Senator Huddleston reports to the people

SHOULD THE PUBLIC BE ALLOWED ACCESS TO WATERGATE TAPES?

I intend to support legislation to permit public access to former President Nixon's Watergate tapes and documents. Such legislation was initially considered before the Government Operations Committee, of which I am a member.

I feel the public has a right to know the full Watergate story and the facts surrounding the forced resignation of a President of the United States.

The premature pardoning of Mr. Nixon and the agreement whereby his tapes and documents will remain secret except in cases where they are subpoenaed by a court, raised the possibility that the full Watergate story would never be told.

The relevant tapes and documents should and must be made public. If we have to force public access, then Congress should do it. Mr. Nixon has been pardoned; he has not admitted guilt, and he has retained wide control over Watergate-related tapes and documents.

Mr. Nixon has received everything and the American people nothing. At a very minimum, they deserve to know all the facts—even if it comes by force of law.

I would like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to former Senator John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, who is my predecessor and who has just been named our first ambassador to East Germany.

When John Sherman Cooper left the Congress, he left with the reputation of being a great statesman. And I can think of nobody more qualified—either by background and experience, or by temperment—to fill this important diplomatic post at a crucial time in the development of East-West relations.

Diplomatic service, of course, is not new to John Sherman Cooper and his lovely wife, Lorraine. Senator Cooper served as ambassador to India in the mid-1950's and he participated in the first meetings of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and the United Nations.

So we as a Nation and as a State can be proud to have a man of the caliber and character of John Sherman Cooper to serve as ambassador to East Germany. He is and always has been a man of peace and a man of honor—and he will doubtless make a great contribution to world peace and stability among nations in his newest service to his country.

Proposed schedule of tobacco loan rates announced

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced on Sept. 18 a "Proposed Schedule of Grade Loan Rates for 1974—Crop Burley Tobacco". The proposed loan rates range from 66 cents per pound to 91 cents per pound and reflect an average support of 85.5 cents per pound, 6.9 cents above 1973.

As in the past, no loans will be available on any tobacco graded No-G (No Grade), U (Unsound) W (Doubtful Keeping Order) or Scrap. The cooperative associations through which advances are made available will be authorized one cent per pound to apply against overhead costs.

Comments regarding the proposed rates will be considered if submitted in writing by Oct. 20, to the Director, Tobacco and Peanut Division, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250. The comments will be available for public inspection.

Vetch is good cover crop for tobacco fields

Most of Kentucky's 1974 tobacco crop is now in the barn and curing. Now is the time to give some attention to the fields which were used for growing this year's crop, notes Ira Massie, Extension tobacco specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The harvested tobacco fields need to be seeded with a cover crop, says Massie. In recent years, most farmers have used one of the small grain crops for this purpose. However, with the current high cost of nitrogen fertilizer, more farmers are likely to seed in vetch as a cover crop this year.

Massie explains that vetch is a legume, and therefore it has the ability to take nitrogen from the air and make it available in the soil for crop use. This means that where vetch is used as a cover crop and plowed under in the spring, less nitrogen fertilizer will be needed for the tobacco or other crop grown in 1975. Massie says vetch should provide 50-100 pounds of nitrogen per acre, depending on its maturity and the time it is plowed under in the spring. A limited amount of vetch seed is available this fall, according to the UK specialist.

What about a combination of vetch with a small grain crop? This is not desirable, says Massie, because the small grain needs to be turned under early in the spring. This means the vetch won't have enough time to add much nitrogen to the soil before it is plowed under with the small grain.

Before you seed in a cover crop, you should be sure to find out if the soil needs lime. The only way to do this is to take a soil sample and have it tested. The pH of the soil should be brought up to a range of 6.2-6.4 in order to make efficient use of fertilizer.

If your soil needs lime, this fall is a good time to put it on, says Massie. The lime will probably be cheaper to buy this fall than next spring, and time and good weather are more likely to be available this fall.

Will our clocks change Oct. 27?

by Joanie Conley

Carlisle-Nicholas County probably will go back to Eastern Standard Time on Oct. 27. Presently, the county and surrounding areas are on Central Daylight Time. If this is done, no actual clock change will occur locally—only a time zone switch.

Under a bill passed Sept. 30 by the Senate, the nation will return to Standard Time for the winter months ending the year-round Daylight Savings Time which became effective Jan. 6, 1974 as an energy-conservation measure.

Gov. Wendell Ford's office said Sept. 30 that he will ask the federal government to permit Kentucky to return to time zones that existed before last January.

Exemption—no clock change here

If the exemption is granted, 28 counties in the central and eastern part of the state, including Nicholas, would move from Central Daylight Time to Eastern Standard Time with no clock changes. 42 counties roughly west of Louisville would move their clocks back one hour from Central Daylight Time to Central Standard Time.

Maysville, Ashland and Northern Kentucky towns, 13 counties total, would move their clocks back one hour from Eastern Daylight Time to Eastern Standard Time—the same time as here.

Putting it simpler, Nicholas county clocks will not change, Western Kentucky will be one hour behind us, and Cincinnati will have the same time as we. The most immediate significance locally will be getting use to Cincinnati tv programs being shown one hour later. Instead of the present 5 p.m. and 10 p.m. news, the news on these stations will appear at 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. as it did last year.

No Exemption—put your clock back

If Ford's petition is not granted, most of the state, including Nicholas, will be on Central Standard Time from Oct. 27 to Feb. 23 on Central Daylight Time starting Feb. 23. This would mean moving our clocks back on Oct. 27.

The Senate Commerce Committee, in recommending a return to Standard Time during November, December, January and February, reported the equivalent of 100,000 barrels of oil per day was saved during the first four months of 1974 because of Daylight Saving Time.

But such savings "must be balanced against a majority of the public's distaste for the observance of Daylight Saving Time" during the winter, the committee said.

Daylight Saving Time is opposed, especially during the winter, by parents of schoolchildren who must start classes during the predawn hours, and by the construction industry, which claims there are additional safety hazards during early-morning hours.

Kentucky Farm Bureau president J. Robert Wade has written the Governor urging that the current time line be returned. He cited the desirability of having most of the state on the same time.

Standard Time began in 1883

Kentucky Rebecca Allen, editor of "The Official Guide of the Railways", was the author of Standard Time with one-hour time belts dividing the United States into Eastern, Central, Mountain and Pacific Time Zones. Congress made Standard Time law on March 13, 1883, after a General Time Convention at St. Louis, Mo. had approved it.

Before Standard Time there were more than 50 standards of time used in the United States and Canada.

Oddly enough the same criticisms and objections were directed against Standard Time in 1883 as are now directed against Daylight Saving Time. It took years for some people to become accustomed to getting their time from the Naval Observatory at Washington instead of from an old-fashioned "timeball" or from the sun.

Confusion Exists This Year

It does seem though that Nicholas countians and others in the same boat, could at least remain in one time zone year round, so that we could be sure as to whether our clocks will be changed or not in October and again in February. We seem to adjust nicely to whatever time is given us. But, it would be helpful not to have to adjust so frequently as we have had to do this year.

World record broken

WindStone Farms first cattle sale grosses $649,200

WindStone Farms first Simmental cattle sale held Friday, Oct. 4, at the Kentucky Training Center in Lexington grossed $649,200.

49 lots were sold by Kay and Wayne Shumate, including an Open Pure Blood Heifer which broke the world record at $60,000. The total average on each lot sold was $13,267.00.

The registered 7/8 Simmental Bull that had been donated by the Shumates to the University of Kentucky Blue/White Fund brought $10,400 for the UK athletic fund. The bull was bought by S.L. Farrell, Sycamore Range, Kenner, La. (on the outskirts of New Orleans), bidding against Texas cattlemen. He then offered the bull for resale—the proceeds to be donated to the American Simmental Association. The bull was resold to K&J Simmental of Paris for $2,000.

An estimated 1400 people were in the Training Center as the sale began, marking the only time since the Training Center has been built that the 940 seating arena was full. People stood several deep behind the seating arena.

Adolph Rupp, former UK basketball coach, was honored prior to the sale as "builder of young men" and as a "builder of the Hereford breed" in Kentucky.

The WindStone sale was the fourth such Nicholas county based sale in a little over a year at the Training Center. Harry Wolf Jr.'s Heaven II Farm in Nicholas county held the other three which were Maine Anjou production sales. Wolf was the first to use the Training Center for a cattle sale in September 1973. Since then, several other cattle sales have been held at the Training Center in addition to the Heaven II and WindStone sales.

Oct. 2 freeze kills garden vegetables

Estimated 100 acres of tobacco severely damaged in Nicholas as temperature drops to 21

An estimated 100 acres of Nicholas county tobacco was severely damaged as temperatures dropped to 21 degrees Wednesday night, Oct. 2.

Estil Noffsinger, county extension agent, said Monday that he covered most of the county on Thursday and Friday trying to ascertain crop damage. The county usually produces over 2,000 acres of tobacco but heavy rains had delayed some farmers from getting in tobacco before the unusually early freeze. Two or three farmers still had over half their tobacco crop out.

Some of the farmers are going to try to save their tobacco, but chances are not good that they will be able to do so.

He said the early frost on the nights of Sept. 21 and 22 did not do nearly the damage to crops as Wednesday's freeze did. A killing frost ordinarily does not occur until Oct. 10 to 15.

In addition to tobacco, Noffsinger said that late corn, beans, tomatoes and peppers were also killed on Wednesday.

Over 750,000 pounds of tobacco was under marketed in 1973 by county farmers. The county normally produces 5,000,000 pounds of tobacco, but farmers were trying to make up last year's deficit.

The extent of damage locally cannot be determined in dollars until the tobacco is marketed later this year.

School Board underbilled $6,655.13

Elementary gas bill discussed Saturday

By Jeff Kerr

The Nicholas County Board of Education came to a preliminary agreement with Carlisle Mayor Bill Power over a gas bill that was underestimated for 17 months.

Mayor Power appeared before the board Saturday seeking to come to terms with the group over the discrepancy in the bill, which amounted to $6,655.13 for a period from July 12, 1972 to Dec. 14, 1973.

During that time the meter was read at approximately 10% of the actual bill each month. Mayor Power said the mistake was made when the meter, which covers gas usage at the new elementary school, was read as a "home" meter as opposed to a commercial or industrial reading.

The board unofficially agreed to repay half of the outstanding amount after the first tax receipt check is received. Mayor Power was to bring
