Paul E. Hall reports outlook

U.S. production of nitrogen fertilizer is expected to increase 6% and phosphate gain by 12% in the 1975-76 season, and the world fertilizer supply outlook is improving, Paul E. Hall reported.

"The rise in nitrogen and phosphate production, that has been in short supply, compares with perhaps a 4% consumption increase in the U.S.," Mr. Hall said. However, virtually no gain in consumption for the rest of 1975 is expected by some industry experts, according to a recent publication, the World Agricultural Situation, issued by the USDA's Economic Research Service.

The fertilizer demand in the U.S. last fall was not strong, and permitted inventories to build up somewhat over the low levels of last year, the report said.

U.S. farmers have been investing in more and larger machinery. Because of the risk in higher fixed investment costs, lower producer prices, and uncertain weather, U.S. farmers may decide to reduce fertilizer application rates, but maintain total production by cropping more area. This would help permit the fertilizer supplies to build up.

Hall said that while the world supplies of nitrogen and phosphate will be greater this year, price levels on spot markets have already fallen. Recent events—including failing prices, cancellations and delays in planned purchases, and overbidding on international offers, all are reasons for the improving supply situation.

"Estimated world capacity increases are nitrogen 7.6%, phosphate 12.4% and potash 3.3%. Consumption of these three commodities are estimated to increase 6.3%, 5.3% and 5.0% respectively," Hall said. He said potash supplies should be sufficient if existing Canadian capacity can be restored to nearer its potential.

Talbott Tavern in Bardstown — open since American Revolution

by Arthur B. Lander Jr.
Travel Writer

Old Talbott Tavern, in Bardstown, opened in 1779 during the Revolutionary War and served as a base of operations for one of Gen. George Rogers Clark's campaigns in the Northwest. Munitions, brought overland from Virginia, were stored in the tunnels of the tavern's cellar.

Located at the western terminus of early 19th-century stagecoach roads connecting the frontier with Richmond and Philadelphia, Old Talbott Tavern provided "good wholesome food and lodging, drink for the traveler, stabblage and fodder."

Passengers seeking refuge from the discomforts of long rides across the Kentucky wilds, found Old Talbott Tavern a welcome rest stop.

Notable guests through the years included Abraham Lincoln; Henry Clay; Andrew Jackson; Zachary Taylor, Louis Philippe, the Duke of Orleans, exiled during the French Revolution, and bank robber-desperado Jesse James.

Now in its 197th year of continuous operation, the handsome fieldstone-and-brick tavern, on West Stephen Foster Street in Bardstown's city square, specializes in traditional Kentucky favorites such as country ham with red-eye gravy, homemade bread, Southern fried chicken, chess pie and old-fashioned fruit cobblers.

Old Talbott Tavern is furnished in Early American antiques—mirrors, dressers, marble top washstands and walnut beds. The atmosphere and charm of "the oldest inn west of the Alleghenies" makes overnight visits memorable.

Accommodations range from $14 to $25 nightly. Advance reservations are suggested as there are only five guest rooms (telephone (502) 348-3494). A dining room upstairs can be reserved for private parties.

A portrait of Stephen Collins Foster, composer of the beloved ballad "My Old Kentucky Home," hangs beside an antique piano in one of the two museum rooms. Murals, believed to have been painted by servants of Louis Philippe during his stay, were discovered in the adjoining room when wallpaper was being steamed off. Holes in the walls, the size a large-caliber pistol would make, attest to the legend that Jesse James used the murals for target practice.

Old Talbott Tavern's dining room is open daily. Luncheon hours are from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and dinner is served from 4 to 9 p.m. weekdays and 4 to 9:30 p.m. on weekends.

THE FAMILY LAWYER
by Will Bernard

Qualifying as a "Church"

Four families moved into a house that was zoned for single occupancy only. When the neighbors complained in court, a spokesman for the group pointed out that the zoning law made an exception for "churches."

Then he said:

"We think of our house as a little church, because we all belong to the same religious denomination. Furthermore, although we work at regular jobs during the day, we have several hours of religious instruction every week."

But the court decided that these factors were not enough to convert the house into a church—and that the families were in violation of the law.

It is not unusual for zoning ordinances to allow churches in an otherwise residential neighborhood. By and large, as in the above situation, a place won't qualify as a church unless there is some degree of public worship.

Consider another case.

This time, the building in dispute was being used for religious retreats on weekends. During these retreats the participants would engage in study, meditation, and worship services—all under the supervision of a priest.

Despite the objections of neighbors, a court found sufficient emphasis on the religious life to make the place acceptable as a church.

Sometimes a zoning law will exempt not only churches but also any building that is "put to a religious use." Such wording broadens the possibilities.

Thus, under this kind of law, a court allowed a day care center to be operated on church-owned property. The court said that in view of the community's need for day care centers, this could reasonably be classified as "conduct with a religious purpose."

Letters to DEBORAH WHITE

DEAR DEBBIE:

Years ago I bought a bowl for $6 at my neighbor's garage sale. The other day she came over to tell me she wants it back and will pay me double. When I first bought it she said some old lady at work gave it to her and it was just a dust collector, but now she says it belonged to her mother-in-law and was sold by mistake. I said she could have it back if I could find it, but it turns out I had given the bowl to my daughter for her hope chest. My daughter loves it and told my neighbor she didn't want to sell. The neighbor got so upset that my daughter came home crying. Meanwhile I found out this neighbor had recently been to an antique show. I took the bowl to a dealer to find out what's what and he told me it was quite valuable. Would you give it back?

STUCK

DEAR STUCK:

You're not stuck, your neighbor is. You bought the bowl in good faith, she tried to get it back under false pretenses, and her obvious attempt to cheat you out of your bargain didn't work. Besides, if you gave the bowl to your daughter, it's no longer your property. This absolves you from your promise to return it if you could find it.

DEAR DEBBIE:

I am 13 and short. I have two older sisters who are taller than me and they are both very mean. They keep calling me Shrimp, Midget, Shorty and other names that hurt me very much. I always have to go to my room and cry. How can I make them stop these remarks?

DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE:

Contact your local AL-ANON chapter immediately. They are experts in helping the families of alcoholics.

And make no mistake about it, your husband is an alcoholic. Pretty soon he won't be able to hold out during the week either, so stop thinking of him as ideal and start getting help!

If you have a problem, write to me in care of this newspaper. Personal replies aren't always possible, but I'll answer letters of widest interest in this column.

NEXT WEEK'S HOROSCOPE

By Clay R. Pollan

Note planetary ruler of your birth symbol

FOR WEEK BEGINNING SUNDAY, AUG. 25, 1975

★ If your birthday occurs this week . . .

. . . you are original, daring and inventive. Because of your attainments, you are likely to arouse envy. Your ever-curious mind causes you to skip from one thing to another with enthusiasm, which needs a steadying influence to make the most of your talents. Aquarius, Pisces persons are your best relationships.

Aries Mar. 21 - Apr. 19 | Pluto

The emphasis this week is very much on the lighter side of life. There will almost certainly be opportunities to lead a joyous, interesting life. Favorable developments affecting friendships with the opposite sex will please you. Be your charming, personable self. Hold hands! Show affection! Socialize!

Taurus Apr. 20 - May 20 | Venus

Money is well aspected now and some good gains can be chalked up where effort is kept practical and uninvolved. Your thoughts will be on doing a good job on whatever you attempt. Tips and inside information are possible but unreliable use. Good period for asking the return of loaned money or possessions.

Gemini May 21 - June 20 | Mercury

The week's vibrations support dieting, figure improving, exercises, personal grooming and related discussions with authorities. Let your comfort-loving instincts come into play. Activities related to music and the arts will helpfully relieve tension. Save energy. Organize others in running your errands.

Cancer June 21 - July 22 | Moon

It is apparent that someone will come into your life who has a disruptive effect. Rivalry is emphasized. You could have rivals for the affections of your sweetheart, or could run into stiff competition in business activities. Possibly it will create jealousy. Seek support. Stand up for principles.

Leo July 23 - Aug. 22 | Sun

An active week in which you finish a number of pending projects. Your efforts are being judged. Don't put any assignments aside, but follow them through to completion. Be dispassionate, objective, and avoid any tendency to complain. You can bring order out of chaos. Resist pressure and refuse to panic.

Virgo Aug. 23 - Sept. 22 | Mercury

This week should bring pleasant opportunities to dress up and go places. There'll be strong temptations to neglect some of your more serious responsibilities. If you're engaged in heavy socializing, try to keep it within bounds and a sensible distance. Concentrate on money-making, prestige-improving hobbies.

Libra Sept. 23 - Oct. 22 | Venus

Mixed aspects prevail this week. You may concentrate on both money and social life. Be sure to settle money obligations and keep your side of the ledger straight and clear. Clear the decks of correspondence that has been hanging about too long. Accept invitations. Be seen in plush spots.

Scorpio Oct. 23 - Nov. 21 | Mars

This is a time to keep plans to yourself and move ahead quietly. You could run into opposition from associates who've been a bit overly critical. Do not confide in these individuals and tighten up like a clam when questioned about your motives or plans. Be wealthy about promises. Be alert, versatile.

Sagittarius Nov. 22 - Dec. 21 | Jupiter

Harmonious aspects work in your favor. Partnerships and cooperative ventures are favored. Increased income is possible later in the week, if you're persistent.
