The 1973-74 seasons for upland game birds and animals have been set by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. The squirrel season will open the third Saturday in August (Aug. 18) and run through Oct. 31, with the second half of the split season beginning the third Thursday of November (Nov. 15) and running through Dec. 31.

The season for quail, rabbits and furbearers (striped skunk, mink, muskrat, beaver, opossum, raccoon and weasel) will run from Nov. 15 through Jan. 31. There will be no season for the spotted skunk, since it is now classified as an endangered species in Kentucky and may not be taken or year-round and may not be possessed or taken in any manner.

The season for grouse will also open Nov. 15 and will remain open through Feb. 28. Because of recent stocking programs, there will be no open season for grouse in Christian, Caldwell, Hopkins, Butler, Hardin, Bullitt, Meade (including Fort Knox), Taylor, and Adair counties.

The daily limits are: squirrels, six; that the total harvest of doves may be lower than normal this year due to the lateness of the corn and silage crops. However, fields where these crops will mature early should have exceptionally good concentrations of doves.

Certain wildlife management areas have seasons differing from the statewide season. On the Ballard County, West Kentucky, Central Kentucky and Curtis Gates Loyd Wildlife Management Areas, the season will be from Sept. 1 through Oct. 15, and on the Land Between the Lakes area from Sept. 1 through Sept. 30.

Normally a household's eligibility is based on anticipated monthly income during the certification period. The usual certification period is three months. The provisions of the new amendment do not apply to workers who are involuntarily laid off and workers whose income is unexpectedly halted.

Motorcycle Safety

VISIBILITY CAN MEAN SURVIVAL.
Anyone who mounts the saddle of a motorcycle has got to think about survival.

Accidents—bad accidents—come easy for the cyclist. He has all the hazards of automobile travel plus several of his own. In addition, when an accident occurs, it is likely to be spectacular and the injuries severe. The cyclist doesn't have the built-in protection of an automobile, imperfect as that is.

One of the greatest dangers in an eastern city decided to abandon the bumper-to-bumper rush hour scene in favor of a motorcycle with its convenience and economy. It was no one's fault, really, and it was a low-speed accident. But that split second when the auto driver couldn't see the motorcycle in the intersection left the cyclist a mass of broken bones. After months in the hospital he recovered enough to return to work, but he will spend the rest of his life knowing pain in his deformed and crippled body.

That's the message government safety experts are sounding to try to prevent such accidents: If you get on a motorcycle be sure the cars and trucks on the road can see you.

During the day, bright-colored clothing and even headlights may help. At night they suggest lavish use of retro-reflective material on clothing and sides of the experience offered by the program makes classroom instruction more meaningful for the student.

The responsibility of the paid employment position motivates higher achievements and develops maturity while orienting the students to the "World of Work." The work also provides income while learning, and opens the doors to future employment. Although financial benefits are secondary to the educational considerations in this cooperative program, the earning potential is still important and may enable the student to help pay the costs of education.

The employing business pays the student directly for work and affords opportunity for valuable job experience. A student's earnings will vary according to the type of business, but all students are paid at least the minimum wage.

Numerous work opportunities have already been identified for students from this area enrolling in the program. Those interested in participating in this program should contact the instructor, David Kraemer, at Mayville Community College for further information.

motorcycle (in addition to headlights, of course). This is the same material that is used to produce the highway and street signs that "light up" at night.

The safety helmet continues to be the best single factor in cutting the death and injury risk when accidents do occur. (And they do occur: 328,000 in 1971 with 2,419 fatalities.)

So important is the safety helmet that nearly every state has passed strict laws requiring their use. It was too late, however, for young Joe P., who was a passenger on a motorcycle ride home from a nearby college town in a southern state. The rider died instantly. Joe lay in a coma for weeks, awakening finally with severe brain damage. He lives in apparent good physical health, but the once-promising young man will eventually move into an institution after his parents can no longer care for him at home.

In his case, the helmet would have reduced the risk dramatically and might have saved his companion. Only California, Wyoming, Iowa, Illinois and Mississippi still lack helmet laws. Traffic safety estimates indicate there will be alone this year, 150 of which would be prevented with helmet use.

There are other precautions recommended by the injury control specialists at the Bureau of Community

Environmental Management, a component of HEW's Health Services and Mental Health Administration: Goggles or face-shield, to improve vision and protect against flying gravel, etc.

Tough clothing to help absorb the scrapes, scratches, cuts and bumps—leather jacket and gloves, sturdy trousers and footwear even in hot weather.

A vehicle equipped with rear view mirror and windshield. These protective measures together with good driving skill and judgment can let the motorcycle be a convenient, fun, economical AND safe way to get around.
