GET YOUR $ WORTH
SHOPPING BY JIM ADAMS

SHIPPING BY CATALOGUE

Anything that helps you manage or time is worth looking into, so let's take a look at a fast growing retail industry that's selling about a billion dollars worth of goods a year - the catalogue showroom.

The idea is simplicity itself. You're interested, say, in a new toaster. In the comfort of your living room you thumb through the XYZ catalogue and compare the various toasters listed, noting price, brand name, etc. When you find a toaster that seems to meet your requirements, you hop down to the catalogue showroom, inspect the display sample of the toaster. If it looks good, you fill out an order form, pay your money and depart with the merchandise.

Catalogue showrooms aren't new, but you'll be seeing more and more of them as more big discount companies and retailers get into the business. More people are shopping by catalogue because prices are low - quite a bit lower than at a regular department store, even lower than at discount stores. The reason is that catalogue showrooms need less room, displaying only one sample of each item; they require fewer clerks and generally don't advertise heavily. However, they don't carry a full line of merchandise - they're generally limited to housewares, small appliances, jewelry, watches, radios, stereo components, photographic equipment and the like.

Most catalogues give the manufacturer's list price or the "suggested retail price" in dollars and cents, the catalogue price in cents. For instance, a catalogue entry for a small table might read like this: "17.13" or "1713¢". The last four numbers refer to the list price, the four numbers before the dot to the catalogue price - $19.99.

Using a catalogue makes for convenient shopping, but it can be a little tricky. First, there's always a bias in that items that catalogue showrooms usually display are of considerable value. But there's always a bias there, and generally require you to pay the shipping cost when you buy merchandise that has to be returned to the factory. And finally, catalogue showrooms do not rely on the "pull" of the merchandise itself. Check the catalogue item against the identical item in your local department or discount store - only what you will be sure of getting your dollar's worth.

CRICHER A STUNNING HAT

Hats are coming back with a mad passion. The return is none too soon, as there is nothing more flattering, particularly in spring and summer, than the light filtering through the trim of a straw fascinator.

You can save on the high cost of hats, and at the same time create something uniquely distinctive for you. The method of crocheting. The stunning hat illustrated was designed by Schollkopf Design. Such a perquisite for simplicity combined with an artistic appreciation of how a basic hat can be transformed with the addition of pom-poms in luscious colors.

Here's a fascinating history, beginning as a utilitarian head-covering for protection from the weather and the 18th century, in its greatest glory, a conical-shaped headpiece often three feet high draped with veiling. The romantic Florentine straw hat and the more modern versions, designed and worn by Marie Antoinette, had been the forerunner of today's charming headgear.

The straw hat of today is modern Strawtes. It is soft and pliable to work with and a far cry from the "old fashioned" raffia made from the fibers of palm trees. Strawtes is rayon. It's available in a rainbow of colors. Moreover, it is hand washable. Combine three or four different colors for the pom-poms on a hat of basic color and make a stunningly shaggy crocheted hat.

Crochet is the simplest form of the needlework craft of the 20th century. It starts with the loop step, which is a loop slipped onto the crocheted hook. It's even easier than knitting, so you are only working with one instrument. The crocheted hook is held in the right hand like a pencil, a familiar position. The yarn is adjusted over the forefinger on the left hand.

With the yarn placed over the hook from back to front, it is drawn through the loop. The next step is to pull the yarn over the hook, then the loop. The process continues until a series of chain stitches and gradual variations, which are described in booklets of eight- and 16-page size.

However, one of the things to remember in learning to crochet is to relax. The yarn will flow more easily in relaxed fingers and the finished article will be more uniform. The loops and stitches should be just loose enough for the hook to travel through easily. Practice a bit and you'll find the stitches flowing, and yourself relaxing with them.

The Strawtes pom-poms are made on a round plastic form. After trying, drawing off the pom-pom, and clipping the ends, hold each one carefully over a steamer or the spout of a kettle of steaming water. The more the pom-pom is steamed, the more it "blooms." becoming beautifully fluffy.

The beautiful STRAW MARKET instruction book for hat, handbags, placemats and a number of summer items, $1.25, is available in most stores where needlework supplies are sold. If unable to locate it, write to Bernhard Uniform, 30-20 Thomson Avenue, Long Island City, N.Y. 11101 for information or to your nearest store. (c) 1973, McNaught Synchro, Inc.

Kay's Kitchen

— By Kay Fisher

This is the one time of the year when you can have fresh wild salad, and I wish it were not called a salad. In fact, it is a member of the parsley family. You may find wild salad of the dried dill plant later in the season. Right now I have the fresh feathery green plant growing in my garden.

Most everyone is familiar with the dill seed and dried dill seed in making pickles, however, the fresh green dill will give a delicate subtle flavor to dishes you will want to serve now.

For my favorite for garnish and eating:

1 cup thinly sliced onion
4 tablespoons fresh dill sprig fine
1 1/2 lb. can chilled salmon
Combine soup cream, lemon juice, mustard, onion, and dill over and over again. Remove bones and skin. Place salmon on lettuce and spoon dressing mixture on top. This makes a good luncheon dish served with the onion dill bread.

ONION DILL BREAD

1 medium onion chopped
1 tablespoon margarine
1 package dry yeast
1 cup warm water
1 cup milk, scalded
1/4 cup shortening
1 1/2 teaspoons sugar
1 1/2 cups eggs flour
1 tablespoon dill seed
1 egg

Soften onion in butter or margarine till tender but not brown; set aside. Cook yeast in warm water. Combine milk, shortening, sugar, and salt. Stir in a cup of the flour. Beat well. Add the softened onion, cooled onion, dill and egg; mix well. Add enough of the remaining flour to make a moderate stiff dough. Turn on lightly floured surface; knead till smooth and satiny. Shape. Turn wall. Place in lightly greased bowl, turning once to grease surface. Cover and let rise in water place till double. Punch down, cover
