Council votes to uphold trailer ordinances in city

City Council voted Monday night to uphold by ordinance, including trailers within the city limits. The 4-0 vote, taken before R.D. Hunt arrived and with Don Smith not voting, came after a request by Bill Small for permission to put a trailer behind his greenhouse for his daughter's use.

Council was informed by Mayor Bill Power that the Insurance Services office representative inspected the City's fire protection facilities recently and has written the City with recommendations that must be met to maintain the present seventh class fire insurance classification.

Some of the recommended equipment will be purchased immediately with other equipment to be purchased as the money becomes available. The inspector also recommended that approximately 6-10 old double-outlet hydrants be replaced annually with approved triple-outlet hydrants. Other recommendations were also listed.

Fire school is scheduled for five nights beginning Wednesday, Oct. 10, from 6-10 p.m. Twelve firemen must attend or the school will be cancelled. This school is a requirement of the insurance inspector's office also.

Because of employees' objections, Council rescinded a previous motion to use the one-check payment plan at the First National Bank. Under the plan the bank would deposit each employee's check in his account and he would withdraw it each pay day as he desired. The bank would also complete various reports for the City when necessary at no charge.

Jock Conley, co-coordinator of the Bicentennial Committee, requested and received permission to use the City streets from June 24-June 30, 1974 for the celebrations next year.

Council voted to prepare a resolution supporting the construction of road 918 around the Cane Run Reservoir.

Building permits were granted to Don Hughes to build an addition on his home on Clifway Drive, and for a plank fence to be built at 110 Flace Street between the properties of Sally Morris and Louise Hobb.

A $1,465 revenue sharing check has been received by the City it was announced.

A motion was passed to permit Oliver Vix, Water Plant Manager, to purchase a spare pilot valve for the Water Plant and to have the old one repaired. Also included in the motion was permission to concrete the spillway at the plant.

Board of Education approves personnel evaluation procedure

The vote highlighted an abbreviated meeting which was, among other business, a request by a group of Carlisle High School alumni who sought to use the old school bell in a memorial-type display on the courthouse. That request was granted by the board.

In other business, the board approved contracts for non-resident students attending Nicholas County schools from the surrounding counties; approved an additional telephone line for the high school. The high school presently operates on a one-line system and it had been brought to the attention of the board by Supt. D.P. Parsley that the present system was overloaded.

approved insurance for the school system's tobacco crop, and transferred Pauline Wasson to the Title I program.

Details discussed

Board of Education approves personnel evaluation procedure

Saturday's meeting was the first regular meeting since the board and Supt. Parsley were involved in a court case in U.S. District Court in Lexington in which four former Nicholas County teachers had filed suit to be reinstated to their jobs.

The suit, filed by Tom Metcalfe, David J. Perrot, Mrs. Angela Nisacco and Mrs. Kathy Hanson, contended that the four were dismissed from their jobs without their jobs.

Mrs. Hanson was also the plaintiff in a suit in Nicholas Circuit Court in February in which she was awarded back pay for her detention from sixth grade teacher to instructor in the Head Start program.

U.S. District Judge H. David Hernandez is expected to rule soon in the most recent action.

Shumates visit Jockey plant in New Zealand

Top executives of Jockey International, the world's biggest men's underwear operation, went way down south recently. In fact, they went just about as far south as you can get—Christchurch, New Zealand, jumping off place for the South Pole, where they attended the Southern Hemisphere conference of Jockey manufacturing companies and met makers from South Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

Jockey International's leaders who made the long trip to New Zealand were Jack Wynn, the corporation's president; Wayne Shumate, chairman of the executive committee; and Ernst Ott, managing director of foreign operations.

In the few days at their disposal, they sampled the magnificent scenery of New Zealand's famed South Island and marvelled at the spectacle of great glaciers sweeping down from 12,000 ft. towering ice walls are fringed by fern and sub-tropical palms.

But they also came in for a few shocks. They learned that New Zealand, right here at the bottom of the world, beats every other country in per capita consumption of Jockey garments.

They also found that New Zealanders are much more venturesome in keeping up with modern trends than is the average American. In the United States there is a move away from traditional white and today 20 per cent of total production is in color.

But New Zealand is already turning out 55 per cent of its output in color and expects that this figure next year will reach 70 per cent. Australia turns out 50 per cent in color and South Africa 40 per cent.

Annual Kidney Foundation candy sales in progress

The annual candy sales to benefit the Kidney Foundation are now in progress in Nicholas county.

Martha Taylor, Nicholas county chairman representing the Kidney Foundation of Central Kentucky says that according to Directors at the Kidney Foundation, nearly 1,000 Kentucky residents die from kidney related diseases each year. With proper preventive and medical treatment, it is possible that many of these lives could have been saved.

The Kidney Foundation dedicates its efforts to the support of research to find ways to prevent kidney disease, to improve treatment, and to make today's treatments available to more patients. Kidney transplants are successful. More than 5,000 have been performed in the United States. The University of Kentucky Medical Center has done about 100. About 10,000 patients each year need a transplant, but fail to receive one because of lack of donor kidneys, facilities, and trained personnel. Success depends on the support of each of us.

The chief source of funds for the Kidney Foundation is the annual Halloween candy sale. The candy is packed in colorful, reusable bank filled with delicious individually-wrapped candy and gum. It sells for $1.00 per bank.

Anyone interested in helping with the candy sale, please contact Mrs. Taylor. Candy may be purchased from Nicholas County F.H.A. members, Mary Blount or Mrs. Taylor.

To someone with kidney disease your dollar could mean the gift of life.
