Dear Debbie

I love my wife very much. I know she was angry before we married, but I have a figure like a 13-year-old boy. My brothers are always teasing me about it. My mother-in-law along with them, then I run upstairs and cry my eyes out. Because they really hurt my feelings, I've noticed some of these advertisements saying you can add seven inches to your bustline in seven days. Do you think it really works? Please don't think my question is too trivial to bother with. My figure is making more and more of me. I get ideas.

DEAR DEBBIE: I have an emotional and physical problem. I was angry before we married, but I have a figure like a 13-year-old boy. My brothers are always teasing me about it. Because they really hurt my feelings, I've noticed some of these advertisements saying you can add seven inches to your bustline in seven days. Do you think it really works?
