Taylor Ring was in the local hospital a few hours but has returned.

I've heard it said that one should never begin a thing on Friday, but I'm beginning this news on Friday, the 13th. No black cats seemed to be out today.

Barbara usually has a movie for us on Friday. Today she had a good movie up in the day room.»The name of it was "Winter of the Witch." I enjoyed every bit of it. Lloyd Duncan and Mrs. Claudia Wells enjoyed it too.

Nurse Jean Rogers brought her mother, nurse Alnie Sharp, around for us to meet. She used to work at Nicholas County Hospital, but I believe she's at Fleming County Hospital now.

Tony Lauderdaing, nurse Carol's little brother, is now in St. Joseph Hospital. He had a tonsillectomy.

MEDICINE CHEST

by H. BOSWELL YORK, R. PH.

Are there any new medicines for treating asthma? — M.C.

Two medicines with great potential are Cromolyn Sodium and Prostaglandin E1. Cromolyn is widely prescribed in England, and is being studied here. It helps to desensitize people to dust, pollens, etc. If a person were desensitized, he would have fewer asthma attacks. Prostaglandin E1, also under study, is a bronchodilator and is stronger than Isoproterenol.

Please tell me what Robaxisal does for arthritis. Does it have any side effects? — Mrs. B.

Robaxisal contains aspirin plus a skeletal muscle relaxant. The pain-relieving qualities of aspirin for arthritis are well known. The skeletal muscle relaxant will help to take the stiffness out of painful muscles. This medicine could have side effects which would occur shortly after you start taking it. If you haven't experienced any discomfort since you started taking Robaxisal, then your doctor has prescribed the right medicine for you.

Are many medicines affected by sunlight? — P.K.

Yes. That's why many of them are dispensed by the pharmacist in amber-colored bottles. If you receive your medicine in an amber bottle, it's a good idea to place it safely away from sunlight.

As one gets older, can a drug cause certain side effects which it didn't cause before? — Mrs. W.

Yes. People 65 and over who take medication for a chronic condition (e.g. heart disease) may experience side effects from the drug which they did not experience before. Sometimes it means that the dosage has to be decreased; other times it means a change in medication. Experiencing side effects? Call your doctor!

I take Indocin for recurrent arthritis. Is it permissible to take aspirin with it for added pain relief? — M.S.

Generally, no. Taking aspirin with Indocin may cause a decrease in the effectiveness of Indocin, plus aspirin may cause stomach and/or intestinal irritation. Before you take any other medication with this powerful drug, consult with your physician or pharmacist.

GET YOUR $ WORTH

BY SALLY AND JIM ADAMS

ARE YOU AN AGGRESSIVE SHOPPER?

Your local supermarket has advertised butter at a sale price of 90 cents a pound, but when you get to the store you find the butter packages stamped at the regular price of 95 cents. Do you meekly pay the stamped price (after all, it's only a nickel), or do you speak to the manager and insist on paying the sale price?

In other words, are you an aggressive shopper? By aggressive, we don't mean being rude or unpleasant, we mean demanding a fair deal. With prices as they are, there's no reason to put up with misrepresentation, shoddy merchandise, poor repair work. Here, in a trip to the supermarket, is an illustration of how to shop aggressively.

Cultivate the butcher and the head of the produce department and don't be afraid to ask questions – they can steer you to the best quality, the best buys. If they don't care to take the time to help you, think about taking your business elsewhere.

If you can't find advertised bargains, ask the clerk or manager. You should know that some stores employ a tactic called "buried bargains" – attracting customers by cutting the price of an item but burying it in a hard-to-find location. The psychology is that you'll give up looking and settle for a similar item at a higher price. Don't fet the store get away with it.

Many stores are tending to carry only large-size packages, particularly in the produce department. Have no compunction about asking to have a package broken – there's no reason why you should have to take a larger quantity than you can use. Many shoppers today are asking the clerk to split large bulches of greens, such as parsley and escarole. Why not? And if a prepackaged item doesn't look fresh, ask to have it opened for inspection.

Keep your eye on the cash register. Few clerks are out to cheat you, but store managers admit they have difficulty getting experienced help and have to settle for untrained, indifferent clerks. They make mistakes out of carelessness or ignorance, and it's up to you to make sure you get what you pay for.

Don't be embarrassed about calling attention to an overcharge, even if it's only a few cents. Others add up, and the aggressive shopper is one who demands his or her money's worth.

Farm safety

FRANKFORT—Gov. Wendell Ford has proclaimed the week of July 29-31 "Farm Safety Week" in Kentucky.

In doing so, he cited the fact that hundreds of Kentuckians are injured or lose their lives in agricultural accidents each year.

"This drain on the human and economic resources of the agricultural community and our state can be reduced," said Ford, "if rural people, acting individually and collectively, take a decisive stand for safety."

The Kentucky Farm Safety Council is one of the most active of the state's groups in promoting safety.

"While only five percent of the nation's population is involved in agriculture, approximately 10 percent of accidental deaths are agriculture related," said William C. Johnstone, president of the council.

Johnstone said that during this week they would concentrate on familiarizing the public with safety hazards thru the mass media, involve all the farm organizations in observing the week, and alert people to the dangers that farm modernization brings.

The safety council's latest project has been a slide presentation to promote compliance among farmers and others involved in agriculture with the Occupational Health and Safety Act recently passed by Congress.

Retail training offered at Community College

At Maysville Community College, a program in Retail Mid-Management is being developed and will be open to students this fall. This cooperative program is one in which the student learns the skills of a Retail Mid-Manager both in the classroom and on the job. Along with the formal instruction received in classes, the student works as a manager in a fully paid position. This provides a source of income now, and valuable experience for the future.

Retail Mid-Managers are the group of management personnel who work directly with those with total store responsibility and coordinates the supervisors and other employees. About ten per cent of the employees in retailing are Mid-Managers. The annual need for Retail Mid-Managers in Kentucky is estimated to be 300, with a supply of less than 50.

The Mid-Manager supervises the work of others, usually from six to 12 people. Much of the time, the work is in the areas of merchandise control, merchandise selection and promotion, and customer service. Part of the time is devoted to personnel duties, selling, analyzing the performance of a particular department, and working with budgets. A smaller portion of time is spent in receiving and stocking, and pricing.

Those interested in becoming a manager in a retail store operation should contact the instructor, David Kraemer, at Maysville Community College for further information.

THE HOME GAME

by MARY FUREY CRYMES

ELEGANT FOWL — Everyday chicken becomes elegant poulet if you marinate it in a mixture of 2 quarts of water, 5 teaspoons of salt and 2 of MSG. Put the chicken in a deep container, pour on marinade and refrigerate. Next day, drain, pat dry and fry, bake or broil as usual.

CLOTH WEIGHT — Sew a triangular pocket in each corner of your picnic cloth. Use sturdy, contrasting fabric and before using slip a rock in each pocket. Holds the cloth down on windy days.

TOY TRAP — Tired of helping the tots search for tiny plastic toys? Buy one or several inexpensive, see-through hanging shoe bags and tack 'em to a closet door. Put the toys in the shoe spaces and teach the kids to look there first.

SUGAR SHAKEUP — You'll never be out of powdered sugar if you've a blender and a supply of granulated. Put a cup of the latter in the blender and whirl on "high" for two seconds. Be sure to remeasure your non-lumpy powdered sugar.

EGG LIFT — Remove poached eggs easily from simmering water with a potato masher. Slip the round disc under the egg and lift gently. Water drains off through the holes and the egg remains intact.
