Southern States shows increase in new fiscal Year

Southern States Cooperative's dollar volume for its purchasing operations for the first 6 months of the 1972-73 fiscal year showed a 16.1% increase as compared with the same period last year. All commodity divisions also showed increases for the period.
This was reported by Paul E. Mullins, director of community services for the organization, to a regional meeting of local board and committee members held at Morehead on Feb. 28.
Attending the session from this area were Frank Vaughn, manager of S.S. U.S. Carlisle Cooperative and Southern States retail outlet at Carlisle, and board members: Edgar Darrell, Sam Reynolds, Eugene Letcher, Roger McCarty, Quinton Merchants, Clay Fryman, William Dampier. Also attending were the following guest young farmers: Don Darrell, Jimmie Whirlies, Billy Hunter, Gary Ritchie, Bobby Kinder, Larry Hattie, and Douglas McCarty.
Mullins was assisted by Jack A. McHugh, manager operations research, fertilizer division.

A total of 18 of these meetings are being held this month by the cooperative across the five states in which it operates. The association serves over 220,000 farm members in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and Kentucky.
Mullins told the session that purchasing volume stood at $71,118,000 for the first half of the fiscal year as compared to $61,220,000 a year ago. Net savings, before taxes, for the period reached $12,900 up to $68,000.
Formulas feed volume was 187,000 tons, up about 7% over last year; fertilizer tonnage was 125,000 tons, up about 15%; Farm supply volume reached $18,350,000, an increase of 24.5% and petroleum volume was 73,600 gallons, up about 13.6%.
Volume for local affiliated cooperatives was $42,820,000, up 13.8% over last year, while net savings for affiliates was $45,000, up $16,000 for the period.
In commenting on the increased cost of protein and mixed feeds as well as high grain prices, Mullins said, "they are likely to be around awhile. Prices for some protein sources, notably soybean meal are at the highest level in history. Exports to Communist bloc countries, combined with a virtual breakdown in transportation and an extremely late harvest season have created this condition."
The energy crisis, according to Mullins, "will affect farming operations and the living habits of all of us in the future. The day of cheap energy is probably past and we can look forward to higher electric bills, higher priced gasoline, fuel oil and natural gas. Natural gas is scarce and its shortage will likely increase."
"The available supply of natural gas will also have a bearing on the availability of nitrogen for use on farms this spring. Potash will be plentiful but transpor-

tion is the limited factor here. The supply of phosphate will be larger than last year but not enough to meet the demand. In view of the tight situation on nitrogen and phosphate, prices will likely strengthen. The amount of increase will depend to some extent on Phase III guidelines and how they are applied.
Mullins urged those attending the session to place their fertilizer and seed orders early so as to avoid shortages at the peak of the spring planting season.
In looking at agriculture in 1973, Mullins said it appears that "certain prices should be strong. Hog and beef cattle prices should remain strong throughout the first half of the year; the dairy industry is in a favorable position with the prospect of net income gains, although higher feed, replacement labor costs could take some of the edge off profit margins. Egg prices look fairly good for the year while the outlook for improved prices on broiler and turkeys is good although it may not be enough to offset increased feed costs. Tobacco sales are expected to be larger this year along with a 5% increase in support levels."
Government influence, which has been with us all along, Mullins declared, is spreading to more areas than ever before. He cited as an example the Occupational and Safety Health Act (OSHA), which outlines safety requirements for any business of farm with seven employees or more. The degree of enforcement of OSHA could have great economic impact not only on agriculture but on agriculture in general.
Also, he pointed out, the Environmental Protection Agency regulations could have far reaching effects on farmers and farmer cooperatives.
Following the operations report, the co-op's management team participated in a question and answer session.
Hayward B. Hill of Charleston, West Va., a director of the cooperative, presided at the session.
After lunch, there was the presentation of the cooperative's 50th anniversary commemorative awards to local boards and stockholders; committee chairmen, who headed 100% attendance groups when the session was called to order. The awards were presented to: J. B. Darrell, who headed 100% attendance groups when the session was called to order. The awards were presented to: J. B. Democrats plan all out drive

Kentucky Democrats, intent on the plan to popularize their party, will be calling on all registered voters in the spring in a first-of-its-kind endeavor.
The undertaking, a massive fund raising campaign, will pay off the remainder of Dee Huddleston's campaign debt and build a permanent State Democratic Headquarters facility in Frankfort.
Party leaders from all across the Commonwealth met in Frankfort recently to discuss plans for the drive.
Gov. Wendell Ford, Chairman of the drive, emphasized, "We give to the great—the Democratic Party and people, live and me, who care more about the involved. People, who want to speak out, who want to have a voice in public. Democratic Party is people. People, who only just begin."
Party Chairman J. H. Miller pointed out that, "We are going to the people rather than special interest groups. This money, we want the people to build a place of permanence for the party—a place that will outlive any one candidate or group of men... a place from which our party can direct and assert its leadership for years to come."
The drive gets underway in March with a direct mail appeal to all registered Democrats.

Huston Delaney named manager of Fleming-Mason

Huston Delaney, 38, has been selected as Manager of Fleming-Mason Rural Electric to Cooperate plans for the drive. He succeeded C. Ross who has headed the 11,000 member cooperative for the past 25 years. Mr. Ross, who resigned, was named Manager Emerita in an Advisory Capacity. The change was announced by Albert Dickert, president of the Board. Following its regular meeting, the vote was unanimous.
In announcing his resignation, Mr. Ross recommended Mr. Delaney to replace him. In making his recommendation, Mr. Ross stated "He has the experience, qualifications and capabilities of serving the cooperative as an enlightened and industrious manager."
Mr. Ross who is cofounder of the cooperative was its first president and was the one who made the first move to get the program underway 25 years ago. During the intervening years he has seen it grow from a 220 member cooperative with 92.9 miles of line to its present membership of over 11,000 members and 2,380 miles of line.
Both Mr. Ross and his wife have been hospitalized recently and are now convalescing in Louisville.
Mr. Delaney is a graduate of Fleming County High School and has a degree in Business Administration from Morehead State University. During his 25 years with the cooperative he has been very active in community enterprises. He is a former area president of the Fleming County Club, president of the Fleming County Chamber of Commerce, and president of the Kentucky Rural Electric Member Services Association. He only recently resigned as president of the Buffalo Trace Electric Cooperative and has served as Member Services Director since 1967.
Mr. Delaney is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Delaney, of Dwing and he and his wife, the former Paul McKenzie, are the parents of a son Lee, aged 3.
Mr. Delaney stated that he would do everything in his power to continue the growth and development of rural electrification and the general development of the eight counties served by the cooperative.
These counties include all or parts of Fleming, Mason, Lewis, Boone, Clay, Brecken, Robertson, Bath and Nicholas counties.
The Cooperative is rated as one of the best in the state.
