Frontiersmen available for bicentennial

FRANKFORT—As part of the nation's bicentennial celebration, a number of Kentucky men have formed a group to commemorate and honor the accomplishments of one of the most significant figures of the American Revolution—the frontiersman.

Their group, called Mercer's Frontiersmen after Revolutionary War General Hugh Mercer, is led by Col. E.W. Mercer. He says that the purpose of the group—which is headquartered in West Point, Ky.—is to "promote, encourage and create activities for the celebration of the bicentennial of the United States during the years 1776-1976 and to bring recognition to the significant accomplishments of Gen. Hugh Mercer and his men."

Gen. Hugh Mercer served in the French and Indian War (1754-1761), as a brigadier general in the Continental Army and served in the decisive Revolutionary War battles of Trenton and Princeton, New Jersey, where he was killed. He was very active on the frontier and Kentucky's Mercer county is named for him.

Col. Mercer, who is a distant relation of Gen. Hugh Mercer, says that the frontiersmen is a group made up of doctors, farmers, lawyers, factory workers, bankers, electricians, salesmen, university professors, government employees, historians, and men of many other occupations who are available to participate in any appropriate bicentennial celebration.

The frontiersmen dress in authentic uniforms of the frontier, and carry fringed leather jackets, and carry authentic, functional weapons. They will participate in parades, in shooting matches and other bicentennial events that "benefit the community and gain recognition for the accomplishments of Gen. Hugh Mercer." There is no fee for this group although contributions to cover expenses are appreciated.

Mercer says he is interested in beginning units in other Kentucky cities and also a life and drum corps.

For more information or to invite this bicentennial group to your community contact Mercer's Frontiersmen, Continental Brigade Headquarters, Route 1, Box 403, West Point, Ky. 40377.

Financial Disclosure group named

FRANKFORT—Gov. Julian Carroll has named members of a new Financial Disclosure Review Commission which will review the personal financial status of major management personnel in state government.

The five members of the commission named were:

- J.T. Whitlock of Lebanon, chairman, representing the Kentucky Broadcasters Association;
- George Joplin of Somerset, representing the Kentucky Press Association;
- Harry Peart of Bowling Green, representing the Kentucky Association of Certified Public Accountants;
- James Davis of Grayson, representing the Kentucky General Assembly;
- Cattle Lou Miller of Frankfort, commissioner of the Department of Personnel, representing state employees under review by the commission.

Both Joplin and Peart will serve two-year terms, while Mr. Miller and Davis were appointed for one year. Whitlock will serve on the commission for three years.

Gov. Carroll first announced his intention to create the Financial Disclosure Review Commission at the Jan. 24 meeting of the Kentucky Press Association. He said he would create the body in an attempt to encourage openness and honesty among officials of state government.

An executive order, accompanying the announcement of the commission members, requires the governor, his administrative staff, all cabinet secretaries, commissioners, deputy commissioners, division directors and agency heads to submit a statement of their major holdings to the commission by April 15. A statement of their net worth as of Jan. 1, 1975 is also required. Starting with their 1975 returns, these

WHY WE CAN'T SAY "PRICES ARE TOO HIGH: WE WON'T BUY."

From wood poles to steel towers, from glass insulators to manlift trucks, the impact of price increases in the thousands of things we buy is almost unbelievable. A substitution we could build in 1973 for $500,000 now costs $1 million.

We can't simply say, "Prices are too high; we won't build." We must buy and we must build to meet our increasing electrical needs.

In the next five years we must spend more than $550 million on the KU-ODP system to build new facilities and add environmental equipment at today's and tomorrow's costs. In the past, when we built new facilities, their greater efficiency held down the cost of service. In the face of today's awesome price increases that is no longer true. Consequently, as we build and grow for tomorrow, the cost of electricity must grow with us.

Electricity... use it wisely
