Jim Curtis, a Versailles photographer and free-lance writer, has been selected as the 1974 recipient of Kentucky Farm Bureau's communications award to a writer.

The award, consisting of an engraved plaque and $100, is presented annually to a writer who has made an outstanding contribution toward improvement of farm-city relations in Kentucky. Curtis is the 15th recipient of the award.

Curtis' pictures and stories are familiar copy to readers of the Lexington Herald-Leader and the Woodford Sun in Kentucky's Bluegrass region. He has worked independently for these two newspapers for the past fifte years, and has also operated a private photographic agency.

Prior to that he worked as a reporter for the Lexington Leader for one year, was news editor of the Woodford Sun for a six-month period, and served for a short time as assistant coordinator for the University of Kentucky centennial.

Curtis' concentrates his work with farmers and farm-related groups in Woodford county. He gives extensive coverage to youth groups, such as FFA and 4-H, and also covers ASCS, Soil Conservation, Extension, women's groups and the county Farm Bureaus.

According to John W. Koon, Kentucky Farm Bureau executive secretary, Curtis did an especially thorough job of covering farm group activities during last year's meat boycotts.

"This writer's award was designed to recognize efforts as bettering rural-urban understanding, and Jim Curtis has done an outstanding job in this area," Koon said. "The volume and variety of his news pictures and accounts tell me he spends very little time in his office. His camera is present wherever farm news is made, and his readers gain the benefit of his tireless work schedule."

Curtis is a 1960 graduate of Versailles High School, and four years later received his degree in journalism from the University of Kentucky.

His photographic achievements have netted him considerable recognition, including a Kentucky Press Association feature photo award in 1967, and the Kentucky Professional Photographers Court of Honor Award this year. He is a member of Kentucky and national professional photographers' associations.

He has also been honored as Outstanding Young Man of America in 1972, as recipient of Midway College's community service and distinguished service awards, and as Jaycee of the Year in 1970-71.

Curtis and his wife, Toni, have a son, James William, 11.

Bardstown.

Attending the ceremonies along with the artist and his family were members of the Rowan family, descendants of Judge John Rowan, who built the home in 1795. It was at the home that Steven Collins Foster, a cousin of the judge, wrote "My Old Kentucky Home" and other noted classics.

Frost has the distinction of being the only artist to be asked by officials connected with the state shrine to paint the structure.

A limited number of prints from the original are available. One thousand prints which are all numbered, have been made. An additional 1,000 prints, unnumbered, are also available. The prints are 20x24 inches and are borderless.

The work, done in acrylics, is a realistic painting with great attention given to detail in the structure of the building and to the grounds surrounding the home.

Frost, a native of Kentucky, and former resident of Carlisle, has studied art at Eastern Kentucky University, privately with three professional artists, and was awarded an art course by the federal government. He has been painting semi-professionally for the last six years, since he is a full-time employee of the government.

Since entering competitive exhibits, he has won at least one ribbon in each, and in one exhibit alone was awarded first place in oil, first in watercolor, second in pastel, and third in charcoal. The prize-winning painting in oil, a horse drawn cultivator entitled "From Times Past," was also the pick of the class over 300 others in that category. This is now a popular print.

His painting of "The Huddle," depicting Coach Adolph Rupp in his last home game against Tennessee, hangs permanently in the Naismith Hall of Fame.

Mr. Frost will be in Carlisle Saturday, June 29, to attend the art exhibit at the Nicholas County Library where his work will be on display. The prints may be obtained only at Hopkins Drug Company.

Retired teachers check information

Now that school is out for the summer months, there are some teachers who are retirement age who could be getting a social security check even though they plan to return to teaching in the fall.

Many school systems give their teachers the option of receiving their pay checks on a 12 month rather than a nine month basis. This means they receive a pay check during the summer months for work they did the other nine months of the year.

If you're such a teacher, and you are retirement age, you could receive your social security check for the months you're not working this summer. This is true even though your total yearly earnings are well over $2400 and you receive more than $200 a month during the summer. The reason for this is that the pay you get during the summer was actually earned during the other nine months of the year.

Program certification protects producer

With less than a month until the July 15 deadline for farm program signup and certification, Ky. ASCS county grain producers are reminded that program participation provides disaster insurance and eligibility for support loans and payments.

"Now that the crops are planted, we want to remind farmers to come by the ASCS office at their convenience to sign up and certify—just as long as they do so by July 15," said Paul E. Hall, Executive Director for ASCS in Nicholas county.

Signup and certification are as important as ever to producers Hall said. He pointed out that the new agricultural law includes provisions for disaster payments to participants if their feed grain or wheat crops are lost or the yield substantially reduced because of natural disaster.

Accuracy is also as important as ever in certifying crop acreage, Hall said. Measurement service is available at cost from the ASCS county office for any program purpose for those who want to make use of it. Spot checks will be made at random on five percent of the county's farms following certification to be certain that certifications were correct.

Remember, July 15 is the last day farmers can signup and certify their farm program participation," Hall said. We hope every producer will visit the county ASCS office and certify.

The tremendous growth of grass which occurs in Kentucky during May and early June is obvious to anyone who drives through the countryside at this time of the year. Kentucky's ability to produce lush and abundant grass is one of the things the state is most noted for.

While grass is very valuable to farmers as a source of feed for livestock, many farmers fail to take full advantage of the tremendous growth which takes place in the spring. Many farmers turn their cattle into large fields which produce much more grass in the spring than the cattle need for grazing. The cattle trample and waste a lot of the grass; and although much is not used, there is usually not enough left for making hay.

What can be done to prevent wasting all this valuable feed? Give the cattle only as much area as they can keep grazed back; fence off the rest of the field, let the growth accumulate, and harvest this ungrazed area as hay.

This doesn't mean you have to put up a permanent woven wire fence. An electric fence with one strand of wire will do the job. In some cases, closing a gate between fields is all that is necessary to restrict a grazing area.

If pastures begin to dry up during hot summer weather, all of the field area can be opened up for grazing. If feed is especially short sometime in the summer, the extra hay which was harvested from spring growth can be fed. If pastures provide adequate summer feed, the extra hay can be kept for winter feeding. The important thing to remember is that this extra hay is not available without the restricted springtime grazing.

All of the cattle on your farm which are under two years of age should be vaccinated for blackleg every year. That is the advice of Bill Wise, Extension Veterinarian at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Blackleg is a disease which is usually fatal to young cattle. The death or lameness of the best young calf in a herd often signals an outbreak of the disease.

The most common sign that an animal has the disease is a swelling of the heavy muscles in the hip and shoulder.

Blackleg has been around for a long time and seems to show up wherever cattle are raised. It is caused by bacteria which are usually ingested with feed. The infection ends up in the heavy muscles of the animals, where it causes great damage and forms large quantities of gas in the tissues. When pressure is applied to the affected area, the gas in the tissues makes a crackling sound, like paper being crumpled.

An animal which has died from blackleg has a characteristic posture. Because of the terrific swelling soon after death, the animal has its legs extended and stiff like a sawhorse.

There is not much reason for treating animals stricken with the disease, since they usually die in 12 to 48 hours. The disease can be prevented by vaccination with a bacterin made from the organism which causes the disease. Since animals under two years of age are the ones usually affected, they are the ones which should be vaccinated.

Water Conservation to be subject

"Water Conservation—Its Effect on My Community" will be the subject of the 1974 Conservation Essay Contest and the 1974 Jim Claypool Conservation Poster Contest sponsored by The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times.

The annual competitions, open to all Kentucky elementary and high school students, are the largest conservation-oriented contests for school children in the United States. In 1973, 70,117 essays were written on "Fish and Wildlife Conservation: What Can I Do?" 28,064 posters were made on the subject.

The essay contest is in its 31st year, and over 1.2 million essays have been written by students on various essay contest subjects since its inception.

1973 was the first year for the poster contest. That year saw simply called the Conservation Poster Contest. It was renamed the Jim Claypool Poster Contest last month in honor of the late James B. Claypool.

Claypool was a field representative for the Kentucky Division of Conservation and a former president of the division. He worked with the Louisville newspapers for some 26 years on the essay contest and was instrumental in the initiation of the poster contest. He died last February.

The poster competition is open to students in grades one through five. In it, students are asked to make original posters with the subject of the competition as the theme of the posters. Awards of $175 in U.S. Savings Bonds will be awarded to three state winners by the two Louisville daily newspapers. 121 district winners will receive plaques.

In the essay contest, students in grades six through 12 are asked to write essays of no more than 1,000 words, and the top 60 winners—121 district winners and three state winners—receive $3,825 in savings bonds from the Louisville newspapers.

Co-sponsors of the contests, along with The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times, are the Kentucky Association of Conservation Districts and the Kentucky Department of Education.

The 1974 competition will begin in September. Detailed information and reference material for the two contests will be sent to the principals of all schools in Kentucky at that time.

Harrison RECC annual meet scheduled July 3

The 36th annual membership meeting of the Harrison Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation will be held Wednesday, July 3, at the Rural Electric Farm, one-half mile south of Cynthiana, on Highway No. 982. Registration for members will begin at 5:30 CDT.

James S. Patterson, president of the Cooperative, will preside at the business session at 7:15 p.m. Two members of the Board of Directors will be elected from the membership.

Always enjoyable at each annual meeting is the contest to select the girl to be named "Miss Harrison RECC", who will participate in the state contest at the State Fair in Louisville.

Churches served by the Harrison Rural Electric will have the opportunity to win a $50 credit on the church's electric bill. The church having the largest number of its members to register at the special Church Registration Tent will win the prize.

Cheerleaders camp

There are still a few places remaining at the Nation-Wide Cheerleaders Association Workshop at Bellarmine College, Louisville, Ky. Jumps, gymnastics, pom-pom routines, new yells, mounts, and use of the mini-tramp are just a few of the subjects programmed. This workshop, scheduled for July 28-31, will feature the staff of Nation-Wide Cheerleaders Association under the direction of Ron and Jean Zucchelli, founders. Cheerleaders from several states will attend.

To register, call (412) 349-2017 or (412) 463-3725, or write Nation-Wide Cheerleaders Association, 3719 Meloney Lane, Indiana, Pa. 15701.

NEXT WEEK'S HOROSCOPE

By Clay R. Pollan

Note planetary ruler of your birth symbol

FOR WEEK BEGINNING MONDAY, JULY 1, 1974

★ If your birthday occurs this week . . .

you have an exceptionally good mind and a high moral sense. Upright, critical and reserved, you are a worrier by nature. You should develop a more cheerful outlook, for events seem to always turn out bright and rosy for you. A new direction in your life is upcoming—all to the good.

Aries | Mar. 21 - Apr. 19 | Pluto ♇

Psychologically, a devil-may-care mood will prevail and you'll be rather too inclined to take risks. You'll be just a bit over-optimistic about the outcome of things. This is all well and good, but you must be more practical and realistic. Study new propositions with an eagle eye and consult experts.

Taurus | Apr. 20 - May 20 | Venus ♀

Your stars hint at flirtation and romance. This may mean the pleasant revival of a relationship of the past, or could foreshadow the beginning of a new friendship. Cultivate especially the friendship of those who have shown interest in your activities. Do less wishful-thinking. Be realistic.

Gemini | May 21 - June 20 | Mercury ☿

Favorable week for efforts calling for intense concentration. It's a good time for tackling jobs which call for constructive or mechanical ability. Discreetly blowing your own horn can help to build up your image in the eyes of others. Release your emotions. Find an outlet for pent-up urges.

Cancer | June 21 July 22 | Moon ☾

A time for decisions. Know what you want and time your moves and requests. Break out of any rut. Change your routine and step up activities, if there is entertaining to do, do it at home. Include family members. Fast action could bring the gains wanted. If others delay you, pressure them to act.

Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22 | Sun ☉

No week for taking chances. Don't be drawn into risking hard cash gambling either on your luck or skill. You should strengthen your financial structure. While displaying faith in your ability, do your homework thoroughly and be prepared for challenges. If you begin a new project, seek sound advice.

Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22 | Mercury ☿

The key now is to not reach beyond what seems to be your limit. You have great talent, but there's a tendency to hide it. A spiritual adviser would be helpful. Start action on some of your long-range plans after you have envisaged their consequences. Don't take things for granted. Seek expert counsel.

Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22 | Venus ♀

The routine of your working life may be interrupted by a completely surprising and unexpected development. Allow for the possibility of a breakdown or breakage. Something has to give when out-go exceeds income. Be thrifty. Save regularly. Clear sailing for pleasure and love-making.

Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21 | Mars ♂

You can make this a worthwhile week. You'll be active and happy. It's a good time for travel, falling in love again or finding extra work for more money. Surprises happen, bringing new opportunities. There's no excuse for neglecting your commitments. Keep your morals high and guard your reputation.

Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21 | Jupiter ♃

A time to look your best and keep things in shipshape condition. Money aspects are wonderful! You may be pleased with the results of a financial deal. Toss aside false modesty and be frank in your dealings. One who scoffs is a secret believer. Have faith and you can move mountains.

Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan. 19 | Saturn ♄

Your life will be stimulating, amusing and varied. You'll be mentally active and in a receptive mood. You'll find yourself going out of your way to cooperate with companions. Start now making office or home improvements. Collections long past due can be made. Avoid scattering forces. Concentrate efforts.

Aquarius | Jan. 20-Feb. 18 | Uranus ♅

Your stars indicate that an unusual amount of interesting news and information will flow your way. You'll hear from people you've been out of touch with for some time. Resist temptation to take the easy path. Right social contacts will help improve your position. Avoid gossip. Stick to facts.

Pisces | Feb. 19 - Mar. 20 | Neptune ♆

A fortunate week in that people you are in contact with are generous and hospitable. Entertaining in your home will help your efforts in climbing the ladder of success. Put your thoughts and ideas on paper. Gain is shown through the written word. Express gratitude without being maudlin.

MAGICWORD by JULIE QUART

HOW TO PLAY: Read the list of words. Look at the puzzle. You'll find these words in all directions — horizontally, vertically, diagonally, backwards. Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle — then strike it off list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the by-words left. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your MAGICWORD.
