THE HOME GAME

by MARY FUREY CRYMES

NOSE NEWS — If company's coming, you're out of room freshener and there's an unpleasant odor in the kitchen, don't despair. Turn on a stove burner, heat and shut off. Place a tablespoon of ground coffee on a bit of foil on burner. Heated grounds absorb the odor quickly.

CLOSE QUARTERS — Small rooms seem larger if you group the eye catchers on one wall, leaving the other bare and painted a light shade. Aim for an arrangement of mirrors, pictures and wall hangings over low furniture, perhaps two chests side by side. Use tailored draperies and window shades instead of billowy curtains and arrange furniture to allow maximum floor space.

SOUP SAVER — The old ice cube trick works well for leftover soup. Pour it into trays with the dividers in; freeze and store in plastic bags. Handy when only one cup of soup is needed.

BRUNCH BIZ — Sunday morning, hard cook and shell half a dozen eggs. Slice them into a creamy cheese sauce and serve over toast spread with canned deviled ham.

TIED WIDE — Please old Dad by converting his favorite narrow ties into the fashionably wide kind. Open the back and press the tie flat. Cut a stretch fabric piece to rejoin and piece the new sides. Stitch this in and press the tie again. Sometimes washing or cleaning is necessary to make the colors even.

BATCH BAKE-IN — Making lots of cookies? Your pie tins and cake pans, upturned, can double as extra cookie sheets. Another trick — shape several sheets of foil to fit the baking pan. Place dough on one, bake, slide off and insert the next filled piece of foil.

SANDY STUFF — Do your favorite wooden salad bowls have a gummy residue from oily dressings? Buy the finest sandpaper you can and rub them lightly with the grain. Keep rubbing til the sticky stuff is gone, then apply a thin coat of waterproof spar varnish. This seals wood and leaves no taste.

Wool producers should file wool and lamb bills

Harvey Wagoner, Chairman, ASC Committee has stated that all wool producers should be thinking about filing their wool and unshorn lamb bills with the County ASCS Office. Applications should be filed before Jan. 31, 1973. All applications must be backed by sale bills. Sale bills must carry an original signature of the person or firm issuing the bill.

Farmers who raise any sheep and have never participated in the Wool Program should inquire at the County ASCS Office. The program covers direct payments made to farmers who sell shorn wool or unshorn lambs. The payments for 1971 were 21.1% of the net sales proceeds for shorn wool and $2.10 per hundred pounds liveweight for unshorn lambs.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned have made and filed their Final Settlement with the Judge of the Nicholas County Court and that the same will be confirmed as a matter of law unless formal exceptions are filed thereto.

State TB Division sets up new unit for fungus disease

FRANKFORT—Commissioner of Health William P. McElwain, M.D. has announced that H. Mac Vandiviere, M.D., director of the Division of Tuberculosis Control, and his division are establishing Kentucky's first specialized hospital facility for treating fungus diseases of the lung. The new unit will operate at the Paris Tuberculosis Hospital and will also provide laboratory facilities to serve patients throughout the state, including those being treated by private physicians.

"Kentucky has the highest rate in the nation for histoplasmosis and blastomycosis, yet a survey made by the TB division indicates that only one-fourth of the cases are properly diagnosed," says Dr. Vandiviere. Both diseases start with the symptoms of common respiratory illness, but on occasion can be fatal if not treated. The molds are found in soil; histoplasmosis spores are especially common around chicken houses or near colonies of bats and bird roosting areas. Blastomycosis is less common, but can be a more serious disease than histo.

Fortunately, the University of Kentucky College of Medicine has an exceptionally fine group of specialists in mycology (the study of fungus-caused diseases). The Veterans Administration National Reference Laboratory for mycotic disease is located at the University and the Lexington Veterans Administration Hospital.

"The new mycology unit at Paris will be able to use the unique resource of this outstanding group of physicians to provide the best possible care for patients, through this cooperative program" Dr. Vandiviere adds. In addition, the centralization of hospital and laboratory facilities is expected to save the state money in the long run, by providing more accurate diagnosis and more effective treatment for patients. Fungus disease victims have sometimes been improperly diagnosed as having tuberculosis, or have been repeatedly admitted to hospitals for undiagnosed illnesses, causing undue expense to the patient or the taxpayer.

P.A. Pichardo, M.D., currently director of TB District Six and based in Glasgow, will be the director of the clinical unit at Paris and medical director of the Paris chest hospital. Dr. Pichardo has had extensive experience in treating fungus diseases and is considered extremely well qualified to head this unit. The laboratory director will be Richard Kruse, currently microbiologist at Fort Detrick, Md.; he has wide experience in mycology laboratory techniques and will be employed through the Mycology Program of the Department of Community Medicine, University of Kentucky College of Medicine.

Hire a Kid is LVCAP plea

The Licking Valley C.A.P., Inc. is trying to secure part-time employment for the low-income teenagers that live in Nicholas County.

William M. Perkins Jr. Executive Director of Licking Valley C.A.P., Inc. is compiling a list of strong, healthy, able-bodied, willing to work teenagers to perform such tasks as: Cleaning windows, walls, floors, mowing yards, trimming hedges, raking leaves, baby-sitting, cooking, ironing, or any job that you as a private citizen or business man needs done in the evening, after school, or on week-ends. If we sincerely want to help cut the welfare rolls in the future we must unite in the present, by showing these kids that we really care, that we want them to complete school, not become another Dropout.

We can show them we care if we give them some task to perform to make a little money to help them pay for their books, clothes and food to stay in school. If we didn't have parents to buy us decent clothes, books and a haircut, we may have been dropouts too.

These kids are not asking for a hand-out, they want to work.

Please help by calling Juanita Vice 289-5321, Community Organizer in Nicholas County.

Teenager 4-H Club raise money for park

The Teenagers 4-H Club has recently worked and put forth great effort to raise some money for a worthy project. They have had a dance, which they sponsored and did much of the work themselves, to raise this money. In an effort to do something very worthwhile with their proceeds of $225, they invested it in the Nicholas County Recreational Park. These will be the people who will benefit the longest from their investment. Many others who have contributed to the park will not use it much, but these young people and their younger brothers and sisters will use it profusely.

When you see one of the teenagers who worked on this project, would you take the time to give a little pat on the back for a job well done?

Mrs. Robert Curtsinger and Miss Sara Swango work with this group of young people and they too are to be complimented for their good work. William Bean is president of the organization.

Jackets drop second to MMI

bank-shot from midcourt cut the Cadet lead to two as the first quarter ended, 16-14.

It looked like a Nicholas County break, when with 1:54 left in the first half, Cadet guard Adam Stumler picked up his third foul. Bill Uhrig filled in for the highly touted Stumler, who is supposedly the sparkplug of the MMI five, and played a very steady game exhibiting some fine playmaking and ballhandling. Stumler didn't return until 2:00 minutes were left in the game.

Uhrig came in with MMI on top 27-20 and he and his teammates capitalized on Jacket turnovers and defensive miscues to boost MMI to a 13 point advantage at the half.

Coach Bill Anderson used the same lineup for the second half that he used to start the game, with the exception of John Soper who replaced Victor Bromagen. MMI led throughout the quarter, sometimes by as much as 16. Doug Darbro came off the bench to team with Hatton in a flurry of long range buckets which cut the lead to 10, but MMI adjusted quickly and ended the quarter on top by 12, 48-36.

With six minutes left in the game, the Jackets began to click and behind some fine hustle, cut the margin to six. MMI settled down and raced back out to a 12 point bulge with three minutes remaining, when they began to slow down the tempo. The Cadets padded their margin three more points and closed out with the final 15 point spread, 61-46.

The story of the game was Nicholas County's inability to go inside against the Cadet's 2-3 zone. The Jackets were not accurate outside as 16 for 54 from the field indicates. The 29% is the best yet for Nicholas this year, but the Jackets have a long way to go before they develop into the shooting team that they are capable of and must become.

Coach Anderson pointed out that "it's due to our lack of size" and that he "hopes the team will jell by Christmas."

Although they were overshadowed in the height department, the Jacket front line came up with 38 points, with 22 split between Doug Fryman's 14 and Hatton's 18.

Anderson praised the duo of Fryman and Hatton who also accounted for 15 of the Jacket's 36 rebounds. Most of their scoring was long range and with a nice percentage, as the two shot 12 for 22 combined.

The Bluejacket ballhandling was definitely not up to par as a season high of 16 turnovers were committed. Gerald Hatton collected four out of a team total of five assists.

The two youngsters Darbro and Compton continued to show promise, although Compton, who started for the first time this year, looked obviously shaky at times.

The Jacket "B" team lost a close one to MMI, 34-32. The County freshman team picked up two wins last week, 34-29 over Bourbon County behind Ricky Hicks' 13 points, and 54-29 over Mt. Olivet where Mike Pryor led all scorers with 20 points.

The Jackets traveled to Mt. Olivet Deming, Tuesday and face Maysville St. Patrick Friday night.
