Growing corn on steep land causes erosion

by Willmer Halcomb

In 1974 it is expected that more farmers of Nicholas county will turn to grain as extra income due to the favorable price of corn and other grain crops. Growing corn on too steep land is a great source of erosion. To be exact, to grow any row crops on land that is too steep is a source of erosion and pollution. When we think in terms of it taking 700 years to produce one inch of top soil, it is very important to keep that top soil in place. Of course it is also important to have row crops on the deeper soils of the farm and soils that are the most workable.

The Soil Conservation Service will assist any land user or owner in finding his best land for row crops. If you are not already a District Cooperator through your local Conservation District, you can become one by signing up as a District Cooperator. Of course, all this is a free service. The Soil Conservation Service can have their soil scientist to come to your farm and map your farm. This will give each soil by name and class. From this map you will know the slope of the land, depth, texture, amount of erosion, drainage and many other things. This is the true scientific approach to your farming.

Many farmers are already cooperators but if you don't have a soils map of your farm or have lost the map you had, come by the Soil Conservation Service office in the basement of the Post Office Building at Carlisle and we will help you get another map.

In about five months we will be planting corn but if you will come in now or call 289-2424, we will help you get ready for corn planting in 1974. You may need some diversion channels, terraces, grassed waterways, tile drainage, contour guide lines or some other practice to help hold down the erosion. Sod planting is an example of a way to cut down on erosion.

Nursing Home news

by Virginia Smith Donovan

If you happen to see Santa Claus around tell him to bring Margie Wells and Lizzie Ratliff a pair of roller skates. They need them to go over the floors in a hurry. Lizzie carries dishes and Margie carries dirty clothes sometimes, and sometimes clean ones.

Hazel Roberts visitd her brother-in-law, Robert Tout, recently.

This is belated news, but I've never sent it in.

The Sunday worship service was led by Dr. Evans Brown of the Presbyterian Church.Dr. Brown led us in prayer. Sue Wilson was at the piano. About 15 were present.

I received a church bulletin today from the Republican Church in Harrison county. That's where my good friend, Virgie Bell and Judy Marshall go. What I had written about her was copied from the Mercury and found it's way in the church letter.

There's a new nurse's assistant on the floor. Her name is Debra Conyers. She said she thought her husband was some relation to "our" Herman Conyers. Her mother-in-law, Mrs. Ola Conyers used to work at the home.

Nettie Barnes' son, Bruce and wife of Beckley, W. Va. spent Thanksgiving with Bruce's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Barnes and family.

Mrs. Clay Clark has a pot of yellow mums. Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Albert Henry, is confined to the hospital, and had so many flowers she was willing to share.

Kay McKee of Millersburg is a new nurse's assistant.

I'm wirting this just as Mrs. Edith Shea told it to me—said she never did have much sense and now had less! I didn't say this, she did.

I received my first Christmas card on Thanksgiving Day from the Children's Home in Versailles. As Christmas approaches, let's put the underprivileged on our Christmas list. Think what your own children have. Think it is much nicer that we think and call these homes Children's Homes instead of Orphan Homes. They can make use of many things we cast away, and sometimes put in the trash.

Elmer Fredrick said that Thelma Morris lived by him for several years and she was a good tobacco stripper.

Mr. Elmer seems to do a lot of dreaming. I'm quite sure his daughter, Nancy Shaw, is his prize possession. The last dream he had, the button was ready, needle threaded, and he was waiting for Nancy to sew it on.

I had a pleasant surprise Wednesday. My daughter, Mildred Black of Kenton county came to see me. She comes in like a "storm" and goes out like one, but we have lots of fun. I can't criticize too much, she had to inherit a few things! We went out to eat, shopping, to the bank, and talked and talked. Forgot to tell her everything, and had to write a letter. I'm thankful for her.

Mrs. Edmund Martin of Millersburg visited Mrs. Gertrude Henderson recently.

Rachel Booth and her sister-in-law, Mrs. W.D. Booth, visited Mrs. Iva Payne one evening.
