Blue Jacket baseball opens season Friday

By John Soper

Nicholas County's Blue Jacket baseball team will open its season with Blue Jacket County Friday afternoon at Owingville. The Blue Jackets have a 24 game schedule before District Tournament play starts. Coach Bill Anderson has high hopes of this being one of his best teams. The early spring has allowed the Jackets to get in several days of practice. He also has a veteran squad as the only regular not returning is short stop Steve Mitchell. Back are catcher, Rudy Hollar; infielders, John Soper, Billy Allison and Gerald Hatton; outfielders, Kenneth Smoot, David Shupp and Dennis Berry. Pitchers returning are Doug Fryman, Glenn Fryman, Roy Fryman and Joe

Wilson. All of these played last summer in the Lexington Senior Babe Ruth League. Others players are Doug Darbo, Billy Darrell, Rocky Hicks, Mike Mitchell, Mitch Rice and Hugh Wilson. Anderson says "We've got 14 or 15 boys that can play baseball. So far they're really hitting the ball."
This may be due to the Jackets taking batting practice against a "pitching machine" bought by the Deposit Bank, First National Bank, Nicholas County P.C.A. and Blue Grass Industries for the Senior Babe Ruth team.
Nicholas County will play its home games at the local recreation park. The schedule is as follows:

Ward says ruling a blow

Tom Ward Democrat from Woodford County and State Senate Candidate in the 20th Senatorial District said today that last week's ruling by the Supreme Court that the states are free to vary their spending among public school districts was a shocking and disappointing blow to the people of Kentucky. "It means," Ward said, "that next year's Kentucky General Assembly will be faced with some very difficult decisions. Now, more than ever, we must have men in Frankfort who are experienced in the area of education. I am the only Senatorial candidate from this district who has first hand experience in education." Ward is a college instructor who has also taught on the high school level. Ward cited his experience in working with pre-schoolers as chairman of Head Start in Woodford County and his experience in working on the problem of dropouts on a multi-county level.

Ward pointed out that two of every three dollars in the General Fund are spent on education. "It only makes sense," he concluded, "that members of the General Assembly ought to be experienced in education." The 30th Senatorial District is composed of Bourbon, N.W. Fayette, Harrison, Nicholas, Scott, Robertson, and Woodford counties. The Democratic Primary is May 20.

White collar jobs up in Nicholas

What has been the effect of automation on Nicholas County's labor force in the last few years?
With regard to white collar and blue collar jobs locally, how do they split numerically at the present time, as compared with 1967?
As in most parts of the country, technological advances have caused many changes in the employment picture. With machines taking over many operations, the production workers are needed for the same amount of output.

By the same token, however, there has been a steadily growing need for people in clerical and management jobs.
It has led, in Nicholas County, to a sizeable increase in the proportion of white collar workers. The local rise, since 1960, is 5.3 percent.
Throughout the rest of the United States, there was a 5.2 percent rise. The findings are based upon detailed figures from the Department of Commerce and the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Classified as "white collar" in the government's reports are professional, technical and kindred workers, managers, proprietors, clerical and sales people.
In the "blue collar" group are mechanics, construction workers, craftmen, factory operatives and others engaged in the transportation and maintenance of goods and equipment.
Not included in either category are service workers and people employed on farms.

In Nicholas County, at the time of the 1960 census, the white collar contingent constituted 17.8 percent of the local labor force; the government figures showed, now, because of the changes that have taken place since then, there are approximately 23.1 percent in the white collar group.

The great difference that existed at one time in the earning capacity and living standards of the two types of workers has been disappearing. The blue collar worker has been getting more and more affluent.

Since 1955, the last year in which the labor force was equally divided in terms of blue and white collar, the gap has been widening. Nationally, there are now 11 million more in the white collar ranks than the blue collar.

Kentucky film selected top

FRANKFORT, Ky.—A Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources motion picture, "The Sportsman's Gift," has been selected the top film in the Outdoor Writers Association of America annual Film Awards program, according to E. Budd Marder III, Burlington, N.J., director of the OWAA program.
Selection of "The Sportsman's Gift" for OWAA's "Four-Star" rating, was made at the North American Wildlife and Natural Resources Conference in Washington, D.C. early this week following a preview of the four films chosen by the judging panel to be most outstanding among the 50 entries.
The film, produced and filmed for the fish and wildlife agency by Karl H. Maslowski, Cincinnati, with the narration by George Laycock, also of Cincinnati, shows some of the education and recreational opportunities—other than hunting and fishing—available to the public on Kentucky wildlife management areas. It was titled "The Sportsman's Gift" because the areas are financed by license fees and taxes on sporting equipment rather than by general tax funds and are thus "gift" to the public from Kentucky sportsmen.
The three films which "Gift" outranked in the final judging, and the producers, were: Think Like a Mountain, U.S. Department of Agriculture; Builders By Nature, Maine Inland Fisheries and Game Department; and The Sea Reefs, American Petroleum Institute.

"Keep away from people who try to belittle your ambitions. Small people always do that, but the really great make you feel that you, too, can become great."—Mark Twain.
