Rep. Perkins' bill on school lunch prices passes house

Rep. Carl D. Perkins of Kentucky said he was very gratified that the House passed his bill giving additional federal support "to hold the line" on school lunch prices, and predicted that "the Senate will act very soon on my bill."

Rep. Perkins, of the Seventh District, sponsored the bill "because our people are carrying enough of a burden from inflation now, and they ought to get some help wherever we can help them—and the cost of school lunches is one place that we can help them," he said.

The Perkins bill, which passed the House by a vote of 389 to 4, will help increase the amount of federal support school systems get to buy food and supplies by 25 percent.

It also helps the school breakfast program, and a program for mothers and infants who need good nutrition and cannot obtain it.

Rep. Perkins said he hopes that the President will sign the bill because in addition to helping families fight the rising prices caused by inflation, it "also keeps programs in operation which contribute a good deal to the nutrition and the health of our young people."

Concerned citizens group seeks G.I. addresses again

Persons from Lexington, Fayette and surrounding counties with relatives or friends in South Korea and all of S.E. Asia are asked to forward their names to the "Concerned Citizens Committee, P.O. Box 206, Lexington, Ky. 40501."

Christmas packages and personal greetings are being prepared for them. One of the names submitted will be selected to receive a phone call from his parents on Christmas morning, at the expense of the Concerned Citizens Committee.

MOREHEAD—There may be a surplus of teachers in some fields but jobs are plentiful for high school industrial arts teachers, according to Carol Holt, Morehead State University's placement director.

In fact, the MSU Placement Center has received more than 400 inquiries for industrial arts teachers this year.

The requests for teachers have come primarily from Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and Florida. Also looking are Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and others.

The 17 persons who were graduated from MSU this year with industrial arts majors and teaching certificates have been employed, reported Dr. Norman Roberts, head of the Department of Industrial Education.

The scarcity of industrial education teachers is partly due to teachers taking higher paying jobs in industry or becoming school administrators, he added.

"An industrial arts graduate can get a job almost anywhere," Dr. Roberts said. "It is advantageous for prospective teachers that there are so many openings but it is a disadvantage to high schools where expensive equipment is not being used," he added.

Some school districts are even willing to retrain candidates with teaching certificates in other fields in order to fill their vacancies, Mrs. Holt said.

"We wish we had qualified persons to meet the demand," she said. "This is a golden opportunity for persons interested in industrial education."

Miss Roe speaks at Garden Club

The Carlisle Garden Club met Monday in the home of Mrs. W. R. Boothe for the regular monthly meeting.

Mrs. Charles Wilson, president, presented Mrs. William Layton, who gave the spiritual address. She read a portion of the creation of the first garden from Genesis. She said as we plant the seeds in our gardens, do not forget to plant the seeds of love and friendship as well.

Mrs. Wilson, assisted by Miss Mary Lois Campbell, secretary, and Mrs. Taylor Soelling, treasurer, conducted the business.

Mrs. Wilson gave reports from the Bicentennial Committee of plans for beautifying our cemetery. The club voted to give support to carrying out these plans.

Mrs. Grimes Caywood, program chairman, presented Miss Jennie Roe from Mayslick, as guest speaker.

Miss Roe's subject, "Flowers Talk to Me," was very original, well read, both clever and entertaining.

Mrs. Boothe, hostess, served dessert and coffee to 16 members during the social hour.

Cooking class for adults offered

Free substituting will be offered by the Future Homemakers of America Chapter. A person does not have to attend all six classes, he may attend only those which interest him.

The classes are free and open to any adult interested. The teachers will be Bonnie Metcalfe and Martha Taylor. For further information call 395-5044.

Sales of 35,874 hogsheds of burley tobacco announced

Sales of a total of 35,874 hogsheds of burley tobacco from the stocks held under the price support program by the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association were announced at a meeting of the association's board of directors in Lexington, Sept. 12.

A.R. Beckley, assistant secretary-treasurer, said the sales included 22,299 hogsheds of burley stored in burlap, or hams, and 6,475 hogsheds of tobacco stored in processed strip form.

The bundle tobacco sold included 177 hogsheds from the crop's holdings of burley from the 1968 crop receipts; 23,821 from 1969, and 5,421 from 1970. The processed strip tobacco was from the 1972 crop.

With the 1972 crop, the crop, or "burley pug," initiated a change in its storage procedures, and all burley now taken by the association under the price support program will be stored in processed strip form.

The association administers the price support program for burley in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia and Missouri.

The 1973 crop of burley now being harvested will have an average support price of $78.90, a hundred pounds, an increase of four dollars above the 1972 support average of $74.90.

Clubhouse sketched

This is an architectural drawing of how the 9000 square feet clubhouse at the Carnico Country Club will look when completed. The drawing is on display at the Kentucky Utilities office. The main floor will contain foyer, lounge, dining room, ballroom and kitchen. The basement level will contain pro shop, snack bar, locker rooms and club storage. Work has been started on the foundation of the clubhouse at Lake Carnico.

Taxable property values rise here

NEW YORK—How much have property values in Nicholas county changed in the last five years? What effect has it had on the local tax situation?

According to a government survey, just released, the assessed value of real and other holdings subject to local property taxes has increased appreciably in the period. It has climbed 44 percent.

This compares with a 43 percent rise in the United States and with 34 percent in the State of Kentucky.

The survey, which covered every section of the country, was conducted by the Census Bureau in connection with its 1972 Census of Government. It was the first such study since 1967.

As a result, data is now available on more than 80 million pieces of real and personal property that are carried on local tax assessment rolls throughout the nation.

They are valued for local tax purposes at $64 billion, after deduction for those that are legally exempt. This compares with a net of $42 billion five years ago.

In Nicholas county, the figures show the assessed value of locally taxable property rose to $45,500,000, as against the total in 1967, $31,800,000.

In general, throughout the country, the assessed value is the base against which tax rates are applied. But it is not necessarily the true market value of the property. More often than not, property is assessed for tax purposes at well below the actual value.

Related to population, the tax base in Nicholas county was equivalent to $5,000 for every man, woman and child in the local area.

Elsewhere in the United States, the average was $3,000 per capita and, in the State of Kentucky, $5,562.

The report states that "for local governments, property taxes remain their preeminent revenue source. Collections exceed anything in the past, even though property taxes now constitute a smaller percentage of total revenue than they did 10 years ago."

Currently, it shows, local governments are getting $38.7 from property taxes, equal to 84.6 percent of their total revenue.

Back in 1961, on the other hand, when property taxes were providing them with 87.7 percent of their total, they amounted to only $7.4 billion.
