Speaker at Carlisle Jaycee Installation banquet May 1

State Representative Adrian Arnold was the guest speaker at the annual Carlisle Jaycee Installation Banquet held Wednesday, May 1, at Rock Haven Restaurant.

Arnold, in reporting on his first year as a legislator, related some of the problems he faced this year. He suggested that "right season" would be very desirable because of the number of bills introduced which need study before a vote is taken.

Arnold stated that the last Friday of the legislative session the bills were introduced. He said that he'd like to see a researcher assigned to each representative to gather information before a vote is required. After one term, "I realize I'm not an expert yet," but he said he's required to vote like one, especially on such technical questions as strip mining and no-fault insurance.

Min Barbara Kingsolver was named Outstanding Young Kentuckian by the local chapter. In her absence, her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Wendell Kingsolver, accepted the award for her. Gary Sibert was named Jaycee of the Year. The most coveted award presented to a Jaycee each year. Other special award recipients and newly installed officers are pictured in today's Mercury.

New Jaycee officers installed last Wednesday night at the annual banquet are: Dr. Andy Hamon, local director; W. J. Alexander, external vice president; Bill Demas, secretary; Gary Sibert, president; Rusty Lawrence, treasurer; and Huzy Corneilus, internal vice president. Other officers who were not present when the picture was taken are: John Gabriel and Jimmy Walker, local directors; and Billy Hopkins, local director.

North Middletown Charity Horse Show Saturday, May 11

The fourth annual North Middletown Charity Horse Show will be presented by the North Middletown Community Club on Saturday, May 11 at 10:00 p.m. C.D.T. The event will be staged in a show ring on the grounds at the North Middletown Elementary School.

Membership in the Central Kentucky Horse Show Association, and over $200 in premiums and trophies give the show a Class AAA rating.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Rainey will again be general chairmen for the show with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hiddle as secretary-treasurer. I. Rayner Jones Jr. is the current community club president and is serving as publicity chairman for the event.

John L. Rainey, who has been chairman every year, recently received a trophy award on behalf of the show, which was given by the Kentucky Chapter (Chapter 9) of United Professional Horsemen's Association. It was the 1973 award as the best one night show in Kentucky.

North Middletown, with a rich heritage of well-known saddle horses and horsemen and contributors to the entire saddle horse industry, had never held a horse show there until the last three years.

This year's fourth annual show will continue to honor these horsemen and horses, past and present, from North Middletown. In the 21 classes, premiums of over $200 will be offered and a trophy presented in each class.

Men to help the local National Guard Unit erect the fort and dig some trenches on Sunday, May 19, at Blue Licks Battlefield State Park. The fort scene will be used in the outdoor drama, Simon Kenton, to be presented June 21, 22, and 23 by the Nicholas County Historical Society.

Standard of living remains high locally

NEW YORK—How high is the standard of living in Nicholas county? How much have local residents been spending annually for big-ticket items such as cars, washing machines, dishwashers, refrigerators and the like?

Some idea of the amount of money that has been going for such equipment may be gleaned from a new government study.

It is based upon data gathered from all areas of the county through a sampling survey conducted by the Department of Commerce.

The purpose was to determine just how much of the average family's income, locally and elsewhere, went for such durables in the five years ending January, 1973.

In Nicholas county, according to these and other figures, it was a period of rising incomes and larger spending. Families were upgrading their way of life, buying better homes, more expensive cars and spending more for household equipment and leisure-time pursuits than ever before.

With the purchasing power at their command, their outlay for durable goods in the five years averaged approximately $4,872 per household, based upon the national survey findings and upon local income and spending data.

This compares with $4,219 per family in the United States and with $4,125 in the Southern States.

Of the total, some $3,413 was spent for new and used cars.

Furniture took another $440 per local family, other television sets, $104, and refrigerators and freezers, $113.

The rest went for air conditioners, washing machines, clothes dryers, kitchen ranges, dishwashers and the like.

The enormity of the car market is indicated by the figures in the government report, which show that families throughout the United States spent no less than $12 billion in the five years in the purchase of 60 million new cars and another $67 billion for 68 million used cars.

By way of comparison, all the 13 other kinds of durables covered in the survey totaled only $83 billion.
