

Spring is time for greens

The picking of greens is in full swing as "Booneborough," where frontiersmen supplemented a diet of corn, wild onion and pork with the same greens the cows chewed.

Poke salad is a firm favorite at Harlan Courtians and others who eat this mountain soul food in spring and preserve green beans for a Poke Salad.

"My favorite green was new greens," remarked a Morgan Courtian. "You can find them only on young and new ground is hard to come by these days."

...and leader shoes of poke grow throughout the highlands. At about the same time tiny tree buds begin to swell, nature is pushing forward to become a seasonal delicacy for the table.

For school children, greens have become a seasonal delicacy for the table. Moderns have practiced for generations what modernists have come to find in a common sight. Often with a green plant for seasoning. These instances, greens are easy to farm, most of them reproduce without help from man.

"My favorite green was new greens," remarked a Morgan Courtian. "You can find them only on young and new ground is hard to come by these days."
