabeth Clay and Tom Metcalfe.

Judge John P. Lair, Circuit Court Judge, was complimentary of the behavior of the students and invited them back to observe court procedures at any time the teachers felt the visit would provide a learning experience for their classes.

Headquarters homemakers

The Headquarters Homemakers met at the R,E,C,C, office in Cynthiana, Feb. 7. The roll call was answered by 10 members and three visitors.

Mrs. Carl Cohorn gave the devotional. The lesson, "Low Calorie Meals" was given by Mrs. John Clinkenbeard. Low calorie peanut butter cookies were served at the pot luck lunch.

Mrs. Lawrence Rankin was in charge of the recreation. Valentine gifts were exchanged. The next meeting will be March 7 at the Carlisle Methodist Church annex.

HUNTING AND FISHING IN KENTUCKY

By Harry Lee Fowler

Hard-fighting catfish esteemed by many sportsmen

That bewhiskered rascal, the catfish, any one of the many species that inhabit Kentucky's waters, is held in disdain by some fishermen. But it also has legions of friends whose fingers stray are when this bottom-feeding fellow is on the prowl for live bait cast his way by fishermen.

Indeed, there are a great many fishermen who pride themselves on their ability to catch the catfish and well they might. Though the species has a yen for biting hard and almost hanging itself by its exuberance, it takes skill and much knowledge of the lake or river to be an adept catfish fisherman.

There are several species fairly common in Kentucky's plentiful waters, but the one most sought after by sports fishermen is the channel cat. Other species, such as the flathead, the blue and the bullhead families along with a few scattered white catfish in western Kentucky, have their followers too.

The flathead and the blue, because of their size, are a couple of prime objectives of the commercial fisherman, but they surely do not frown on the channel catfish, either.

The bullhead family was probably designed for the beginner fisherman, and few are the boys who have not confounded their parents with a string of these tasty but pestiferous fish after a day at a nearby farm pond or on the creek. They are found in the larger lakes, but are shunned by most fishermen because of their small size. And they are probably the most adept of all catfish at ramming their "horns," or poison-tipped spines on the dorsal and pectoral fins, into the hands of the catcher. Other catfish have these weapons also, but their impending wounds are easier to ward off than those of the small, squirming bullhead.

The channel, which is first choice of sports cat fishermen, may be found in most of the major lakes and all running waters of the state. When hooked, the channel cat gives with a battle that is comparable to that of the fighting black bass, except that it does not clear the water's surface in its wild gyrations. However, it can do in the feater with equal skill the tricks for which the black bass is noted and the still fisherman or the bait caster will attest to this.

The channel is not opposed to taking a casting lure. This is not the accepted manner of fishing for them, but they frequently are caught on fairly deep rumeras.

Perhaps the best bait, however, is the live minnow, usually a fairly large one, dropped in the right spot (this is important because the channel is not one for coming after the bait). The conventional nightcrawler also will work wonders, and the channel is never averse to taking a hunk of cutbait either.

The best strings of this fish will be caught in the next couple of months from swift waters below locks and dams. Kentucky Lake's tailwaters, in the Tennessee River, is a prime spot. (From these waters came the record-breaking bluecat, a monster that weighed exactly 100 pounds a few years ago.)

But the channel will also be found in the Cumberland River below Wolf Creek Dam and in the tailwaters of just about every dam in Kentucky, including those in the small rivers.

The best time for harvesting the fish, however, is during its spawning period which occurs in the major lakes just after the white bass run, in May and June. A sandy bottom or the rip-rapped slopes around a dam or near bridges are ideal spots. They'll be found lolling around fallen treetops too, and also beneath jutting rock formations. And they'll be caught mostly on live minnows, worms or cutbait.

The channel catfish in Kentucky usually runs around two or three pounds, but they do grow to 10 or 15 pounds, although that size is rare. It's a fine, fighting fish to catch and many are the persons who think the meat of the channel catfish is beyond anything else in the fish line.

Common market barriers against U. S. tobacco hit

by Jack Lewyn

New trading practices in European Common Market countries which could have a highly-restrictive effect on American tobacco exports to the area were recounted before the Senate agricultural exports subcommittee in Washington.

Burley tobacco spokesmen who testified urged Congress and the Administration to work for freer access to leaf markets overseas, especially by in the Common Market, whose member countries are among principal importers of U.S. tobacco, including burley. These countries include Belgium, West Germany, France, Italy, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Britain, Ireland, Denmark and Norway are joining the Common Market, and it will thus become the largest trading bloc in the world.

Existing tariff and non-tariff barriers erected by Common Market nations include such procedures as an excise tax system which discriminates against the higher quality and higher priced American tobacco; artificially high price supports for European tobacco producers without production controls, and what amounts to rebates for European manufacturers who use European tobacco.

John M. Berry Sr., president of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association, told the subcommittee that the Common Market area is the principal export market for U.S. burley and stressed that "it is imperative that we stubbornly resist restrictive measures" adopted or planned by the Common Market.

Louis F. Ison, president of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, said "there can be no doubt these markets abroad play a key role in the continued prosperity of our industry. We want to keep our foreign markets and to see them improved".

The value of tobacco exports to the U.S. balance-of-payments position was noted by Albert G. Clay, board chairman of the Burley Auction Warehouse Association, who said any curtailment of tobacco exports could be a blow to the economy of the nation as well as that of the tobacco industry.

Frank B. Savegrass, vice president of the Burley and Dark Leaf Tobacco Export Association, urged the subcommittee to take a strong and firm position in efforts to eliminate trade restrictions adversely affecting U.S. tobacco.

W.D. Eberle, the President's special representative for trade negotiations, told the subcommittee U.S. diplomats will seek fair treatment for U.S. tobacco.
