Howard plans to major in medicine. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Livingood of Route 3, Carlisle.

G. I. Bill trainees will pass two million mark in 1972

Veterans training under the Vietnam Era G.I. Bill are expected to pass the two million mark in 1972, the Veterans Administration reported today.

The gettimate is based on a statistical report that revealed that 1.9 million veterans and servicemen used G.I. Bill education benefits during fiscal year 1972, an 18 percent gain over the previous year.

Administration of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson pointed out that 3.4 million trainees had used their benefits as of the end of August.

"During the first six years of the Bill, the number of trainees had exceeded the 13 year total for the Korean Conflict G.I. Bill by almost a million," Johnson pointed out.

During 12 years of the World War II G.I. Bill, 7.8 million of the 15.3 million World War II veterans, or 45.3 percent, received some form of training. About 13.8 percent attended college compared to 21.9 percent among Vietnam Era veterans and 20.1 percent for Korean Conflict veterans.

These additional enrollment statistics were revealed in the VA report--

Veterans in colleges and universities rose by 16 percent over the previous year--from 917,000 to 1.06 million.

Below college level enrollment rose by 22 percent--from 522,000 to 638,000.

On-the-job training, through which most trainees are preparing for trade and industrial occupations, rose by 11 percent--from 146,000 to 162,000.

Vocational rehabilitation training for service disabled veterans rose four peacent--from 30,500 to 31,700.

Dependent's educational assistance--for wives, widows and children of certain veterans and servicemen--rose by almost nine percent--from 8,800 to 9,600 for wives (fifty-percent) and from 50,700 to 55,000 for children (8.4 percent).

Eligibility for G.I. Educational Assistance extends to veterans with 180 days active military service provided any part of it was served after Jan. 31, 1955.

MEDICINE CHEST

by H. BOSWELL YORK, R. PH.

What's a good medicine to stop nail biting? — L.H.

Pardon the pun, but it's a matter of "taste" -- and a bad one at that! Manufacturers employ a variety of exotic sounding chemicals which are safe when taken as directed, but taste horrible. The one that's best for you (or whomever it's for) can only be found by trial and error.

Is it good to drink milk when taking medication to avoid getting an upset stomach? — J.J.K.

It depends on what you are taking. Some medicine will not be absorbed into your body as well if you take milk with them. For example, potassium chloride and potassium iodide. When you are having your prescription filled, ask your pharmacist what's the best way to take your medication.

What does the First Aid Tips in the Home chart say to do about insect bites? — C.A.K.

"Remove 'stinger,' if present. Apply paste made of baking soda and water. If swelling is pronounced, apply ice bag or cold cloths over the paste. If swelling persists or becomes inflamed, call your physician." You' can order the "whole thing" free. First Aid Tips in the Home chart tells you what to do first in an emergency. Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to me, in care of this newspaper. (One chart per envelope.)

Is milk a good antidote to give a child who has swallowed shampoo? — A.G.

Yes, but you should do more. Induce vomiting, and call for help. It's hard to remember what is best to do when a child takes one of the many poisonous substances so readily available around a home. Why not send for an Antidote and First Aid for Poisoning Chart by sending the name of the chart and 25 cents with a large self-addressed, stamped envelope to Medicine Chest, in care of this newspaper.

WOMAN'S WORKWORLD

by JULIE THOMAS PITMAN

Scorn not the local real estate for land-office business. A good real estate saleswoman can earn more than most people with selling jobs. Five to 6 percent of the selling price of a house can add the good kind of zeroes to your bank account if you close a $25,000 deal every month or so.

That's the trouble. Even the best qualified real estate women can't swing every sale. And when the customer goes jup the road, your time showing and reshowing a house goes down the drain. To a large extent, real estate salespeople work on commission, although they sometimes may be given a monthly pittance as a drawing account against future commissions. So, generally, when you lose a sale, you don't even get a salary to salve your disappointment.

Your success will hinge on your ability, resourcefulness, energy and something called the Factor X -- which is usually defined as having the ability to size up a customer and tailor your approach appropriately.

Mature age is no problem, it's a blessing. Customers assume you've grown wiser as well as older. For more information, contact your local real estate board, or write: Education Dept., Natl. Assn. of Real Estate Boards, 155 E. Superior St., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Appraising is a less well-known specialty in real estate. A real estate appraiser gives expert opinion of what a house, building or property is worth. About 5 years as a trainee are required to qualify; less time for women with real estate background or education. Pay can be very good.

For free career literature on real estate appraising, send your request on a POSTCARD to Julie Thomas Pitman at this newspaper. Ask for "Society of Real Estate Appraisers Career Booklets." Write or print clearly; include your zip code. Please allow several weeks for delivery.

NOTE TO ED: Please forward requests for "Society of Real Estate Appraisers Career Booklets" to: Mr. Jerry C. Davis, VP, Society of Real Estate Appraisers, 7 So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60603. If requests for material from the National Association of Real Estate Boards is sent to you by mistake, the address is in the column copy.

MAGICWORD by JULIE QUART

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in all directions — horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards. Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle, then strike it off list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD.

WHAT'S FOR DESSERT? Solution: 7 letters

Ex-Kentuckian says slain Japanese may be one involved in 1945 battle

A Phoenix, Ariz. business man, formerly of Carlisle, says two Japanese who have harassed farmers and fishermen on Luband Island may be the same ones who escaped when he and others liberated the Phillipine Island in 1945.

"We searched for about two weeks for the only two who escaped from us," says Charles W. Feeback.

Feeback produced a clipping from the Nicholas County Star in Kentucky which said Feeback and "a handful of comrades" wiped out the Japanese garrison of Luband Town on the island. The article said two Japanese escaped.

The Associated Press reported Sunday that two Japanese infantrymen, unaware that World War II was over, have harassed the farmers and fishermen of Luband Island for the past 26 years.

Last Thursday one of them was killed in a battle with five members of the Phillippe Conatabulary. He has been identified as Kinichi Kozuka.

His comrade, believed to be Shiro Onoda, was wounded but escaped.

Feeback, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Feeback of Headquarters, who lived in Carlisle 18 years before moving to Arizona and going into The dry cleaning business, said he was a private first class when he and 14 others assaulted the island in early 1945. He said more than 20 Japanese were killed, but two were known to have escaped and had not been found when he and the others left Luband Island.

Feeback was married to the late Mrs. Roseanna Guthrie Feeback, daughter of Mrs. Ollie Feeback and the late Mr. Guthrie of Carlisle.

Ky. Central Test Station measures growth of bulls

Another group of young bulls has gone on test at the Kentucky central bull testing station near Paris. A total of 109 bulls began their official testing period on Oct. 10, according to Russell Bredahl, Extension beef cattle specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The bulls were brought in by 43 consignors. All of the consignors are from Kentucky except two who are from Illinois. The bulls on test include 37 Angus, 16 Polled Hereford, eight Charolais, eight Santa Gertrudis, one Milking Shorthorn, one Hereford, and 38 percentage bulls. The percentage bulls include 37 Simmental crossbreds and one Limousin crossbred.

The test will emphasize the ability of the bulls to grow. Each animal will be compared against other bulls of the same breed for gain and weight per day of age. The test will last 140 days, and the bulls will be weighed every 28 days. Progress report on the bulls will be mailed to the consignors at the end of each weighing period. A 205-day weight and a 365-day adjusted weight will also be recorded for each bull.

The bulls, the second group to be tested at the station, weighed an average of 566 pounds at the beginning of the test and averaged 2.59 pounds in weight per day of age. They began the official test after a three-week period of adjustment at the station.

While on test the animals are fed a ration consisting of approximately 60 percent corn grain and five percent protein supplement, although the ration is adjusted somewhat as the bulls mature. They are housed in a building which is enclosed on three sides and open in the front, and which has concrete slotted floors.

The testing period for the bulls will end on Feb. 27, 1973. Approximately the top-performing two-thirds of each breed will be sold at auction at the Paris stockyards on March 10, 1973.

Bredahl said the purpose of centralized testing is to compare bulls eating the same ration under standardized conditions eliminating environmental factors in performance testing. He says centralized testing is an ideal tool for cattlemen who want to identify and select superior bulls. A sizable portion of the difference in the rate of gain among bulls can be transmitted to their offspring, according to the UK specialist. Thus, the fastest-gaining bulls are likely to sire the fastest-gaining calves.

Seaway Farms owns the testing facility and operates the station under contract with the Kentucky Cattlemen's Association and the University of Kentucky. The University provides recommendations for care and feeding of the bulls, specifies testing procedures, and gathers and distributes the performance information. The Cattlemen's Association collects the testing fee, handles other financial arrangements and sets up the sale.

Schools required to make deductions

Kentucky's Attorney General has ruled that school boards are required to make payroll deductions for contributions to the Kentucky Educators Public Affairs Council (KEPAC) when requested by an employee.

The opinion, written by Assistant Attorney General Carl Miller, was in response to questions raised by Ray Corns, director of the division of legal services for the State Department of Education in Frankfort.

BOB HOLCOMB Candidate for Congress 7th District of Kentucky

Licking Valley Protective Association

Recognized June 12, 1964

MEMBERSHIP IN BRACKEN, FLEMING, HARRISON, MASON, NICHOLAS, AND ROBERTSON COUNTIES

AN OPEN LETTER TO MEMBERS AND SUPPORTERS

It is common knowledge that Falmouth Dam has not been built because we have always had a U. S. Congressman from the district affected who has openly opposed the project; namely, the late Congressman Joe Bates and the late Congressman John Watts. We are supported by many State officials in the area above the dam site and we must endeavor to keep representation in the Congress of the United States from the district that will be destroyed should the dam be constructed.

Bob Holcomb of Pikeville, candidate for the U. S. House of Representatives from the 7th District of Kentucky is actually opposing construction of the Falmouth Dam.

He did so in a letter to the U. S. Corps of Engineers dated August 23, 1972; he testified to it at Falmouth High School the next day; he did so Court Day in Maysville on October 2, and at Blue Licks State Park on October 5. He has made it a plank in his platform, and he has given me his word.

For the good of ourselver and our families, the good of those who will inherit the land in years to come, and the lasting benefit of the people of Kentucky and the United States, I think it is imperative to support Bob Holcomb who has pledged to help us save the Licking River Valley.

Sincerely and respectfully,

Darrel Fegan

Cooperatives are good business plus

Cooperatives are people in business to serve people. They're good business—but with a difference.

They are people—all kinds of people—who work together to do what one cannot do alone. People together can, and do, meet just about any sort of need imaginable . . . marketing, getting farm supplies, electric and telephone service, credit, insurance, housing, health care, and on . . . with efficiency, economy, and warm understanding.

All today's user-owned cooperatives—whether marketing, purchasing, or service—fit into the contemporary scene like hand in glove.

People in cooperatives are now people, actively participating in programs for community development, improving the environment, and bettering the quality of life for everyone, everywhere.

Cooperatives serve—by placing priority on people, making them a vigorous part of the American business system.

That's the big PLUS.
