

After all these years

One of the biggest milestones in the lives of 79 Nicholas County High School students will occur Sunday as Baccalaureate and graduation ceremonies get underway at the school. Baccalaureate begins at 7 p.m. and graduation starts at 8 p.m. After such a busy day for these seniors, they will go to school in the next few days. Directions to campus for their adult valedictions. Some will go to college on new careers, some will go to college, some will have home, some will stay at home a couple of years. Each one of these seniors will have a different path to follow. He will have greater decisions to make and more responsibilities as the years to come.

"WE' FINALLY MADE IT!"

Change, a familiar companion

Change is a constant companion of life. It has always been so. For a century and a half, the people of the United States seem to be reading some kind of karma that says that change is living. The bend in road of the nation's economic, political and social development is a constant companion. The energy shortage has contributed markedly to inflationary pressures by increasing the cost of producing and distributing most commodities. It has brought price increases by every major industry. There will be more inflationary pressures. Controlling government's extravagant use of tax money and its inflationary policy at the federal level as a result of inflation's bite, now felt as heavily by the majority of the American people. Inflation is no longer the bitter enemy of the business community. It is another source of relatively fixed income. The United States has, up to now, been the land of unlimited abundance.

The throw-away society. Recycling on the other hand, recreation facilities, scrap material is very in theory but, in the vast majority of cases, really not so practical in most cases. Now a large metropolitan area may experience an unprecedented boom in paper, brought on by a sharp drop in the price of materials. Scrap newspapers are being sold for as little as 10 cents a ton. Some grocery stores are being reeled. Some are being developed to burn new kinds of American family "A" generating facilities. Unusually high prices are being paid for scrap metal. The country is disappearing as the price of scrap metal is dropping. There is a growing public interest in recycling. The very good reason that even if recycling were available there is no one to do it. These are some of the changes that will shape the United States. Whether they will be good or bad is hard to say. It is always, on the character of the people. Will there be a spirit, always, the manufacturers of our products. The confidence in the government's ability to control the economy. The confidence in the government's ability to control the economy. The confidence in the government's ability to control the economy.

Many, many quiet contraries, how do you get to know them? You just keep right on being these days folks you can't see you about how you plants are coming along. They say, simply, "I'm not your garden and all that." Horticulturalists in the old plant lovers have theorized for some time that plants react to their soil. It can be believed that the reaction of plants to their soil had something to do with the soil.
