Dear Debbie

Letters to DEBORAH WHITE

Dear Debbie:

Sometimes I think my husband is two different people. When we're out alone he acts like a respectable 45-year-old gentleman, which to me seems right since that is his age. But whenever we're at a party or festive gathering he seems to shed 15 years. I don't mind this except that it's never me who benefits from this revitalized vigor. Last week he spent the entire evening dancing with a young girl and at one point the other dancers cleared the floor for them. I had to listen to him brag about this for the rest of the week. What can I do to make him act his age when we are in company? This really annoys me.

Left Out

Dear Left Out:

If you rain on his parade you're going to spoil the party for everyone — including yourself. His renewed vitality is expressing itself in a seemingly harmless way. Find a way to join in the fun without stomping on it.

Dear Debbie:

A week ago I took my girlfriend to a cookout in the country, and we started back to the city later than I wanted to because I was unfamiliar with the roads. As luck would have it, my car broke down in the middle of nowhere on a dark country road. My girlfriend is still angry with me because I made her get out of the car and walk with me to a gas station. She wanted me to leave her in the car while I went by myself for help. I feel I did the right thing in insisting that she come along with me.

Chuck

Dear Chuck:

Amen. I shudder to think what could happen to a girl alone on a deserted country road late at night. I can't imagine why your girlfriend wanted to remain alone in the car except maybe to save herself a walk — and if that was the reason she should be ashamed of herself. She was being very inconsiderate of you.

Dear Debbie:

I have been seeing Stanley for seven years now. I met him when I was 52 years old. Neither of us has been married before, and even though I am four years older than Stanley, I think we could have a beautiful life together. The problem is his mother who objects to the marriage even though we have gotten along fine over the years. Stanley says he doesn't want to do anything that would upset his mother. Should I forget him? I really love him.

Waiting

Dear Waiting:

If Stanley isn't a big enough boy to make his own decisions by now, the only thing you can gain by marrying him is not becoming his wife but a second-string mother.

If you have a problem, sometimes it helps to air it. Write to me in care of this newspaper. Personal replies aren't always possible, but I'll answer the letters of widest interest in this column.

Nursing home news

by Virginia Donovan

I had been wondering about my step-daughter, Nancy Meadows, sent her a note, she answered right away, then came from Lexington to see me. She brought me a bag of apples which I have already enjoyed, oh yes, plums and bananas too. She said she thought I knew about Jean Donovan and Carole's trip to Washington but I didn't.

Maude Booth Hardin came out one afternoon and we had the best time talking over things, how I did love to go to their house. "Fond memories."

Herman Conyers had a birthday, believe it was Aug. 5. His granddaughter Mrs. Mathes and her children came loaded down with packages. I couldn't realize that Collier was so big, last time I saw him he was a tiny baby. Herman has been real sick, but I think he's doing better now, even trying to walk a little now.

Bobby Crockett comes each day to see his mother, Mrs. Anna D. Crockett. He still tells us that we are looking good.

One morning as I came from breakfast, was surprised to see my cousin, Veach Delaney and wife, Louise, and Veach's sister, Nora Burris of Covington. They were all sitting in the lobby waiting for me. "Blood is thicker than water."

Yvonne Edwards surprised us one day recently, brought her daughter along.

Mrs. Ivy Payne recently had a birthday. She received such a pretty plant from her daughter-in-law Anna Marie McCord of Indiana.

A breath of life canister near you

Over 10 canisters have been placed in stores, restaurants, banks and other business establishments as part of the Mid-South Chapter's 1974 Breath of Life Campaign. The pert face of Michael Doyle, National Cystic Fibrosis Poster Child, appears on the canister, seen through the face mask that helps him breathe. The mask is part of Mike's way of life—he has Cystic Fibrosis. It's inherited and as yet, it's incurable.

The funds raised through the Breath of Life Campaign are used to fight lung-damaging diseases in children—diseases like Cystic Fibrosis, severe asthma, chronic bronchitis and bronchiectasis.

According to Mrs. James D. Anderson, campaign chairman, Mid-South Cystic Fibrosis Chapter, the coin and bill collectors have been circulated to help remind people who are in the act of spending, that they can also help buy breath, longer life and hope for the future for children who struggle to breathe. "The contributions support research and patient care programs of the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation."

"There are six million American children affected by lung disease," said Mrs. Anderson. "We think that six would be too many, and we're asking everyone to fill those canisters to the brim. We can conquer lung disease in our youngsters, if everyone cares enough to put their dollars where they really count."

Kay's Kitchen

By Kay Fisher

Here it is time for that last family cook-out before school starts out in ernest, and the last holiday of the summer. This year the summer passed me by — I really don't know when a season has gone so quickly. Anyway here we are so let's make the most of our last fling before we get settled down into the fall and winter routine.

Would really like to say let's start out with a nice big juicy steak, marinated for several hours in your favorite marinae but at the current prices I just don't have the nerve. So be the cook-out in your own back yard, or some favorite picnic spot, I would suggest you keep it as economical as possible.

Kobabs are fun and you can put most anything on them and they taste good. Just remember to use vegetables that take the same cooking time, and meat that cooks in the same time as the vegetables. With quick cooking vegetables you can use squares of most any kind of luncheon meat, hot-dogs cut in pieces or bologna cut into cubes. If you like barbecue there is nothing easier than just brushing the Kabobs with barbecue sauce, either your favorite recipe or one purchased from the grocery.

I have been doing some experimenting and found that packaged salad mixes make good seasoning for inexpensive meat cuts cooked at a low temperature for a long time. Also mix them according to package directions and use for marinating the Kabobs. Too, some of the bottled dressings are good. Use them to brush on the meat and vegetables for extra flavor. Oil and vingar, French, Italian, and garlic are especially good. And what could be easier.

For your salad on this cook-out why not a bowl of fresh raw vegetables. Zucchini, cucumbers, cauliflower, green peppers, onion rings, carrots cut into cubes and dipped into the dressing. Broccoli, asparagus and okra cooked crisp tender and dipped into the dressings are very good. A combination of mayonnaise and horseradish is good.

For a bread to put on your grill try this.

HOT HERB BREAD

1 loaf of Italian or French bread
½cup soft butter or margarine
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
¼ teaspoon crushed oregano
¼ teaspoon dill weed
1 clove garlic, minced
grated Parmesan cheese

Combine all ingredients except cheese. If bread is not sliced, slice into thick slices and spread with herb-butter mixture. Push slices together and sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Wrap in foil and place on back of grill. Turn once in awhile to heat thru.

Most important thing to remember is to select foods that keep well in your ice chest until cooking time. Cherry tomatoes instead of regular tomatoes are ideal for picnics. Don't forget the Kosher salt to dip them in. Corn cooked in their husk and wrapped in foil is another easy and good food. Even if you have the traditional Frankfurter, try wrapping ½ slice of bacon around each one and broil on the grill. Of course the all time favorite for dessert is watermelon. Just keep cold.

Now if you want to do all the work before the appointed picnic hour, there are numerous sandwiches that can be made and well wrapped so that all you need do is open up and start eating.

These suggestions — First, to eat with that all time favorite fried chicken, buy salt rising bread unsliced. Bring butter to spreading consistency. Slice the bread very thin and make bread and butter sandwiches. And while you have the salt rising bread do make some pimento cheese and have it on salt rising bread. It is a different taste treat. When making the pimento cheese do select good medium sharp cheese. Grate it well and mix to spreading consistency with half mayonnaise and half salad dressing. Use plenty of chopped pimento and add the juice too. A dash of tobasco sauce and worcestershire sauce will give it that extra flavor.

Cucumber sandwiches are good travelers if you spread one side of the bread with cream cheese, minced onion, cover with cucumber then mayonnaise and then spread the cream cheese. (The cheese keeps the bread from becoming soggy.) Try it with sliced olives and chopped nuts.

In making sandwiches, a change of bread is important as the filling. Ham sandwiches travel and keep well. Try making them with pumpernickel bread. Deviled ham mixed with finly cut celery and green pepper seasoned with horseradish to taste. Use thinly sliced French or white bread for this.

If you have a beet roast, thinly sliced and spread with horseradish sauce on any kind of bread is good. Remember several thin slices "hide" easier and I think even taste better than one thick slice. Thinly sliced roast pork topped with hot dry mustard mixed to a smooth paste is delicious served buttered or spread with a tiny bit of Mayonnaise on a hamburger bun.

When thinking of different kinds of bread remember whole wheat, rye, pumpernickel, Boston brown and nut breads. The Boston brown and nut breads are good spread with cream cheese.

North Middletown Church is scene of Reed-Denton wedding ceremony

Miss Sue Rosemary Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Reed of Nicholas county and James Michael Denton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex M. Denton of Fordsville were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony at 7:30 p.m. on Aug. 9, 1974 in the chapel at the North Middletown Christian Church.

Rev. Randy Martin officiated. Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Judy Martin. Selections included music from Camelot and the traditional wedding marches.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of jeweled crepe. The bodice of the dress was covered in white chantilly lace with a daisy trim. She carried a bouquet of white daisies, miniature white carnations and baby's breath.

Miss Wanda Reed of Lexington, sister of the bride, served as the maid of honor. She wore an apricot dress of double knit trimmed down the front of the bodice with pearl buttons. She wore a picture hat the same color as her dress with a matching ribbon. She carried a nosegay of apricot gladiolas.

Donald R. Denton of Owensboro, bother of the groom, served as best man.

Ushers were Ralph Coleman, Lexington and Jim Midkiff, of Ohio county.

A reception was held following the wedding at the home of the bride's parents in Nicholas county. The reception table was covered with a white lace table cloth, and held a three-tier wedding cake. The centerpiece was a basket of blue and white daisies, and two silver candlesticks.

The bride, a graduate of the University of Kentucky, will be a resource teacher in the Nicholas county schools this fall. The groom is employed by Second National Bank in Lexington.

The session was held at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Harold Letton, with Miss Kate Mann, chapter president, presiding.

Miss Alverson, president of the Chi Omega Chapter at Transylvania University, gave a report of the convention.

A social hour followed.

Junior Woman's Club hosts Swedish student

The Carlisle Junior Woman's Club, GFWC, was host to a student from Sweden during the week of Aug. 12 thru Aug. 15. Miss Eva Lood is in this country on a scholarship program with The Experiment in International Living, sponsored by the Kentucky Federation of Woman's Clubs. Miss Lood will be visiting in Kentucky for six weeks through this program and staying in the homes of Junior Club Women. During her stay here in Carlisle, Eva was the guest of Mrs. James D. Anderson, president of the Carlisle Junior Woman's Club.

During her stay in Carlisle, Eva said that she wanted to "see what there was to see and do what there was to do."

Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Harry Budden drove to Cattlettsburg to pick up Eva on Monday morning. On their way back to Carlisle they stopped at Carter Caves to tour the caves and have lunch. Monday evening Eva showed slides of her country at a picnic for new club members at the home of Mrs. Anderson. Tuesday, Eva was the guest of Mrs. Charles Parks and Mrs. Billy Anderson at the Carnico Country Club for a morning of golf, swimming and a golf lesson. Later that day Eva was shown Forest Retreat Farms. Wednesday, the day was spent with a social worker from the TB hospital in Paris and they visited the homes of several patients in Madison county. Thursday morning Bluegrass Industries was toured and then on to Lexington to tour the Saddle Horse Museum and later to meet her hostess for this week, Mrs. Jo Ella Shelly of Somerset.

Eva is a student at the University of Lund in Sweden and will graduate this year from the Graduate School of Social Work and Public Administration. She has a masters degree in English, Nordic Languages, Linguistics and Literature. Aside from speaking English, she speaks four other languages. Her interests include languages, cooking, swimming, sailing, art and architecture, the theatre, and, of course, her new-found hobby, golf. Two of Eva's ambitions were fulfilled during her short stay in Carlisle. She learned to play golf and was able to spend a day with a social worker making routing visits to the homes of patients.
