Few Changes on State income tax forms

By Jeanne Beckett State News Bureau

Few changes will be found by Kentucky taxpayers as they begin receiving their tax return packets in the mail, according to William Reed, director of the Income Tax Division in the state Revenue Department.

Mailings will include all forms previously used by the taxpayer along with guidelines for filing. Two different packets are used, one containing 44 pages of material, the other 28 pages.

The larger packet is applicable to self-employed persons, farmers and those showing a capital gain. Reed noted that, on this packet, the address label must be detached from the front of the packet and attached to the tax form.

The smaller packet has the address and taxpayer's information in the necessary location on the form.

The only state changes are in the sales tax table and the gasoline tax table. Sales tax figures are lower because of the cut-off of tax on food. The gasoline table has been prepared on the basis of the seven-cents-per-gallon tax for six months and the two cents increase for the last six months.

Items eligible for special sales tax deduction are boats, planes and material purchased directly by a homeowner in construction of a new residence. The auto use tax also is a separate deduction.

The Internal Revenue Service has ruled that the full amount charged as a fee on such credit card plans as Bankamericard and Master Charge are eligible for tax deduction. However, taxpayers are warned that before showing a charge made by a private business on other than an installment contract, the amount must be certified as a carrying charge and not a service fee.

Deductions eligible for the first time are political contributions and child care expenses. Federal standards have been carried over by the state Department of Revenue in these areas.

Political contributions for those itemizing deductions may be as much as $50 for an individual or $100 per couple. These are not listed with contributions to charities, but must be placed with miscellaneous deductions.

Child care deductions might be applicable to a taxpayer with no children.

The law covers three situations: (a) a dependent under 15 years of age; (b) a dependent of a taxpayer who is physically or mentally disabled; (c) a disabled spouse of a taxpayer.

Reed warns there are a number of technicalities involved in this deduction and that taxpayers should check guidelines carefully before using this deduction.

The greatest variance between federal and state returns will be found by the husband and wife filing separate returns. For federal, each must file a completely separate return, while Kentucky forms provide for filing the return on a single form.

Only persons who have more than $1,000 in income not subject to withholding must file estimated returns, Reed noted.

Many people eligible for a deduction for contributions in material or service to a charity often fail to take this tax relief, the director said.

Errors most often causing delays in securing refunds are failure to attach withholding forms to the tax return, failure to list dependents, lack of social security number and the return signature.

Since Kentucky audits each return as it is received, the earlier a refund return is filed the quicker it can be processed, Reed said. He advised those who have a refund coming to file their returns directly to Kentucky Tax Refund, P.O. Box 740, Frankfort.

Records verifying all deductions should be kept for seven years. In most cases cancelled checks are sufficient but invoices for medical bills and drugs are required.

Reed said assistance in preparing tax forms is available from his department's Frankfort office or any of the field offices located in Ashland, Bowling Green, Corbin, Covington, Hazard, Hopkinsville, Lexington, Louisville, Owensboro, Paducah and Pikeville.

FHA meeting held February 7

The Nicholas County FHA Chapter held its monthly meeting Feb. 7, in the high school cafeteria.

The meeting was brought to order by Sandra Cleaver. The minutes were read by Karen Watkins and the treasurer, Judy Hunter, gave her report. Kathy Duncan, devotion leader, read a poem.

Dianne Allison wrote and presented a skit on the FHA Scholarship Project. Cindy Wills and Carla Hunt participated in the skit.

Sandra Cleaver adjourned the meeting and refreshments were served.

Competition for tourists is stiff--Ford

Gov. Wendell Ford said recently that competition for tourist dollars is growing stiffer, presenting a challenge for Kentuckians who are in a position to meet the traveling public.

In an address given before the Annual Governor's Conference on Tourism, Ford said the battle for vacationers and other travelers is growing more intense every year. "It's getting a lot tougher just to stay in the ball game," he said.

"Foreign countries are becoming our strongest competitors," Ford said, and continued that, "tomorrow will be too late to meet this challenge. If we don't meet the competition the trade goes elsewhere."

The governor said that Kentucky has stepped up its tourist promotion efforts directed toward national magazines and newspapers, but there is a challenge to the individual as well.

"No matter the brilliance of our promotions", he said, "no matter the wealth of our natural beauty and recreational opportunities, unless there is another element, we will be plowed under by competition. The other element? Hospitality."

According to Ford, it's up to Kentuckians to meet the challenge: The waitress; room clerk; guide; shop-keeper; station attendant; and everyone that meets the public in one way or the other.

The governor cited the fact that $36 million more was spent in Kentucky by out-of-state tourists during 1972 than in previous years.

Spring is tree planting time

By Paul Howard Special Writer

If you're thinking about planting trees this spring, now's the time to order seedlings. Just about any kind of tree can be obtained from one of the state Division of Forestry's tree nurseries.

Forestry Director Harry Nadler advises that nursery personnel will begin lifting seedlings to fill orders around mid-February. Those who have mailed orders by that time will receive seedlings around the first of March—ideal planting time, according to Nadler.

The spring tree planting season generally runs from the last week in February through the first week of April.

"For many reasons the woodlands of our state must continually be developed," said Nadler. "They serve as a source of recreation and beauty, as a home for wildlife and as a source of timber. If Kentucky's landowners are going to meet the demands for woodland created by the needs of an ever-increasing population, they need to be planting seedlings now on all the land which they have available for the purpose."

Any landowner who desires the advise of a professional forester in regard to tree planting should contact the Division of Forestry office in this area. At the landowner's request a forester will make an examination of the proposed planting site and recommend the type and number of trees that could most profitably be planted on the land. Advise on proper planting methods and any other technical assistance desired by the landowner will also be given.

Seedlings available from the division's nurseries this spring are: Loblolly, Shortleaf, White, Virginia and Scotch pine, Black locust and Black walnut, Yellow poplar, Cottonwood, Sycamore, White and Cherrybark oak, and Chinese chestnut. Superior Cottonwood and hybrid Poplar cuttings also are available.

Because the purpose of the state nurseries is to provide seedlings for reforestation, the minimum order which can be filled is 500 seedlings. It takes approximately 500 seedlings to plant a half-acre.

The cost of the seedlings is $10 per-thousand except for Black walnut and Scotch pine which sell for $15 per-thousand. The superior Cottonwood and hybrid Poplar cuttings cost $20 per-thousand.

Anyone wishing to purchase tree seedlings can obtain an order blank from any of the division's local offices, County Extension, Soil Conservation Service or Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation offices.

Daddy-Date night held for FHA

The Nicholas County FHA Chapter held it's Daddy-Date Night Wednesday, Feb. 7. The potluck supper took place at 6:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

Following the meal the group assembled in the gym for relay games and races. Fathers and daughters competed for prizes. Karen Watkins was in charge of the event and Carla Hunt was responsible for the recreation.

This project was to help the chapter reach its goal for better family relations.

After sundown there's still a lot of fun time left... with light for recreation

Plan now to get more out of spring and summer with outdoor light... when fun time can go right on after sun time. Then you'll be all set to really enjoy being outdoors at night: games, entertaining, family back-yard picnics. Even now that young pitcher might want a headstart on the Little League season.

Outdoor lighting installation involves no big problems or costs. Electricity used is minimal... a 100-watt bulb, for example, burns 10 hours for about 3¢. So why not talk to us, at any of our offices, about the many benefits of outdoor lighting (including safety) — and the many kinds available. No obligation.

Lewis County fells Jackets, 73-55

by Pat Conley

The Nicholas County Bluejackets put together 55 points here last Friday night. Meanwhile the guest Lewis County Lions drew 34 points from three players. Unfortunately the remainder of the Lion squad combined for 19 markers as Lewis pasted Nicholas, 73-55.

The Lions were big and tall. A very physical team, Lewis County displayed plenty of pushing and shoving as an effective part of its repertoire.

The smaller Jackets did a commendable job of holding the big boys off the backboards, limiting the Lions to one shot at a time throughout most of the first half.

With Doug Fryman's patented left-handed set shot blooming two in from long range, the Bluejackets spurted to a 7-1 early lead over a cold shooting pack of Lions.

Nicholas made some boo-boos and the Lewis guards began to warm up somewhat as 6', 210 hatchet man George Anderson banged one in from close range to even it up 13-13, at the quarter.

Coach Bill Anderson directed his troops into a 1-2-2 zone defense in order to check the surging Lions. Lewis held leads of four most of the way in the second stanza, but a nifty Ricky Hicks to Victor Bromagen feed, and a Gerald Thompson bomb from the Dairy Queen put the locals up 34-30 at the half.

The second half was the clincher. Lewis County' came out pressing the Jackets full-court. Committing six turnovers in the first four minutes of the half, the Jackets gave the Lions a quick 12 point lead.

Lion forwards began manhandling the little Jackets on the bounds and Lewis began to hit very well. Nicholas brought the lead down three points but lost Raymond Compton and "team-leader-in-just-about-everything," Gerald Hatton, late in the quarter.

With two starters on the bench, Jackets hopes were very dim at the outset of the third quarter. Surprisingly, the stubborn Jackets rallied behind forward Bromagen, who split the nets twice in a row from the corner cutting the Lion lead to five at 52-47.

Wallace Edwards provided what little excitement there was to see for Jacket fans in the final seven minutes. Edwards, a 5' 9" sophomoge utility man has been gaining steadily from experience and looked very self-assured in blocking several Lion shots. Unfortunately, neither Edwards nor his teammates could shoot during this span, scoring only eight points to 21 for Lewis County.

It's obvious that Nicholas County suffered from the loss of Hatton when the game was still close. Minus Hatton's ballhandling and scoring potential, the Jackets looked very, very flat and rolled steadily thereafter. Lewis won easily 73-55.

Nicholas County (55): Fryman 13, Hatton 9, Bromagen 15, Compton 2, Thompson 8, Hicks 6, Edwards 2.

Lewis County (73): Reeder 19, A. Prater 16, Hacker 5, Anderson 3, Crabtree 4, Pierce 5, Silvey 2, C. Prater 19.

Nicholas County 13 34 43 55.
Lewis County 13 30 52 73.

REPORTS TO THE PEOPLE OF KENTUCKY

KURT KELLEY

Kurt Kelley biography

Kurt Kelley was born June 15, 1954 at the Nicholas County Hospital. He was educated in the Carlisle Elementary School and moved to the Nicholas County system after the schools consolidated, where he is now a senior and will graduate in June.

He is a member of the school's football, basketball and track teams. He received the honor of "All Conference" in football last year and was the recipient of the 110's Award this year. He also won several medals in track competition.

Other school activities include his participation in the Pep Club, Vica Club, and Vocational School.

He attends the Carlisle Baptist Church and held a part-time job at Coatney's I.G.A.

He coached a Jaycee Little League basketball team.

Kurt's recent accident is not his only major crisis in life. When only an infant, his legs were malformed. He overcame this obstacle and participated in child activities normally. He overcame this obstacle so well that even a limp was hardly noticable.

In recent years I believe Congress has been negligent in carrying out its oversight responsibility with respect to federal agencies and programs enacted by the Congress. The Congress and its appropriate committees should and must make periodic investigations to insure that the intent of Congress is being carried out by the agencies and to make sure federal programs are doing what they are intended to do.

Much has been said and written recently about the loss of power by the Congress. Part of this erosion of power can be explained by its failure to closely oversee federal programs and agencies. All too often, Congress has passed laws setting up worthy programs but leaving the federal agencies almost total discretion as to how the programs shall be implemented. The result in many cases has been that the agencies have distorted or changed the programs beyond the original intent of Congress. It also often results in waste and inefficiency.

As I have said on numerous occasions, government like nature abhors a vacuum. If Congress fails to provide the necessary direction and instruction on how programs shall be administered and carried out, bureaucrats in the agencies will fill that vacuum.

Not only does this produce bad government, but it also produces bad democracy. Bureaucrats and agency officials are often highly qualified and capable people, but they are appointed—not elected. Their responsibility is to carry out policies enacted by the representatives of the people, not to make policy.

If Congress abdicates its oversight and management functions, as has often happened in the past, the bureaucrats and agencies end up making policy as well as carrying it out. This causes frustration and often bitterness among citizens who feel powerless to affect or change government policies with which they disagree.

I believe that a majority of the Congress now agrees more must be done to prevent this erosion of power through inaction. The Congress must assert itself and look more closely into the operations of federal programs and agencies. If the programs are not working, we should eliminate them. If they are being administered wrong, we should crack down on the bureaucracy. If they need changing, we should improve them.

The point is that the job of Congress does not end when a program is enacted. That is only the beginning. Congress must check, re-check and check again to make sure these programs are being run properly. We must make sure that a vacuum in responsibility does not exist.
