The grand essentials to happen in this life are something to do, something to love, and something to hope for.—Joseph Addison

Alberta Boaz came to see her grandmother, Mrs. Nanlie Vico, and brought her so many pretty things. Her table looks like a gift shop.

When you go into Miss Cordia's room, look on the wall and see the big dog which Kenneth Smoot drew for her.

Bruce Peltrey of Portsmouth, Ohio, came Monday to see his mother, Mrs. Yada Peltrey.

Mrs. Lada Graves and James Wade Sr. are in the local hospital.

It's a shame there are no fox around the home but they wouldn't have much chance to survive, for many foxhunters come to see it.

Jobless Kentuckians to get additional pay

Approximately 6,000 jobs for Kentuckians are now eligible for additional unemployment insurance payments, Garrettt Johnson, Acting Commissioner of the Department of Economic Security, announced recently.

"An additional 5,500 unemployed workers are expected to qualify for extended payments when their current claims are exhausted between now and April 1," the Commissioner said.

The extended benefits, which will mean approximately one-quarter million dollars per week for unemployed Kentuckians, were made possible by Senate Bill 120, signed into law by Governor Wendell Ford Feb. 28.

Claimants of extended benefits must meet the same requirements as regular claimants. Claimants who were disqualified in connection with their regular claim must await expiration of their disqualification before they can establish eligibility for extended benefits.

Eligible unemployed workers may file claims for extended benefits on the same day of the week and at the same Kentucky Employment Service Office where their original claim was filed. If filed in a different office, claimants should advise the office of their claim records can be transferred.

MIXING OLD AND NEW FURNITURE

"Mixing old and new furniture" is a popular today. It is also practical, making it unnecessary for you to discard good old pieces. It also permits you to add some new pieces.

A mixture of old and new furniture when well chosen can make very interesting rooms; can add spice and charm to a room; can relieve the monotony or sameness and it can stretch your furniture budget.

Suggestions to keep in mind when adding new furniture to that you already have:

—STYLES, that agree. If styles have the same feeling or spirit they agree. They also agree if they are alike in formality or informality. Furniture that gives you a feeling of casualness and relaxation is informal in spirit.

Sergeant Brandenburg will be at the Selective Service Office in Carlisle on Tuesdays between 1 and 3:30 pm. If you cannot see him at that time, you may call him collect in Lexington at 606-252-1621 for an appointment.

The Bourbon County Colonel's defeated the Nicholas County blue-jackets last Wednesday night by a score of 63-44. Doug Jones hit the first shot of the game for the blue-jackets but in spite of their determination, the Colonels led 13-0 at the end of the first quarter.
