$1,000 donation.

Fifty-seven service agencies in Central and Southwestern Kentucky have been named to share a $100,000 charitable donation from Lexington businessman Garvie D. Kincaid. Checks were distributed Wednesday, March 21, at a luncheon at Spalding Hall in Lexington. The luncheon was hosted jointly by Central Bank and Trust Company and Kentucky Central Life Insurance and attended by representatives of the recipient agencies. Nicholas County Recreation and Park Board received $1,000 of the donation. Pictured at the luncheon are Andy Doddy, president, First National Bank,

Waggoner to write and direct county's first outdoor drama

Marion Waggoner, who is presently writing the script for Nicholas county's first historical outdoor drama to be presented in June, studied drama at Mayeville Community College where he performed in several productions and received the Best Actor Award for 1970 for his role of Joseph in My Three Angels. He was here that he obtained his Associate Degree of Arts in 1971. He later attended Northern Kentucky State College and Western Kentucky University. While attending the latter he was voted Best Supporting Actor in a major production (Jerome Malley in Child Play) for 1972. He was also assistant director of the highly controversial production, The Dutchman. Waggoner, 23, spent five years with Harrodsburg's Professional Outdoor Drama, The Legend of Daniel Boone. While there, he served in many capacities. He was cast as the romantic lead in 1970 and has since served as general company understudy, property master, house manager, tech., and public relations director.

He studied acting and directing four years with the accomplished actor-instructor, director, John C. Crockett, and has been a member of the Southeastern Theatre Conference the past four years. Marion and his wife April presently reside at Blue Licks. He is the son of Raymond Waggoner of Nicholas county.

Waggoner, with the assistance of Mrs. Charles Canupp, will direct the historical outdoor drama during Nicholas county's 175th anniversary and Bicentennial celebrations. June 25-30 Simon Kenton will be the subject of the drama to be presented three nights, June 27, 28, and 29. Auditions for the various jobs connected with putting on the drama locally will be announced in the Mercury as soon as a date can be set. Approximately 20 to 40 local citizens will be needed for the performance, including musicians, actors, singers, and people to help with set construction, seating, lighting, etc.

Communications conference to be held at Morehead

News media influence on American politics at the national, state and local levels will be explored Thursday, April 4, at Morehead State University in a conference featuring CBS news correspondent Daniel Schorr. Other special guests will be Don Mills, editor of The Lexington Herald and former press secretary to Gov. Edward Breathitt, and Bob Johnson, news director of WSAZ-TV, Huntington, W. Va., and national president of the Radio Television News Directors Association.

The conference theme is "Triumph and Tragedy—The News Media and American Politics." Sponsored by MSU's Concert and Lecture Series and Division of Communications, the day-long conference is open to high school and college students and news media professionals.

Schorr, an Emmy Award winner for his coverage of Watergate, will address 10:30 a.m. convocation at MSU's Button Auditorium and then participate with Mills and Johnson in discussions from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the Ballroom of the Adron Deans University Center. Small group sessions will be by MSU faculty members from communications and political science.

MSU President Adron Deans will welcome the participants and introduce Schorr at the morning program. A noon luncheon will honor Dr. Niel Plummer, retired journalism dean at the University of Kentucky, who recently departed more than $3,000 worth of materials to MSU's Johnson Camden Library.

Governor Ford announces candidacy for U.S. Senate

Gov. Wendell Ford will file his official papers this week with the Secretary of State, he announced his candidacy Friday for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate. Ford's announcement is centered on "isolation" — "An isolated federal bureaucracy where many of the elected and appointed officials are out of touch with the people back home they are supposed to represent."

"As a State Senator, Lieutenant Governor and Governor, I believe the major advantage I have had in government responsibility has been retaining a closeness with the general public," Ford said.

He promised continuation of this personal relationship with the mainstream of Kentucky, as a major goal if elected Senator.

As Kentucky's next Senator, Governor Ford said he would continue working for the betterment of all the state's citizens.

"It's time we represent the people of our state as U.S. Senators, rather than having someone who represents a national administration where both are out of touch with the needs of the housewife, the laborer, the elderly, the young, the business man, the disadvantaged and the neglected," Ford said.

He pointed out that Governor's problems today have been compounded by a non-responsive and paralyzed federal government and that the isolated federal bureaucracy is troubling state and local officials.

As Kentucky's chief executive and chairman of the nation's 22 Democratic Governors, Ford has encouraged stronger participation by Governors in national affairs, both governmental and political, because of his belief that Governors are the best conduit from the grassroots to Washington.

"States can go just so far in helping the citizens. I have always maintained that government at any level exists to serve people. When this doesn't happen, there must be change," the Governor stated.

According to Ford, U.S. Governor Julian Carroll has assured the

GOV. FORD

Governor that Ford's programs and direction of state government would be continued, if Ford is elected in November, 1974.

The Owensboro native also reported that every pledge made during his gubernatorial campaign has been completed, or will be underway by the end of this year.

"In evaluating his administration, he said that unprecedented services to Kentuckians had been provided since he took office in December of 1971.

"Perhaps more significant is the fact that we have structured numerous programs for the long-range future of Kentucky. This consideration was made in behalf of children, of those who would have something special to look forward to—a state where economic strength makes their life better; a state where the quality of life in all its places exceeds that of others," said the Governor.

"In my opinion, and in the opinion of those who have urged my candidacy, the Senate is now the best place where I can work for Kentucky, and now in fact, carry forward and further the progress we have underway in this great state," he said.

Accident injures three Saturday

Victor Lee Bromagen's car was hit in the front right side by a car driven by James Thomas Mitchell, 18, Route 5, Mt. Olivet, Saturday night around 7:30 p.m. at the intersection of West Main Street and Old Paris Pike.
