Early 'scouting'

Paul E. Hall ASCS official explains disaster benefits.

"Farmers whose crops have been destroyed or damaged by a disaster may be eligible for disaster payments," Paul E. Hall said. Payments are made for prevented planting and low yields. "Prevented planting means that a farmer is unable to plant because a severe natural disaster or other condition beyond the farmer's control occurring at planting time, prevented him from planting at any time during the planting period. Low yield is when a disaster seriously affects the potential yield of a crop after planting," Hall explained.

If farmers suffer a loss of any or all of their crop acreage and do not intend to carry it through to harvest, they must report the loss to the county ASCS office before disposing of the crop residue. Also, the farm must be checked by an appraiser to determine potential production prior to disposition of the crop residue. Hall pointed out that farmers should be prepared to provide certification of the affected crop acreage.

If the crop is carried through to harvest and the total production is substantially below normal because of

'Revival Notices'

Henceforth The Carlisle Mercury will handle "revival notices" in its news columns in this manner:

We will donate the equivalent of 10 per cent of the inch space that the revival advertisement occupies, (with a minimum reader space of one column inch or between 35 and 40 words). The story to be placed in the newspaper on the page of our choosing.

In addition, we will donate to the church organization a discount of 10 per cent from the base cost of all revival ads paid for in advance.

We support our church, and do not see the necessity of supporting all churches from a financial standpoint.

Several years ago we had it very clearly pointed-out to us by the minister of a rather large congregation in Carlisle, that he wanted his revival notices published as advertisements—and not as news stories, as we had done. Since the establishment of a new news story policy, following this discourse, we have met some who violently oppose our way of reasoning.

Time has a way of mellowing ideas. We think our change in policy to the outlined method, will make for a closer working relationship with "the men of the cloth", so to speak.

One day rabies pet clinic announced by Health Center

The Nicholas County Health Center has announced that it will conduct a one day clinic for the vaccination of dogs and cats for the dreaded disease of rabies on Saturday, Aug. 30, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Nicholas County Health Center.

Due to the recent rabies outbreak in the surrounding area and the fact that a dog died of rabies in Nicholas county, it is strongly emphasized by the Health Department that every dog and/or cat owner have their animal vaccinated against rabies.

The Rabies Control Law, which requires all dogs over six months of age to be vaccinated against rabies, makes an owner liable for any person bitten by an unvaccinated dog, if the dog is rabid.

Even though the reservoir of rabies lies in our wildlife, the most effective barrier between the woodland wildlife and the Kentucky resident is the immunization of household pets. New recommendations indicate that dogs and cats can and should be vaccinated as early as three (3) months of age. The fact that unvaccinated dogs pose the greatest source of danger is because they are "members of the household" and the constant companions of man.

The usual charge of $1.50 for a three (3) year vaccination under these Health Department sponsored clinics will be in effect.
