UK Band seeks alumni members

The University of Kentucky Wildcat Band is looking for all its members. William Harry Clark, director of UK bands, said "the students are interested in contacting all alumni of the marching band to update and complete mailing addresses and promote a better relationship between alumni and students."

Bill Loper, a junior music major from Lebanon, is the band's vice president for alumni affairs.

"We would like to start an alumni newsletter, and, if possible, have an all-alumni band perform at half-time of one of the home football games this fall," Loper said.

Former band members are requested to send their current address and information on any other alumnus to Alumni Services, c/o William Harry Clark, Fine Arts Building, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky. 40506.

"We would like to have as many names and addresses as possible by June 15 in order to make plans for the fall," Loper said. Alumni also are asked to send other information such as current occupation, family and interests.

VFW officers

Veterans of Foreign Wars officers for 1973-74 were installed Friday night, May 11, at a banquet held at the Post on Walnut Street.

State receives $179,000 intergovernmental grant

The State of Kentucky will receive an Intergovernmental Personnel Act grant of $179,000. It was announced today by Harmond B. Smith, Director of the Atlanta Regional Office of the U.S. Civil Service Commission.

The grant consists of six projects chosen by the Kentucky IPA Advisory Council, a group representing state, county, and municipal governments. The committee was appointed by the State Commissioner of Personnel, Cattie Lou Miller, to take a comprehensive cooperative approach to modernizing personnel practices in the state. The projects for the state include re-evaluation and analysis of mid-level job classifications and improvements in the selection examinations. The University of Kentucky and Western Kentucky University will receive funds to provide assistance to Kentucky cities and counties in developing and improving their personnel programs. Another project will assist the combined Lexington-Fayette County governments in establishing unified personnel administration.

This is the second consecutive year in which a grant has been awarded to Kentucky under the provisions of the Intergovernmental Personnel Act of 1970. The Act is administered by the Federal effort to assist in the improvement of public service at all levels of government.

In addition to grants, the Intergovernmental Personnel Act provides for temporary interchange of employees between governments with institutions of higher education, the admission of state and local employees to federal training courses, graduate fellowships for employees in administrative, professional, and technical occupations, technical assistance in recruitment, examination, training, and other personnel management areas, and cooperative recruiting and training among federal, state and local governments.

In just about a month the annual season for local fairs will be in full swing in Kentucky.

As Kentucky exhibitors make plans for exhibiting their animals and other products at different fairs throughout the summer, they should be mindful about the necessary health papers. Animals are required to have an approved health certificate in order to be exhibited at a county or local fair. These certificates are issued by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture's Division of Livestock Sanitation and are good for 28 days. This period is sufficient to cover the regular season.

Kentucky has one of the nation's top fair programs which is built on a long tradition of local fairs and expositions. Since 1962, the Kentucky Department of Agriculture has had a program under which State aid could be allocated to assist local fairs. This money is allocated on a matching basis and is designed to stimulate greater financial support at the local level as well as to provide direct financial assistance to the local fairs. A local fair can qualify for aid up to a maximum amount of $2,000. This money must be used as premiums on those classes meeting state requirements as approved classes. An exception is that an individual fair can use up to $500 of this amount for buildings or facilities. If the fair is already receiving the maximum amount, it cannot get an additional $500 for buildings, nor can it decrease its current premium spending in order to use the $500 for buildings or facilities.

If that this aid program has made a tremendous contribution to local fairs throughout the State. The premium money spent on approved classes and agriculture in general by increased steadily in recent years. Entries have been strong as has attendance.

Participation on the part of exhibitors and visitors are two important ingredients for a successful fair—and I urge all Kentuckians to do their part and enjoy themselves at the same time. Attend a local fair this year!
